Handsome Done.
The New York Herald, of Sunday's date, pays a very handsome compliment, and one which we are satisfied is fully deserved, to the firm of Hinson & Cumming. It is in the Herald's cotton market report that the reference to these gentlemen, which is as follows, is made:
Messrs. Hinson & Cumming, whose subscription of payment was recently enforced by the failure of some of their constituents, resume full payment Monday next. The official announcement of the fact was received on "Change with unusual expressions of pleasure, the firm having become very popular, always showing the largest liberality in their business methods and using great recuperative energy in the present emergency.

The Lecture To-Night
The Rev. Dr. Fritchard's lecture upon "The One Thing Necessary to the Development of North Carolina," is to be delivered to-night at the Opera House, under the auspices of the Wilmington Library Association, and we hope to see a large attendance on this occasion to welcome the distinguished divine to our city. Dr. Fritchard comes to us, not as one altogether unknown, but as an eminent minister of the Baptist Church in this State, and one who has occupied a very prominent position in the Church for many years preceding his election to the Presidency of Wake Forest College, a position which he very worthily and acceptably fills now. His theme is one which should be of deep interest to every citizen of this State, no matter whether they are North Carolinians by nativity or adoption. We hope, therefore, to see a large audience at the Opera House this evening.

Indications.
For the South Atlantic States warmer, clear or partly cloudy weather, southerly winds, falling barometer.

We can recommend our readers to use Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup in all cases of Coughs, Colds etc. It costs only 25 cents a bottle and is warranted to cure.

THE LATE FIRE.

Some Recollections of Ye Olden Time in Wilmington

There are some facts connected with the buildings which were destroyed by fire on Sunday morning, and the neighborhood, which possess some interest to our people. The Star states this morning that the building on the corner, and that occupied by Mr. Peck, were erected on the site of other buildings which were, as the Star alleges, destroyed by fire in 1814. The same information was furnished to us yesterday and we are inclined to think that there is a mistake somewhere. Two old citizens of this place, who were boys in 1814, give us their impression that these buildings were older than they are. They certainly date back a very long time. It will be remembered by all that the floor of Mr. Rush's store was a foot or more lower than the street, and yet, when the present century was much younger than it is now this store was above the level of the street and one entering it had to mount several steps to get to the door. At that time South Front street, between Market and Orange, was much lower than it is now; and in fact, it was a ravine, bounded by hills on either side, East and West. Just where the New Market House is now located there was considerable of a hill and this was leveled and the dirt thrown into the street to fill it up. On the opposite side of the street, on the vacant lot where was formerly the site of the First Presbyterian Church, the building which was destroyed by fire a few years previous to the breaking out of the late war, there was also a hill and this was levelled and the dirt thrown into a pond in the rear, between the Church and the building on Second street, erected by the late Isaac Northrop, and recently owned and occupied by Mr. H. Marcus.

Some reminiscences of one of the gentlemen alluded to above, relative to the disastrous fire which have devastated Wilmington for three-fourths of a century past, which were recalled by the destruction of the two old landmarks on South Front street, will not be devoid of interest at this time. The first fire of which this gentleman has any recollection, occurred on a Sunday in the year 1811, when he was but five years of age. It was caused by lightning and was located in a low grocery which was kept in a wooden building near the corner of Market and Second streets. At the time a colored man was in the place taking a drink of rum, and it is supposed that the shock must have reached him as he ran into the street for a few steps, and immediately expired. But whether it was the lightning from the clouds or the lightning from the bottle which struck him, that darkey never knew. Not only the grocery, but the entire block, now known as the Bettencourt block, was consumed at that fire.

The next, and by far the most disastrous fire, occurred in the year 1819. This fire consumed four entire squares, with some few isolated exceptions. These squares were embraced in the district from Water to Second, and from Market to Orange streets, which included that portion of the city so recently destroyed. Our informant has no recollection of any important fire occurring in the year 1814. The house on the corner of Dock and Front streets was occupied in 1819 by the late Thomas Loring, the "Nestor of North Carolina journalism," who there had a printing press above and a bookstore below. His paper was called the Cape Fear Recorder, and it afterwards passed through many hands and finally expired while the venerable Archibald McLane Hooper was its editor. The two recently destroyed buildings were among the few which escaped the fire of 1819.

Previous to the fire of 1819, where the brick building now occupied by Messrs. Hart, Bailey & Co. now stands, there was a long two-story wooden tenement, a part of which was occupied by Dr. LaRoque, a brother-in-law of Rev. Jesse Jennett, the venerable pastor of the old Methodist Church. The corner house, after Mr. Loring left it was occupied for a number of years by a man by the name of Kellogg, and not until later years [since 1855] was it occupied by Keeter, the barber, and since Keeter's time it has been occupied variously as a bar-room, shoe store, grocery, &c., &c. The building next north of it, late Peck's store, was owned and occupied by an old eccentric, Mr. Seth Hoard. The lower part was used by him as a crockery store, and the upper part of the building as a private boarding house.

The next great fire in Wilmington took place in 1827, when the square bounded by Front, Market, Dock and South Water streets was destroyed. The two succeeding fires, both of them large and disastrous, are within the recollection of many persons now living. We allude to the Dawson fire, so-called because it originated in Mr. John Dawson's store which consumed among other buildings, the old court house which stood at the intersection of Market and Front streets and the great conflagration of Sunday, April 30th, 1843, which destroyed a large portion of the city north of Market and west of Second streets, even reaching the Wilmington & Weldon railroad depot and burning the offices, machine shops, foundry, &c.

There was also another disastrous fire which occurred in 1846, and which consumed a large portion of the square bounded by Market, Front, Dock and South Water streets. It was at this fire that Col. John McRae and the late Col. James T. Miller received injuries by the falling of a wall which lamed them for life.

City Court.

Jas D. Dry, colored, City Scavenger charged with violating a city ordinance, was the first case on docket. Numerous witnesses of the colored persuasion were introduced on the part of Laugden Perkins, the prosecutor in the case, but none could swear positively. Per contra, Health Officer Scharf swore positively in behalf of the defense. The Mayor then dismissed the case at the prosecutor's cost, from which he took an appeal, but afterwards reconsidered the appeal and submitted to the judgment of the City Court.

Janus Bell, colored, charged with being drunk and down, was the next case on docket. The defendant was ordered discharged upon payment of costs.

Laura Waddell, colored, charged with disorderly conduct in Paddy's Hollow last night, was ordered to pay a fine of $2.50 or go to the C. P. for three days. The defendant accepted the alternative and retired to a cell for the space of three days. The Court then adjourned.

Fire Notes.

We have ascertained from eye-witnesses that the recent disastrous fire originated in the ice house of Messrs. Ahrens & Haar, used as a store house by Messrs. Preston Cumming & Co. James Churchhill, the barber, says that the shop in which he worked had just closed up and he, together with C. H. Ward, the proprietor of the shop, was on his way home. Their attention was attracted by a rumbling sound, which they thought was the wind, but in a few seconds they discovered flames issuing from the West end of the icehouse. They ran in daintily to it and forced open the door. The interior of the building was a sheet of seething flames, which leaped out of the door, and the steps leading up to Mr. Solomon's dwelling, over Mr. Rush's store, were speedily enveloped. By pounding on the doors and windows they succeeded in arousing Mr. Solomon's family who were headed out of a door over Rush's store, on Front street. The family barely got out of the burning building with their lives, and the baby, which was the last one gotten out, was black in the face from strangulation when taken out by C. Crebill.

The wounded are doing nicely and Mr. Farrow is considered out of all danger.

Mr. Geo. A. Peck commenced to-day clearing away the debris and tearing down the old walls preparatory to rebuilding. He contemplates having a new store on the old site in six weeks. The fire is still burning in the icehouse and will probably burn for several days or until it is put out. As stated by us yesterday Messrs. Ahrens & Haar will also rebuild, making the store on the corner larger and more attractive than the old one.

Multitudes of People require an Alternative to restore the healthy action of their system and correct the derangements that creep into it. AYER'S SERRAPHELLE tones and vitalizes the blood, and restores the vigor of the health.

Ghosts.
Not Col. Inger soll's "aristocracy of th air," but real human ghosts. Ghosts that were once healthy men and women, but are now simply the 'ghosts of what they once were.' As we meet them, and inquire the cause of all this change, they repeat the old, old story, 'a cold,' 'neglected cough,' 'catarrh,' 'overwork,' or 'dyspepsia,' 'liver complaint,' and 'constipation,' with unsuccessful physicians and remedies. In offering his Golden Medical Discovery and Pleasant Purgative Pellets for the cure of the above affections, Dr Pierce does not recommend them as a 'sure cure' in all stages. For if the lungs be half wasted away, or there be a cancerous complication, no physician or medicine can cure. The Discovery is, however, an unequalled pectoral and blood purifier. It speedily cures the most aggravated cough, or cold, and in its early or middle stages, consumption. By correcting all irregularities of the stomach and liver, it readily cures blotches, pimples, scrofulous ulcers, 'bunches,' or tumors. Hundreds testify that it has restored their health, after eminent physicians had failed. For constipation use the Pellets. As a local remedy for catarrh, use Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy.
