General S. L. Woodford went to Louis iana and told the Democracy that the school h ase must take the place of the shot-gun - Boston Journal. This proves that he General is an ass. How does he expect a man is going to take a schoolhouse on his shoulder and go into the we or 's to about a coon? How does he expect a school-house to blow the head off of a map who didn't know it was loaded? How does he expect Senator Conkling to blush and look embarrassed at the mention of a schoolhouse? Oa, yes; it's clear case - Boston Post.

Alexandria, Princees of Wales, has just praise. passed her thirty-fifth birthday. It is one of the sad consequences of royal station that Queens and Princesses are obliged to see every succeeding birthday chronicled and celebrated; unlike the comparatively humble Angelina, they can't remain at twenty-five for ten years. But of this fair Danish Princess it must be said that succeeding seasons leave her only more fair, and the charm of her simple, kindly, gracious ladyhood grows greater day by day. She was never prettier than at this time be the recipients crour especial LOW.

He led a suffering, homeless, persacuted life and died an ignominious, horiable death to do the will of His Father and to redeem the world from the darkness of sin and the horrors of the grave. He encured every conceivable insult, abuse, trial and ignominy that we, the creatures of His boundless and unfathomable love and mercy, might have reason for gratitude, hope, joy and

It is right and proper that we should celebrate joyfully and thankfully the birthday of the world's greatest benefac tor, that we should take the occasion to impress upon the minds of our children sentiments of gratitude and thankfulness for the boundless love and mercy He has brought to them and to us, that they, the creatures of God's wonderful love, beautiful blossoms making fragrant and pleasant the rude pathway of life, should attention and care, and that as we lead their young minds to feelings of gratitude by suitable presents and tokens of our love we may impress upon them the love made direct experiments with the blood they owe to Him whose birth we celebrate. Let us all rejoice in the glorious even and for the time throw care, toil and the every day business of life to the winds of Heaven. With hearts gladdened by the inestimable gift which our Saviour has conterred upon us, let us make merry the hearts. of those by whom God h s surrounded and blessed us by gifts and feasting and joy Let us try to make the day a"Merry Curistmas" indeed, to all.
