ENTERED AT THE POSTOFFICE AT WILMINGTON, N. C., AS SECOND-CLASS MATTER.

VIEW AND REVIEW.

Colorado has uncommonly big avalanches this winter, and one of them covered a house with so much snow that the men in side were ten hours digging their way out.

Mal-Gen. Chamberlain, who commands the Maine militia, is the officer who was designated by Gen. Grant to accept Gen. Lee's surrender. He is an admirer of Hayes, endorses his policy, and is what is known in Maine as an anti-Blaine Republican.

Freedmen emigrants from Texas to Kansas, according to the Dallas (Texas) Herald, are returning in considerable numbers, and some of them report inhospitable treatment by the citizens of Kansas and suffering from the cold weather.

The figures from the California, Nevada and Utah mines for 1879 show a heavy falling off in production as compared with the previous year, while the Colorado and Dakota mines show a heavy increase. The production of the new Leadville district in Colorado has been enormous.

M. Bertillon, the French savant, says that the number of suicides in France is at the rate of 625 per million for widowers 275 for bachelors, and 249 for married men, and that offences against the person are 50 per cent, and against property 45 per cent, less on the part of married than unmarried men.

Mrs. Mary Jane Tweed, widow of William M. Tweed, is said to be in New York, for $18,750, a house and lot on the North side of West Thirty-sixth street, 290 feet 3 inches east of Sixth avenue. The deed was executed in Paris, France, on Dec. 29, 1879, and acknowledged before United States Vice-Consul Gen. Robert C. Hooper.

The Buffalo Express says the report that the Vanderbilt estate made $30,000,000, Jay Gould $10,000,000, Russell Sage $40,000,000, etc. etc., in stocks the past year, sounds pretty large. But if they simply held what they had, the rise in prices would have enriched them greatly and they doubtless took full advantage of the advance.

Railroad companies usually carry traveling show companies at half or two-thirds the regular rate. This concession has been taken advantage of in the West. It is said by the agent of a small circus, met quietly in a public manner. He would go to the passenger agent and buy five tickets at the reduced price, claiming he had the number of persons in his troupe, but there were really only three, and the other thirty-five tickets "went" at a sufficient profit to get his own people carried free.

The N. Y. Sun says. A woman at Nyack, N. Y., subdued an adopted girl by whipping her with thorns and then bathing her back with vinegar and salt, leaving her all night on her feet, tied to a bedpost, rubbing red pepper in her mouth, and various other tortures. One day she told the child to go up stairs and undress; preparatory to being whipped until the blood ran down her legs. There was no reason to doubt the promise, and the girl therefore jumped out of the second story, fled naked to the woods and froze nearly to death before she was discovered.

Miss Th. Petrusson, a daughter of the Bishop of Reykjavik, Iceland, made an ascent of the great volcano Hecla, before the end of the summer, for the purpose of making geological observations. The temperature of the sides of the larger craters she found had recently undergone a considerable increase; and from a number of very small fissures and holes on these craters there arose heavy white columns of vapor, the sulphurous character of which was much stronger than for a long time past. From these circumstances it is inferred that a new eruption of the volcano is probably to be expected. This is considered the more likely, as, since the last eruption, the period of quiescence usually observed between the outbreaks of Hecla has already been long since exceeded. The last eruption took place in the year 1845.

No more Hard Times.

If you will stop spending so much on fine clothes, rich food and style, buy good, healthy food, cheaper and better clothing; get more real and substantial things of life every way, and especially stop the foolish habit of employing expensive, quack doctors or using so much of the vile humberg medicine that does you only harm, but put your trust in that simple, pure remedy, Hop Bitters; that cures away at a trifling cost, and you will see good times and have good health, in another column.

REVOLUTION IN THE NORTH.

We have often heard the cry of treason and rebellion from the stalwart organs of the North, predicting another outbreak of war, unless the South was kept manacled as in the days of reconstruction, when free and sovereign States, like the Carolina and Virginia, were governed by special orders from the headquarters of the military satrap, Canby. We then predicted that the first treason and rebellion likely ever to show itself in this country would be in the States where that sacred instrument, the Constitution of the United States, the fundamental law of the land, and the grand arch upon which this whole confederation of States and the structure of free government rests, is so openly violated every day; and so it has come to pass, just as the law-abiding citizens of the South foretold. Louisiana and South Carolina, Florida and other Southern States could be made to suffer, and their legal rights under the constitution denied them, while the bayonets of the army were employed as forcible arguments to compel a compliance with the rape upon these State governments. But let a suspicion of unfairness be raised by the conduct of a Returning Board in the Northern States and presto change! We have such truly loyal organs as the Chicago Inter-Ocean giving the following advice to the citizens of Maine:

It seems to the Inter-Ocean that there is a short and speedy way out of this entanglement. It is said that the President of the Senate will assume, or try to assume, the duties of Governor until his successor is properly elected. Whether he has a right to do this is a question about which even he himself has grave doubts. It is by no means certain that the commander of the militia, General Chamberlain, will recognize his authority, but it is very certain that if the fairly chosen members of the Legislature proceed to elect the qualified fair play Governor, Mr. Davis, to the executive office, General Chamberlain will recognize him, and proceed to put down any rebellion against his authority.

It does not matter that this cannot be done in such a manner as to comply with every technical point of the law. Nothing can be done now that is not a disregard in some shape of the forms prescribed for organization and action. The Fusionists violated law, not only in its letter, but in its spirit, to bring about the mudslide. The Republicans can afford to step forward and sacrifice a few terms to save the State from lawlessness, and carry out the expressed will of the people.

Therefore, let the stately Republican members of the House assemble and send into the Senate the names of the candidates for Governor. Then let the nineteen Republican members of the Senate proceed to elect Mr. Davis. Upon being elected, let him assume authority, and if there is any opposition put it down by the whole force of the Senate. If such a course is pursued we doubt not the opposition will melt away like snow under a midsummer sun. What is wanted in Maine to-day, and perhaps what has been wanting all the while, is a little more boldness and determination. There are times when men need to forget technicalities. Emergencies arise never contemplated by the framers of constitutions or statutes, and for which, in consequence, no provision is made. Mr. Lincoln was met by many such difficulties while President, and with all a lawyer's love of legal methods he did not hesitate to take responsibility when necessary, and act even at the risk of offending some technical letter of law.

It will be noticed therefore from the above extract of the sentiments of that true representative of the God and morally party of the North, the editor of the Inter-Ocean, that revolution and an open violation of the law—technicalities of the law as this worthy scion in politics of the Republican party terms it—is urged upon the Republicans of Maine, and even Abraham Lincoln the first president of the United States who became sectional president, and the first president who perjured himself by violating the solemn oath of office to protect and defend the constitution of the United States, is quoted as an example of a law breaker, and a revolutionist, when the emergencies of the case suited from his stand point. But, it is none of our revolution, and it will be none of our funeral, unless the contagion of revolution spreads and is caught up in adjoining States and so permeates the whole Republic until it ends in a centralized despotism; then, we shall mourn sincerely for the downfall of free institutions—and we will all have cause to mourn, for the destroyers of the government will be the creators of the despotism that follows, and the rulers of the people. Unless a return to honest government and an honest administration of public affairs is speedily accomplished, the people of this whole country will have cause to weep, indeed for the downfall of free government, and what they see in Maine, is only the beginning of the end of the Republic.

CONGRESSIONAL LABORS.

It seems to us that the financial condition of the country is good enough for the present. It also seems to us that there are other matters connected with governmental affairs which need attention, and to which our law-makers in Congress might devote their best and undivided efforts for a large portion of the present session, without wasting precious moments in tinkering with that which is at present no cause for complaint. Thus far, about all the business which has claimed the attention of either House of Congress during the session has been to meddle with the vexed currency question. There is no financial distress to demand such a waste of time on a matter which is well enough as it is. Money is circulating freely, and, as a consequence, the business of the country is brisk and constantly improving. The vast quantities which had been hoarded up in banks or invested in securities, have been unlocked and are being absorbed by the people throughout the country, and, while no single individual may have received a fortune in the operation, all have a share, and the country experiences the benefit in the general revival and buoyancy of a business enterprise.

The fact is, the session preceding the national conventions of the different political parties and the subsequent Presidential contest, has ever been more devoted to preparation for the campaign than it has to the best interests of the people, and from every indication, the present will be no exception to the rule. The personal aims of political aspirants are to be ground, whether the interests of the country and the people are subserved or not.

The present session, although every one hoped it would be short, bids fair to be an unusually long one, probably not reaching adjournment until the convention to nominate a candidate for the Presidency has been held by one or both of the great political parties of the country. It is hardly possible that some needed legislation will not be attended to in all this time, but there is no indication which now points in that direction.

Dr. Mott's Endorsement of Spear's Port Grape Wine.

The following, from the celebrated Dr. Mott of New York, speaks wondrously for Mr. Spear's efforts to raise the Oporto Grape in New Jersey: 62 MADISON AVENUE, NEW YORK, April 11, 1878. MR. ALFRED SPEAR.—Dear Sir: The visit which I made last year to your vineyards, wine-presses and vaults at Passaic, N. J., satisfied me thoroughly that the wines manufactured by you are pure and unadulterated, and the very best that can be offered to the public for medicinal uses.

Acting upon my favorable impressions at the time, I have since recommended the Port Wine more particularly in my practice, and am satisfied, with marked benefit, to my patients. There can be no better proof to the doubting mind, as to the Wine being made of the finest Oporto Grape, than a visit to the acres of land covered with the vine bearing the luxuriant fruit. Wishing you success in your praiseworthy enterprise, remain respectfully yours, ALEX. B. MOTT, M. D., Prof. of Surgery, Bellevue Hosp. Med'l College, &c., &c. For sale by J. C. Manda, Green & Flanner, P. L. Bridgers & Co.
