As You Like It.
Miss Louise Pomeroy and troupe will appear in Shakespeare's comedy, "As You Like It," this evening. They have been greatly with large-bouses wherever they have appeared, and the papers speak well of their performances. Among the troupe are persons who are well known to the theatre going public of this city and we have no doubt but that the troupe will fully sustain the reputation they have now. An exchange says:
'Rosalind' is one of Shakespeare's most exquisite creations, and a character that requires personal beauty, genuine dramatic feeling and grace in its representation.
Louise Pomeroy as Rosalind can have but few equals, and scarcely a superior, on the stage. While in the character proper she is fine, it is while she is masquerading in the forest of Ardenne, in the character of Ganymede, that her histrionic ability is brought out in its fullest relief. The scene with Orlando in the forest is a perfect chef d'oeuvre of excellent acting, only rivaled by that other scene where the brother of Orlando comes upon the scene. Her acting is exquisite. Mr. W. H. Leake, as Jaques, is grand. With a magnificent voice, a perfect articulation, an absolutely correct reading, and an admirable conception of the character, Mr. Leake has made himself Jaques, as Miss Pomeroy is Rosalind. The Orlando of the play, Mr. Roberts, is also excellent, and Miss Spencer, as Celia, also deserves great praise. In short, the entire support is far above the average, and all are entitled to much credit.

The Protestant Sisterhood in Wil- mington—A Candidate Admitted to the Order.

There was an interesting service at St. James' Church yesterday—the more interesting, perhaps, because novel—the admission of a lady into the Protestant Sisterhood of the Good Shepherd. The great efficiency of this sort of agency in the Roman Catholic Communion has long been evident even to Protestants, who, while opposed to the religious system of Roman Catholics in other respects have been wont to make a large amount of exception in favor of this part of it. It has been said that the sincerest form of praise is imitation. Of late years various Protestant bodies have given this testimony to the value of the Roman Catholic Sisterhoods. Not only in Episcopal England, but in Lutheran Germany, and elsewhere, there have been, for now many years, organizations of a like sort and as has been thought greatly to the advantage of those who have adopted them. They have argued, 'If others have an army, it is is no reason why we should not have one too, but, on the contrary, all the more reason why we should have one. If in their army a certain arm of the service —a peculiar organization—has been found especially effective, why should we not have for ourselves a similar advantage?
And besides, this idea of associated work by bodies, separated for the purpose, is a part of our common heritage.' And so the Sisterhood principle has come to be grafted upon the work of the Protestant Church in this country, as well as in Europe. Comparatively unfamiliar as it may be to us, it has for years been well known in other Dioceses of the Episcopal Church in the United States; in the South as well as in the North.

But the event of yesterday was the first of the kind just here. The services, conducted by the venerable head of the Diocese, Bishop Atkinson, was in itself solemn and impressive, and was looked upon, and listened to, with a deep interest by the congregation.

After a very interesting sermon by the Bishop, setting forth the history of Sisterhoods, and the principles upon which those among Protestants have been conducted, the candidate, who had previously been required to pass through a probation of eighteen months, was presented to the Bishop; seated in his chair within the chancel, by the Presiding Sister of the Order, who had come from New York for the purpose. In this service, the manual of the Sisterhood, of the Good Shepherd was used by the authority canonically recognized in the Bishop of each Diocese, "to set forth forms of Prayer, &c, for extraordinary occasions." After an address to the congregation on the objects of the Sisterhood, the Bishop, turning to the candidate, urged upon her the solemn character of the step she was about to take, and received her pledges of diligence, subordination, watchfulness and prayer. Then, taking her by the hand, he received her into the fellowship of the Sisterhood of the Good Shepherd.
We hope that the Bishop's sermon may appear in print. Many of those who heard it, and many who did not, would be glad to have the opportunity to read it.

It would be a mistake to infer from what we have said that this is the beginning of Protestant Sisterhood work in Wilmington. For two years such organized work has been conducted most efficiently, and most acceptably to those for whose benefit it is chiefly intended in connection with the mission work of St. James' Parish, having its headquarters at St. James' Home on Orange street.
From this centre, an organized work of great value has been carried on for some years, among the poor and the suffering. A free school for whites, at present numbering about 60 children, has been maintained there, latterly under the charge of the Sisterhood of the Good Shepherd. Regular family and neighborhood gatherings for instruction and devotion have been kept up. In some cases, the destitute sick have been taken into the house and nursed. Penitent women have found there a respite from temptation, and a quiet home, where they could collect themselves, and make a fresh start for virtue and happiness. The destitute, aged and orphan have from time to time found an asylum.
In many ways, much has been accomplished. Why not, good people, give this institution a helping hand?
It has done large good already, and, if you will enable it, can do much more.

Besides all that has been urged in its favor, let this be added, viz: that by the principles it is seeking to instill it is an important contributor to the peace and good order of society. The well-known proverb might be enlarged and it might be well to remember that not curses only but blessings also "like chickens come home to roost."

The Operetta Again.
The operetta given at the Opera House last Friday night under the auspices of the Ladies whose names appear in the correspondence published below, we understand is to be repeated on Thursday night of this week—and in mentioning this fact we are requested by the gentlemen to state that Thursday night was decided upon because it was the only evening this week in which the Opera House was not engaged. We also understand that the Cornet Concert Club have kindly tendered their services for the occasion, which have been accepted. The Dramatic Association, composed of a number of young gentlemen of this city, we also learn have volunteered to sing glee songs during the intermissions and will give a short performance also at the close of the Operetta. One of the sweetest lady vocalists in this city, we are also told, will sing in compliment to one of the gentlemen who was instrumental in requesting a repetition of the Operetta, 'Within a Mile of Edinboro Town.' The correspondence alluded to above is as follows: WILMINGTON, N. C. 31st Jan., 1880.
Misses Durr and James, &c, &c; LADIES:
The undersigned most respectfully congratulate you upon the extraordinary and well merited success of the entertainment given in the Opera House last evening under your direction for the benefit of St. John's Church, and have the honor to request that you will kindly arrange for a repetition of the Operetta for your own benefit, and in order that many persons who were unable to procure seats upon its recent rendition may share in the enjoyment of one of the most delicious entertainments ever offered to our community.

Very Respectfully,

Wilmington, Jan. 31st, 1880.
GENTLEMEN:
The kind and flattering compliment which you have extended to us in your note of today, in regard to the repetition of the Operetta of "Red Ridinghood" is gratifying to us in the highest degree.
We are sure that our first object was for the benefit and relief of the Church, and our next to please our friends; if we have succeeded in both, as you have so kindly intimated, then at your request we will consent to a repetition of the Operetta, at a time which may be agreed upon by those desiring it.
With sincere thanks for your flattering notice of our poor endeavors.
We are, very respectfully, MISSIS DURR & JAMES.

To Messrs,
D. G. WORTH,
B. F. MITCHELL,
J. W. ATKINSON,
NORWOOD GILES,
