

Gen. and Mrs. Grant heard the contradiction of the unfounded dispatch reporting the death of Nellie Sartoris before they saw the dispatch itself.

Mallinger, the German prima donna, has married a man named Schimdtelpfenning. It is as well that she retains her maiden name for stage use.

Some French papers now write Mr. for Monsieur instead of merely M. This is an improvement, because M. is ambiguous and may stand for an initial.

The French artillery has been doubled since 1870, and now numbers, gun for gun and man for man, exactly the same as that of the German Empire.

Nothing inflates like resumption. Since January 1 the United States has imported $30,500,000 of gold, and produced $25,000,000, an increase of $5,000,000, to the circulating medium.

The priest who attended the Duc d'Enghien, executed by order of Napoleon I, in 1804, in his last moments, died but a few years ago. Louis Napoleon offered him a small pension, which he declined.

A Boston druggist sold an ounce of laudanum to a boy who brought a written order for tincture of rhubarb, and the widow of the man killed by the blunder has obtained a verdict of $5,208 damages.

The tusk sent by Cetywayo to Lord Chelmsford to intimate his wish for peace, is now at the Colonial Office. It is seven feet in length and about half a yard thick at the broadest part. It is pronounced the finest ever seen in England.

A Vienna newspaper reports that Eugenie, the ex-Empress of the French, is negotiating for the purchase of one of the handsomest residences in that gay capital. Eugenie is said to have always been fond of Vienna, and it is grateful for her cordial reception on her last visit there.

Queen Victoria, it is said, once signified to Viscount Macduff, new Earl of Fife, that she would not be unwilling to have him for a son-in-law. The nobleman respectfully declined the honor. He is not yet 30, was schooled at Eton, has eight residences in the Highlands, and is warmly spoken of by all classes. His four sisters are ladies of extreme beauty, but have not all been enviable in their wedded life.

The German Emperor's journey of 200 miles from Dantzic to Stettin last month was a triumphal progress throughout, every station, village and cottage within sight of the train being gayly decorated. The manifestation culminated at Stettin. This was a set-off to the gloomy silence and closed blinds of Strassburg.

The galleries of numerous theatres throughout the country have lost a favorite by the death of Kate Raymond, which occurred on her Pennsylvania farm a few days ago. Fifteen years ago she made her first appearance on the stage, and rode up the wooden mountain tied to a horse's back as 'Mazappa' and, until her last illness, she continued to thrill the boys with repetitions of that feat.

In certain sequestered parts of England an official called the ale-taster is still continued as a relic of last century's laws. He tastes all kinds of malt liquor sold in the neighborhood, with a view of ascertaining whether it contains objectionable ingredients. In old times the use of sugar in ale was condemned, and the taster had a primitive way of discovering its presence. A quantity was spilled on a bench and he sat upon it, in his leather breeches, until it dried. If, when rising, the breeches stuck to the bench, the presence of sugar was evident. If not, the ale was pure.

If it is true that Lionel Tennyson, the son of the English poet laureate, will henceforth renounce his family name of Tennyson and become Lionel Turner in order to secure $5,000 a year, under Mr. Turner's provision, the young man shows the prose rather than the poetry of his nature. Though the son of a poet, and though his wife is the daughter of a poet, he knows the value of $5,000 a year, as did his uncle, also a poet and the brother of a poet; who renounced the same name of Tennyson on the same condition. What's in a name?

SOUTHERN COTTON CONSUMPTION.

The Boston Commercial Bulletin, speaking of the cotton consumption in the South last season, says:—Great as has been the increase during the past year in the consumption of cotton by Southern mills, there is reason to believe that there will be a still heavier increase during the next two years. Readers of our manufacturing columns must have noticed the numerous new projects for the establishment of cotton mills that are receiving discussion in all parts of the South. The unparalleled advantages of this industry offered by the South have only just begun to be appreciated by capitalists. An interesting feature of these new mill projects is that many of them look to the production of a finer class of goods than have been hitherto manufactured by Southern cotton mills.

GENERAL SHERMAN.

General Sherman wants an increase of the army. Of course he does. Every officer in the army, from the General down to the Junior Second Lieutenant, wants the rank and file increased. It is humiliating to have military rank and title and but a squad of enlisted men as a command.

The General is with Mr. Hayes' party, who are gallivanting through the West, visiting the different agricultural fairs. They were at Indianapolis on the 31 instant, and the General made a speech in which he referred to the disaster to Major Thornburg and his party in the recent engagement with the Ute Indians, and said that that the army ought to be enlarged and that the death of those soldiers should be avenged. He urged upon his listeners to press the subject upon the notice of the Congressmen of their respective districts until they should vote to make a material increase in the enlisted men of the army.

The United States army, as it exists today, is certainly the most awkward, ill-shaped and unwieldy organization in the entire political economy of the country. It has too many officers for the number of enlisted men, and too many of the latter for any practical use or benefit. A General of the Army, with a force under his command barely equal to an army corps, may be expected to desire an increase of the force to give character and prominence to his position, but the tax-payers, who are taxed to the amount of $20,000,000 annually to keep up the military establishment, will be prone to ask if any actual benefit will accrue to the country by the increase. They will be apt to enquire whether the disaster which befell Major Thornburg was entirely attributable to the idea that the army is too small, or was it one of those unforeseen casualties which might be expected as the ordinary results of war. There is every reason to presume that such a catastrophe would have occurred had the actual strength of the army been four times as great. The officer was assigned a force which was considered amply sufficient for any emergency likely to arise in the execution of his orders. That there was a large available force at hand is manifest from the fact that troops have been sent to the relief of those who were not killed in the fight. There was a mistake in not sending a larger force with the expedition at the outset, and that is all there is of it. It is preposterous to say, in the light of all the facts, that the disaster occurred because the army is too small.

The idea that the army should be enlarged in order that the death of Major Thornburg and his soldiers might be avenged would have no little weight, were we not to reflect that the Indians have wrongs to avenge also. They occasionally inflict a savage blow upon the whites to avenge the wrongs which they have suffered, but the retaliatory, relentless and implacable wrongs perpetrated by the whites upon this nearly annihilated race has no equal in the annals of outrage and cruelty. There is no need of further expenditure to avenge the death of those soldiers, for there are enough on the frontiers who can and will see to it that the disaster is a thousand times avenged.

OF COURSE IT WAS A RADICAL LIE.

And so the alleged interview with Mr. Tilden, wherein he is said to have uttered such harsh criticisms of the South is as might have been known, but one more Radical lie which has been nailed to the forefront of that mendacious party. Mr. Tilden declares that it is a forgery and as little as we regard him we would believe him in preference to any of the greater or lesser lights of the Republican party, from Hayes down (or up?) to Schuyler Colfax, or Joyce McDonald. A Washington Post correspondent has interviewed Mr. Tilden on the subject and he has made this positive and emphatic disclaimer:

"You may say that if these declarations purport to have been the result of an interview with me they are forgeries. If it is intended by the article, whatever its authorship, to make public my expressions in the way of criticisms of current political events, either as expressed by me to my intimate friends or to the author of this alleged interview, it is more than ever a forgery. I have indulged in no such expressions. I do not care to go into them in detail, for it would be useless for me to attempt to deny all that might be attributed to me by ingenious but mendacious correspondents. Mr. Tilden goes still further in this interview and speaks out pretty plainly as to his intentions and aspirations. It is but just that he should be heard and we therefore print his remarks relative to the Presidential nomination. I can say that I have not taken any steps to secure a renomination by the Democratic party for the Presidency. I can say also that I do not contemplate taking any measures to secure such nomination, or to reject it before it is offered. I am credited with having an agent in every voting precinct throughout the United States, and with many more equally absurd devices, to secure that which I do not seek. So far as the article referred to is concerned it is a fabrication and a forgery, and that I may say and that you may say," replied Mr. Tilden, with emphasis.

MOONSHINE.

'See!' said a pious gentleman, 'here is an illustration. At one time I should have sworn awfully at this fly—but, look now! Raising his hand, he said, gently, 'Go away, fly, go away.' But the fly only tickled his nose the more. The pious gentleman, raising his hand with some vehemence, made a grab at the offender, and, being successful, opened it to throw the insect from him, when, in extreme disgust, he exclaimed: 'Way, d—n it, it's a wasp!'

A worthy doctor of divinity approached 'Paddy' Ryan near the City Hall yesterday, and placing one hand on the athlete's shoulder, said: 'My dear sir, any one blessed with such a physique and such shapely proportions, ought to be a good man.' The clergyman was startled by Paddy's reply: 'A good man? Well, you can bet your life I'm a better man than Dwyer.' It is needless to add that the assertion was not contradicted.—Troy Times.

A friend and neighbor has a relative a practical Christian, who has a practical way of putting things. Recently the subject of death-bed repentance was under discussion, when she said: 'Some men think they can live any kind of a life, yet save their souls by a so-called repentance a few hours before death; but I have my doubts as to how that kind of washing will dry when hung out on the heavenly clothes line.'—Boston Transcript.

Teacher—'Now, boys, quadruped and biped, you know, are two kinds of animals. Quadruped, animal with four legs, such as cow, elephant, horse, etc. Biped, animal with two legs, such as—well, ah—'. Yes, there is a biped,' pointing to a picture of a goose on the wall, 'and I am a biped, and you are all bipeds. Now what am I? Pause. One of the bipeds—'A goose, sir.'

YELLOW FEVER—BLACK VOMIT.

It is too soon to forget the terrible disease, which will no doubt fall in a more disastrous and virulent form than in 1879.

MERRILL'S HEPATITE, a new and powerful remedy, has produced the most gratifying results in South America, where the most aggravated cases of fever are found. From one to two ounces of bile are filtered or strained from the blood each time it passes through the Liver, and the bile ceases to exist. By its wonderful action on the Liver and Stomach the HEPATITE not only prevents to a certainty any kind of Yellow Fever, but also cures Headache, Constipation of the Bowels, Dyspepsia, and all Malarial diseases.

No one need fear Yellow Fever who will expel the Malarial Poison and purge the blood from the body by using MERRELL'S HEPATITE, which is sold by all Druggists in 25 cent and $1.00 bottles, or will be sent by express to the Proprietors, A. F. MERRILL & CO., Philadelphia, Pa.

Dr Pemberton's Stillingia or Queen's Delight

The reports of wonderful cures of Rheumatism, Scrofula, Salt Rheum, Psoriasis, Cancer, Ulcers and Sores that come from all parts of the country, are not only remarkable but so miraculous as to be doubted were it not for the abundance of proof.

Remarkable Cure of Scrofula.

CASE OF COL. J. C. BRANSON, KINGSTON, Ga., Sept. 13, 1879.

Genl.—For sixteen years I have been a great sufferer from Scrofula in its most distressing form. I have been confined to my room and bed for fifteen years with various ulcers. The most approved remedies for such cases had been used, and the most eminent physicians consulted, without any decided benefit. I was advised by Dr. Cress, of Floyd county, Ga., to commence the use of your Compound Extract of Stillingia. I am insufficient to describe the relief I obtained from the use of the Stillingia, as it is to convey an adequate idea of the intensity of my suffering before using your medicine; sufficient to say, I abandoned all other remedies and continued the use of your Extract of Stillingia, until I can say truly, "I am cured of all pain," of all disease, with nothing to obstruct the active pursuit of my profession. More than eight months have elapsed since this remarkable cure, without any return of the disease.

For the truth of the above statement, I refer to any gentleman in Bartow county, Ga., and to the members of the bar of Cherokee Circuit, who are acquainted with me, and ever remain, with the deepest gratitude, Your obedient servant, J. C. BRANSON, Atty at Law.

A MIRACLE.

WEST POINT, Ga., Sept. 18, 1879.

Genl.—My daughter was taken on the 24th day of June, 1863, with what was supposed to be Acute Rheumatism, and was treated of the same with no success. In March, following, pieces of bone began to work out of her right arm, and continued to appear till the bone from the elbow to the shoulder joint came out. Many pieces of bone came out of the right foot and leg. The case was pronounced one of White Swelling. She having been confined about six years to bed, and the case considered hopeless, I was induced to try Dr. Pemberton's Compound Extract of Stillingia, and was so well satisfied with its effects that I have continued its use of it until the present.

My daughter was confined to her bed about six years before she sat up or even turned over without her pain. She now sits up all the time. Her general health is now good, and I believe she will, as her limbs are stronger, walk well. I attribute her recovery, with the blessing of God, to the use of your invaluable medicine. With grateful remembrance, I am, yours truly, W. B. JENKINS.

WEST POINT, Ga., Sept. 15, 1879.

Genl.—The above certificate of W. B. Jenkins we know and certify to as true. The thing is so; hundreds of others respect ed citizens will certify to it. As much reference can be given as may be required. Yrs truly, CRAWFORD WALKER, DRUGGIST, HON. H. D. WILLIAMS.

Dr. Pemberton's Stillingia is prepared by A. F. Merrill & Co., Phila. Pa. Sold by all Druggists in $1.00 bottles, or sent by express. Agents wanted to carry over who can send for "Curious Story" free of all. Medicines sent to poor people gratis.
