(N. E. CORNER OF MARKET AND SECOND STREETS.)

WE TAKE THIS OPPORTUNITY of thanking the general public for their very liberal patronage in the above branch of our business and desire to state that at no time since our first opening have we ever carried such an assortment as at present. Having anticipated the recent great advance in such goods, we are now fully prepared to offer the Largest and Cheapest assortment ever shown in this section at any time. We can with truthfulness assert that our stock is more than double the size of any other of this kind south of Baltimore. It is a very easy matter to call in and verify the above statement.

We would also add that we have of late added several new departments to the above, which we retail at higher prices, consisting of many useful articles in Housekeeping, &c., such as we have a demand for, and in future it will be our endeavor to keep adding any and everything we can buy useful and below value. Our intention is to make this THE Store of the South for Bargains of all Kinds.

We understand that Capt. F. M. Wooten expects to ship garden peas from his farm near this city the last of this week or the first of next week.

The weeping willows are looking very pretty in their fresh green foliage—many of the flowering plants are in full blossom and the fruit trees are rapidly budding out under the influence of the recent warm weather.

Like most other weather prophecies this season, that of the goose bone has signally failed. It said our coldest weather would be about the middle of February and that thence on we would need our warmest fires.

The season for dressed fowls and pork is nearly at an end. The warm weather of the past two or three weeks greatly limited the demand as well as the supply of these articles. In respect to the better varieties of game, the season ended some time ago.

True success results from true merit. Hall's Vegetable Sicilian Hair Renewer is placed before the public, resting solely on its own merits. Its success is already indisputable.

Everybody can get suited with a Pocket Knife, also Table Cutlery, at JACOBI'S Hardware Depot.

With the opening of the spring comes the spirit of improvement. New houses are to be built and old ones altered and repaired; the painter and whitewasher will find work to do; what one man expends another will make and so the money will be put in motion

Clement Attachment to be Erected.
The engine and machinery of the Old Clarendon Works, in the Southwestern portion of this city, have been bought by Dr. E. Porter, of Rocky Point, and are being removed to his farm. The engine and machinery will be used in running a cotton gin, grist mill and machinery for picking and cleaning peanuts.—As soon as the 'Old Clarendon' machinery is put into position Dr. Porter will erect a Clement Attachment and a rice mill. It is also his determination to start in a short time the manufacture of smoking tobacco. Dr. Porter's Clement Attachment, we think, is the only one in this State at present. It is to be hoped that others of our farmers will erect the Clement Attachments, as much good can be done by the use of them.

Don't.
Don't speak angrily to a child. Don't kick a dog when he is asleep. Don't go back on the friends of your parents. Don't often visit your neighbors at meal time. Don't neglect a cough thinking it will cure itself. (Thousands die of consumption by so doing.) Don't forget Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, for it cures a cough or cold in one-half the time required by any other medicine, and is the only medicine known that positively cures consumption in its early stages. Sold by druggists.

Is Oleomargarine Sold in this Market?
The above question is often asked us, but as we are not experts we really cannot answer it. Persons at the North who claim to be experts and who say they can readily tell butter from the spurious article, have proven themselves on a test either to be blowhards or only good judges of butter. Oleomargarine is made to resemble butter so closely, as well as to taste color and smell, that from what we can learn it takes a chemical analysis to definitely ascertain the one from the other. The only safeguard we have against the use of oleomargarine in this community is the groceryman of this city. They generally know the character of the Northern jobbers whom they buy of, and if they will use due precaution, as no doubt they do, we may be spared from eating dirty tallow and beef stall grease, which is known to the trade as oleomargarine, but which is masquerading around the country as butter.

Memorial Services.
The Memorial Services held in the Temple of Israel on Sunday last, in honor of the memory of the late Isaac Adolph Cremieux, of France, were largely attended and were of a very interesting character. Resolutions which were adopted by the Trustees, relative to the death of M. Cremieux, were read by Mr. J. I. Macks, and a very feeling and touching eulogy of the eminent deceased was delivered by Rev. S. Mendelsohn. Hymns were sung and a collection was taken up in support of the Alliance Universelle.

It is interesting to know that not only in Wilmington, but throughout many parts of the country, honors were rendered on Sunday last to the memory of the illustrious dead. In New York they were especially impressive. They were held in the Temple Emanuel, corner of Fifth Avenue and Forty-third street, and the attendance was very large. There were several eulogies made on this occasion. Eleven congregations were assembled as one.

Isaac Adolphe Cremieux, ex-Minister of Justice and Senator for life of France died on Feb. 10th in the eighty-fourth year of his age. He was buried with public honors in the Mont Parussae Cemetery. M. Cremieux was President of the Alliance Israelite Universelle and, next to Benj. Disraeli, was the most prominent man of his race in the world in public life.

The storm signal still floats with the wind from the North and a cold rain. Thus far, however, it is thought that there has been no decided injury to the truck farms.

Time is money, but health is happiness. If you have a bad or Cough Cold, use Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup. It will cure you. Price 25 cents.

A Daring Deed.
There is no question about it. One of the most gallant and daring spirits of the late war, on the Federal side, was Lieutenant Cushing, of the United States Navy, a near relation, by the way, to Mr. E. M. Cushing, of this city. Lieut. Cushing, who was an officer in one of the men-of-war off the Bar during the last months of the war, made two separate trips into the Cape Fear by night, in a small boat, passing with muffled oars up the river, and returning in safety to his vessel. In one of these excursions he came up as far as Town Creek, up which he rowed about two miles, encamping there one night near the barn on the old Howard place. It is said that he also came to Wilmington, but there is no reason for believing this to be true. In one of his two exploits he had the daring to visit Smithville, and captured there, from Gen. Hebert's headquarters, Capt. Kelly, that officer's Inspector General. The following particulars of this feat we find in the Philadelphia Press. It is correct in every substantial point just as we heard it from the lips of Lieut. Hebert, who, to use his own expression, thought that 'every Yankee out of hell was in Smithville that night.' The following is the account alluded to:

The most daring feat of all Lieutenant Cushing's many exploits is yet to be told. I allude to the capture of General Louis Hebert's Inspector General, Captain Kelly, right out of headquarters, within forty feet of a garrison of 200 men and five pieces of heavy artillery in the winter of 1864, at Smithville, near the mouth of Cape Fear River, North Carolina. The writer of this was Assistant Adjutant General's Clerk on the staff of General Hebert, commanding the defenses at the mouth of the Cape Fear River, headquarters at Smithville, N. C., and had his sleeping apartments in the same building where the office was. The General's house was just across the street, in the rear of the office, and opposite the garrison quarters, where the troops quartered. The river was in front of all. Lieutenant Cushing, in a small boat with six men, came in from the blockading fleet, passed Fort Caswell and the works on Bald Head up the bay, and landed at some old salt works, just a hundred yards or so above the Smithville Battery, Fort Pender, came up into the village, past the garrison quarters and across the street to General Hebert's house.

The house was a large building with a piazza in front. It was about 11 o'clock at night. The commissioned staff of General Hebert consisted of Major William D. Hardean, Assistant Adjutant General; Captain John Kelly, Inspector General, and Lieutenant Valery Hebert, aide-de-camp. The General and his aid had their sleeping apartments up-stairs; Major Hardean and Captain Kelly downstairs in the first room next to the north entrance. The two Confederate officers were undressed and about to retire when Major Hardean, hearing the footsteps on the piazza, and supposing they were made by his servant, who sometimes frequented the front piazza at night, raised a sash to bid him retire when a heavy navy pistol was thrust into his face and a demand to surrender made in a firm tone. But Hardean was of iron nerve and great bravery. He saw and comprehended the situation at a glance, and pushing the pistol to one side, he threw down the sash and escaped out of the back entrance of the house, telling Captain Kelly, as he passed out, to follow him, as 'the enemy are upon us.' Kelly did not comprehend, or was pushed too closely by the Federals, and failed to follow and was captured. Cushing, finding that some one had escaped, at once secured Kelly in his night-clothes and beat a retreat to his boat, and succeeded in getting back to his fleet safely with his prisoner. General Hebert happened to be in Wilmington that night. Lieutenant Hebert heard the noise below, but had the presence of mind to keep quiet, and in the hurry escaped capture. Next day, under a flag, a note was sent off by Captain Kelly to Major Hardean, who met Lieutenant Cushing on the beach below Caswell. Captain Kelly's trunk was sent to him, and Lieutenant Cushing expressed to Major Hardean his sincere regret that General Hebert had been absent, and hoped when he next paid him a visit he would find him at home; he was somewhat consoled, however, in finding his Inspector General, Captain Kelly. Thus ended this most daring and partially successful exploit of Lieutenant Cushing.

Agricultural Insurance.
Messrs. John W. Gordon & Bro. advertise in another column of this paper something to us, of a new feature in insurance. They have obtained the agency here for the Agricultural Insurance Company, of New York, which is really an unusually strong company. It insures nothing but dwellings and their contents and farm property, and for this class of risks it offers special inducements. Messrs. Gordon & Bro. are general agents for the State and will establish sub agencies, on application from reliable parties.

Once More to the Breach
We hear that less than a baker's dozen of Greenbackers assembled in the Fifth Ward last night for a pow wow, but the crowd, we are told, was augmented later by the attendance of some twenty or twenty five Democrats, who were led there by curiosity and whose presence swelled the meeting to a respectable size. Several speeches were made and the country saved, as usual, which means that a few ambitious office-seekers found vent to let off a little superfluous gas to their own glorification—as they imagine.

Rev. Dr. Wilson's Lecture.
It was an unusually fine and intelligent audience which assembled at the Opera House last night to listen to the lecture of Rev. Dr. Wilson. The subject chosen was 'Success,' and is one of the lectures of a course gotten up for the benefit of the Library Association of this city.

The lectures were introduced in a few felicitous remarks by Mr. C. H. Robinson.

Dr. Wilson said that although success was a natural aspiration of the human mind it was not easy to describe its true character nor to point out the way by which it could always be achieved. It was a term usually applied to those who had become celebrated or noted by a sudden rise to affluence or position, with but little regard to the means by which either was attained. This the speaker conceived to be not real success, and he proceeded to point out what constitutes a genuine and desirable success, which with a well-directed effort was within the reach of every one.

The lecture was instructive and interesting throughout; was graceful in style and scholarly in its language and was listened to with profound attention and admiration by the large assemblage of intelligent, cultured and refined persons who were present.

City Court.
George Hill, the colored individual mentioned in the Review yesterday afternoon as being engaged in a little irregular transaction in regard to some beeswax, and also a tarpaulin, the property of Messrs. Kidder & Sons, was arraigned this morning before the Mayor, charged with larceny in two cases. The first case called was the tarpaulin case, which Mr. G. P. Kidder testified as being the property of the firm of Messrs. E. Kidder & Sons, which had been stolen from their premises on Friday night or early Saturday morning last. Mr. Watson, proprietor of an establishment on North Water street, testified that the tarpaulin was carried to his place by a colored drayman, Tom McClammy early Saturday morning, and McClammy testified that George Hill was the person who employed him to take the tarpaulin on his dray Saturday morning from the foot of Princess street to Mr. Watson's shop to have it disposed of.

In the case charging defendant with the larceny of beeswax, the facts elicited were substantially the same as published in the Review yesterday afternoon. Mr. Madden, of the Steamship Company, and Messrs. Sam Bear, Jr., and E. F. Johnson corroborated the statement published, which was in effect that a bag of wax, marked to Mr. Morris Bear, was received by the steamer North State and discharged upon the wharf and afterwards stolen; that the same wax was fired for sale by the defendant, George Hill, to Mr. Johnson, who seeing the mark upon the bag induced Hill to go to Mr. Bear's store with him, where he was given over to the hands of a policeman. After hearing the evidence the Mayor bound the defendant over in each case for his appearance at the next term of the Criminal Court. In default of bail the prisoner was committed. The Court then adjourned.

The scaffolding in the interior of the new Market House is being taken down to day and the finishing touches of paint are being put on the stalls, etc.

PLEASE NOTICE.
We will be glad to receive communications from our friends on any and all subjects of general interest but:
