KEVE

In connection with the attempted burglary at the re idence of Mr. A. V Sykes, an account of which we gave yesterday, we learn that, after being driven away from the premises, the burglars separated, one going in a northerly direction and the other, going southerly, ran into the premises of Mr. J. Baker, on Dock, between Seventh and Eighth streets, Mr. Baker happened to be awake at the time, and starting to ascertain the cau-e of the noise made by the burglar in his haste, caused the latter to flee, which he did by jumping into the garden adjoining Diana, to which the young man belong- In this lot was the residence of a widow ed, all participating in the obsequies. The lady, who being also awake at the time, Nyce was chartered to bring the body, raised an alarm, and the intruder jumpwhich had been placed in a nice coffin and el back again into the lot occupied by Mr. Baker. The latter then fired a shot when the fugitive exclaimed, "For Gou's to Bellevue Cemetery followed by the sake, don't kill me," and fl'd for the woods, since which time he has not been heard from. From the description given by Mr. Baker of the man he fired at, Mr. Worship in the various churches of the Sikes is positive it was the same who held his wife while they were attempting to rob his premises.

A great deal of poetry has been writ ten about "snow-white sails on a shimmer ing, sunlit sea,'but the sails on most of the craft that we have observed look as they had been used for circus canvas a very wet and muddy season. There's no whiteness about them.

It is very entraordinary, but it nevertheless quite true, that it was the first pair that ate the first apple. Why and this, now, is really a first-class A 1 conundrum: Why are cashmere shawls like deaf people? Don't you see? Because you can't make them here. Get out yourself !

Pickett, the Assailant of Maria Covington, Taken Suddenly Ill, Sam Pickett, the colored man who was arrested for assaulting the colored woman, Maria Covington, a few days ago, suddenly became speechless in the Guard House this morning, but whether his apparent illness was feigned or real, it seemed hard to determine. The city physician being called in administered medicine to him and applied remedies, when the prisoner commenced breathing short and quick and in a whispering voice kept crying "have merey." The physician, we believe, inclined to the opinion that the prisoner was suffering from a vielest form of hysteria brought on by religious excitement, Pickett having on Fifth, between Nun and Church been indulging in shouting, and so forth, yesterday evening, claiming that he had suddenly been converted. He was in such a condition at the hour set apart for his trial before the Mayor this morning that his case had to be continued until Monday morning at 91 o'cleck.' This afternoon there was no visible change in his condition; the short quick breathing is still kept up, while the man lies on his back flat on the floor of the Guard Room. except when his head is raised by the
