The steamer Isis runs regularly to the Camp-meeting Grounds. Thus far she has taken down comparatively few but the probabilities are that, large as she is, she will find it difficult to accommodate the crowds of colored folks who will flock there to-morrow and Sunday.

North Carolina Pine Tops.
Thirty-seven bales of pine tops, labelled as pine straw, were shipped hence to New York to day on the steamship Benbow. It is the second shipment of the kind made from this port, the first having been made two weeks ago. The tops are used for various purposes, principally for making mattresses and paper stock, and an oil of considerable medicinal virtue is distilled from them.

City Court.
Mollie Dove, a denizen of the Hollow, was arraigned before the Mayor upon the charge of disorderly conduct. The case was dismissed and the prisoner released.
Andrew J. Hogan and Peter Hogan, two colored men, both employed at the Purcell House, were arraigned this morning upon the charge of larceny of money and other articles from the proprietors, Messrs Cobb Bros. Mr. Howell Cobb, the senior member of the firm, testified that the boy, Andrew J. Hogan, was caught in the act of stealing at the money drawer, and his brother, Peter Hogan, who had been discharged from their employment some time ago upon suspicion of stealing and who was admitted to the hotel last night by Andrew Hogan, was detected in the act of abstracting things from the dining room.

The defendants were not represented by counsel and after hearing the evidence in the case the Mayor bound them over in a $200 justified bond for their appearance at the next term of the Criminal Court, in default of which the prisoners were committed to jail.

WILMINGTON, N. C., FRIDAY, MAY 23, 1879.

NO. 91

The Regatta Season.

The first regatta of the season of the Carolina Yacht Club will be given in the river on Wednesday next, the 28th inst., at 2 o'clock. The usual course will be run. There will be several prizes, and the first boat will be awarded the championship flag. The fleet is all here now and a spirited contest is expected.

The Atlantic Hotel.

Elsewhere will be found advertisement of this popular Summer resort at Beaufort. It has recently passed under the control of Capt. B. L. Perry, a gentleman well-known in our city, who will give his thorough personal care to the comfort of his guests. The hotel is built at the very edge of the bay and directly in front of the inlet and catches all of the Summer breeze. A ball room, good music, bath houses, fast boats, fine fishing and a splendid table are among the many attractions.

The Last of the Fleet.

Mr. John T. Flowers arrived here last evening at sunset with the Ripple, the last boat of the fleet, from Wrightsville Sound. He crossed Masonboro Inlet at 7.45 yesterday morning and made the river from that point to New Inlet in 2 hours and 30 minutes, a half-hour of that time having been lost in bailing and reefing. The wind was from the northeast and the sea was very heavy. Getting in at New Inlet was a particularly perilous job, but with care and skill it was safely accomplished and the Ripple is now in the Cape Fear and will be one of the fleetest contestants in the race next week, when she will be sailed by her owner, Mr. Norwood Giles.

For the Lake.

If this bright weather holds good for twenty-four hours longer there will in all probability be a large and a happy crowd at the picnic to be given to Waccamaw Lake to-morrow by the Sunday School of St. John's Parish. A special train will take the excursionists up, leaving Front Street Depot at 8.30 a. m. and returning at 7 p. m., by sunset. A large number of tickets have been sold already and the prospects are that there will be a goodly number along. Let every body go and have one day of genuine enjoyment.

The Concert To-Night.

One of the most pleasant events of the season will take place at the Opera House this evening, the occasion being the testimonial concert tendered to Mrs. Kahnweiler. Apart from the fact that the performance will be one of unusual excellence and that the vocal and instrumental reformers are drawn from among the very best musical talent in the city we would be glad to see the house filled from gallery to parquette, as it will be for the benefit of one who has never yet failed to respond to any of the numerous calls which have been made upon her own rare musical abilities when any beneficent object was in view.

Presence of Mind.

Professor Wilder gives these short rules for action in case of accident: For dust in the eyes, avoid rubbing; dash water into them. Remove cinders, etc., with the round point of a lead pencil. Remove insects from the ear by tepid water; never put a hard instrument into the ear. If an artery is cut, compress above the wound; if a vein is cut, compress below. If choked, get upon all fours and cough. For light burns dip the part in cold water; if the skin is destroyed, cover with vasoline. Smother a fire with burning oil and increase the danger. Before passing through smoke take a full breath, and then stoop low but if carbon is suspected, walk erect. Suck poison wounds, unless your mouth is sore; enlarge the wound, or, better, cut out the part without delay. Hold the wound part as long as can be borne to a hot coal, or end of a cigar. In case of poisoning excite vomiting by tickling the throat or by water or mustard. For acid poisons give acids; in case of opium poison give strong coffee and keep moving. If in water float on the back, with the nose and mouth projecting. For apoplexy raise the head and body; for fainting, lay the person flat.

The Northeasterly winds predicted in the "Indications," published in yesterday's REVIEW swept down upon us last night and this morning. May 23d, 1879, it took two blankets and a spread to keep a fat man warm.

THE PILOTS' MONUMENT.

The Memorial Services Yesterday at Smithville

Yesterday morning the steamer Passport left here for Smithville with about two hundred excursionists who were to take part in the dedication services of the beautiful monument erected in the burial grounds of that town to the memory of the lost pilots, whose spark of life was extinguished during the pitiless storms of December 1872 and April 1877. Among the excursionists were the following gentlemen: Rev. Mr. Yates, Rev. Mr. Hall, Rev. Mr. Craig and Commissioners of Navigation, James H. Chadbourne, D. G. Worth, Donald McKee and Geo. M. Crapon and Capt. Joseph Price, Harbor Master, of this port. After a short and pleasant sail the steam yacht made her moorings fast at Smithville and the party were passed ashore by Capt. Harper. Upon the wharf the Committee from the Organization of Pilots and citizens were awaiting the arrival of the Passport and after a handshaking the line of march was taken up to the burial grounds, which are situated about three blocks from the steamer's wharf. Arriving at the grounds the Commissioners of Navigation, Harbor Master Price and the Ministry were invited to seats on the rostrum, which was situated about twenty feet north of the monument. The choir of the Front Street Methodist Church, of this city, who were in attendance by special request, took their stands around the organ, and the impressive services were opened with the beautiful and appropriate ode, "Peace, be Still," the words running as follows:

"Loudly roared the wind and fearful was the gale Dashing up the waves across the ship so frail," &c.

The Rev. H. F. Wiley, of Smithville, offered up an appropriate prayer, at the conclusion of which the choir sang "Jesus Our Shelter."

"When through the torn sails the wild tempest is streaming,
When o'er the dark waves the red lightning is gleaming," &c.

Each verse closing with "Save, Lord, or we perish."

Dr. W. G. Curtis, the Master of Ceremonies, arose and introduced the Orator of the Day, the Rev. Mr. Yates, in a few well-timed, terse and touching remarks, referring to the hardships and privations of the departed ones who had lost their lives in the faithful discharge of their duties. The Rev. Mr. Yates then arose and delivered one of his finest addresses. He spoke with much feeling, and in his usual strong, impressive manner. He delivered no fulsome eulogies, and spoke in fitting terms of those who met an untimely fate in the great deep.

We will not even attempt to give an outline of Mr. Yates' masterly address as no adequate conception could be formed of its beauty and excellent delivery. Strong men who have braved the storms of two and three scores of years were moved to tears, as the daring deeds, hardships and exposures of their departed brothers, sons and friends were so tersely and forcibly brought before them in language such as is used only by masterly minds. Mr. Yates spoke for thirty minutes and at the conclusion of his address the choir sang "Sweet Bye and Bye." There was not a dry eye around the monument and at the conclusion of the hymn the Rev. Mr. Hall pronounced the Benediction. The assemblage left for their respective homes with hearts full of emotion and pleasant thoughts of the departed ones. The monument is about twenty-five feet high and is of white marble. It was beautifully decorated with garlands of evergreens and choicest flowers. The floral offerings by friends of the dead pilots were pretty and appropriate, one of the most noticeable being a sail boat resting in a bed of roses. On the North face of the monument is the following inscription:

"The winds and the sea sing their requiem and shall for evermore."
On the East is "Thus, B. Grissom, Robt. S. Walker, O. C. Pinner, Chas. Doherty, Lawrence Gillespie, pilots and crew of the Mary K. Sprunt, were lost April 13th, 1877." The South face bears the following: "Joseph Bensell, Thos. W. Brinkman, Jno. D. Trout, R. B. St. George, Cape Fear pilots, were drowned December 11th, 1872." The Western face has: "This monument is erected by many citizens who regret the untimely death of those pilots who in the faithful discharge of their duty were suddenly called to meet their God." The pilots' boats and shipping in the harbor were half masted during the day. About two o'clock the pilot boat Henry Westermann was run alongside the Passport and the excursionists were invited to sail about the bay. Many availed themselves of the opportunity and expressed themselves well pleased. The dedicatory services of the Pilots' Monument will long be remembered and will be an oasis in the daily walks of those who were fortunate enough to witness them. Mr. C. M. VanOrsdel, Jr., succeeded in getting an excellent picture of the monument after the conclusion of the services.

Robbery at the Purcell House—The Thieves Caught in the Act.

For some time past Mr. Howell Cobb, of the firm of Cobb Bros. proprietors of the Purcell House in this city, has suspected that one of his employees, a colored man by the name of Andrew J. Hogan, had been tampering with his money drawer, and on two occasions has fixed a trap to catch him; the first one miscarried, but the trap which was arranged last night succeeded and the thief and his accomplice, who was his brother, Peter Hogan, were caught about 2 o'clock this morning in the very act of pilfering. The man Andrew J. Hogan, as before stated, is an employee of the Messrs. Cobb, and is on duty in the office all night, where he is stationed to answer bell calls and make the early calls for boarders who take the different early trains in the morning. Last night Mr. Howell Cobb, having made all necessary arrangements, sent Hogan with a message to a gentleman next door and during his absence concealed himself and his brother-in-law, Mr. Duham, in a closet immediately in rear of the door to his private office from which through a glass door he could see any approach to the money drawer of his desk and at the same time command a view to the entrance to the dining room. Soon after concealing themselves, Hogan returned, and seeing no one in the office and thinking, perhaps (it being then quite late) that Mr. C. had retired, he went to the front door and admitted his brother, Peter Hogan, who had been discharged from the employ of the hotel some months ago upon suspicion of stealing. The concealed parties had not long to wait in suspense, the other parties meant business, too, and pretty soon commenced their operations, one at the drawer while the other made for the dining room, both of which operations could be witnessed from the hiding place of Messrs Cobb and Duham. Mr. C. then hastily removed his shoes to prevent a noise, and stepping out at the back way of the hotel found a policeman, and then blew his whistle for others, who soon came up. One was stationed at the window of the dining room overlooking the alley to prevent the escape of the thieves, while the others went in at the door and made the arrest of the parties. Andrew Hogan confessed to having abstracted a $1 bill from the drawer and immediately gave it up, which proved to be a bill that Mr. Cobb had marked in order to prove its identity. The other party, Peter Hogan, asserted that he had only gone into the dining room to get something to eat by permission of his brother, Andrew. But lard and other things were found that these accomplices were trying to get away with, together with a piece of Brussels carpeting that one or the other of the culprits had concealed under the counter in the office.

The two were immediately taken to the guard house, and upon being searched $35 in money was found upon the person of Andrew Hogan. They were then locked up for the night and this morning arraigned before His Honor Mayor Fishblade who bound them over in the sum of $200 each for their appearance at the next term of the Criminal Court which convenes in this city on Monday next, the 26th inst. Failing to give the bond the defendants were committed to jail. Mr. Cobb certainly displayed an amount of coolness and determination in ferreting out this matter which should serve as a warning to others similarly situated with like temptations surrounding them.

The defendant Andrew Hogan was unfortunately shot some months since right through the heart with an arrow from Cupid's bow, the wound from which has never healed, so it is alleged, and he was preparing to apply some balm of gilead from the two lips of his fair dulcinea to whom he was to be married on next Tuesday night, and with this object in view had sought and obtained permission from his employers to absent himself four days next week in order that he might visit Columbia on a bridal tour. But, alas! for the hopes and happiness of the gentle one she will wait in vain for the coming of her lover, who is now restrained from the delightful intercourse with his adored by the cold hard walls of a prison. Undoubtedly Hogan and his fair ful one have begun to realize, ere this, the truth of the old adage that the course of true love never runs smooth.

Hemenway School.

The closing exercises of the Spring term of this institution were held at the school to day, commencing at 11 o'clock, a. m. As is usual and proper on such occasions a large number of visitors, principally ladies, who are interested in the welfare of the young and the cause of education, were in attendance. The school, we should judge, numbered about 100 pupils, about equally divided between the two sexes, and ranging from six to sixteen years of age. As they filed into the schoolroom by separate doors and marched up to the rostrum, the young misses on one side and the lads upon the other, and faced the audience, they presented a very fine appearance indeed. All were neatly, respectful and proper in deportment, their faces blooming with the roseate hue of health and their eyes beaming with youthful intelligence. The exercises were conducted by Mrs. Flora J. Wise, the accomplished principal, who was ably supported in her duties by her efficient corps of assistants, consisting of Mrs. M. O. Wallace, Mrs. Luara P. Rothwell, Miss Alice Flyaw and Miss Mary Duguid and consisted of recitations in geography, declamations, dialogues and vocal music, all of which were very interesting and entertaining. One of the prettiest events in the entertainment, where all was admirable, was the discussion of two young ladies of the matronly age of six or seven years, relative to their dolls. After some talk they mutually concluded that legs were of no use to dolls as they can not walk, so off came the legs and they were thrown on the floor with a vim. The same result followed as to arms, eyes, &c., until they finally concluded that the heads were of no use, and off came the head of one of the dolls in an instant, and it was thrown upon the floor, but the head of the other doll was stubborn and the sweet little soul who held it could not pull it off, and then from vexation and embarrassment she hid her face in her hands to hide the tears that would flow. We were truly sorry for the dear little child, but she may some day learn that few who are older would do any better and would probably do much worse, under like circumstances. Altogether it was an enjoyable entertainment and reflected credit upon teachers and pupils.

Twenty-Nine Years Ago.

A friend has placed before us an old play bill, printed at the Chronicle job office, then owned by Mr. Asa A. Brown, for a performance which was given in the Old Academy on Tuesday, June 18th, 1850, now within a few weeks of twenty-nine years ago. The piece selected was Colman's Comedy of the Poor Gentleman, in five acts, with a farce in two acts called Fam'ly Jars. In the cast were the following names, viz: Messrs. E. A. Cushing, F. N. Wadell, Robert Strange, T. Burr, Jr., E. W. Hall, J. R. Reston, Jas. G. Burr, John S. James, Jas. L. Casidey, Junius D. Gardner, J. J. Hedrick, J. J. Lippitt, R. S. Green, W. M. Harris and Donald MacRae. The female characters were represented by Messrs. J. J. Hedrick, J. J. Lippitt, R. S. Green, John R. Reston and W. M. Harris. Of the fifteen names mentioned nine of them, alas! are numbered with the dead and all but one sleep in Oakdale.

The Alarm of Fire.

The roof of the kitchen of the residence of Mr. Oscar Pearsall, on the corner of Eighth and Princess streets, was discovered to be on fire this afternoon and was promptly extinguished. The alarm was sounded and the fire department turned out but their services were fortunately not needed.

The voice of reform is heard through the land, and speaks of the "good time coming." So too the spirit of reform is working in the nurseries of the land to banish those dangerous Opium and Morphia preparations, and establish useful and harmless remedies, of which Dr. Bull's Baby Syrup is acknowledged as the very best for all the disorders of babyhood and early childhood. Price 25 cents a bottle.
