Brutal Haz'ng.

At one of the colleges in New York State, a few years ago, a Freshman was rendered insensible, and his health serious'y injured, by the efforts of several upper class men to 'smoke him out,' a phrase well understood by all college men. The Freshman had a strong stomach, and for a long time the tobecco smoke had no effect upon him. Final y, the upper classmen bound him in a chair. with his body so bent over that his face was nearly between bis knees A large spittoon was placed between his feet, and into this were put a quantity of rank tobacco, some woollen rags (torn from the Freshman'- undershirt), and a little oil. This compound was lighted' and then the victim was erveloped in a blanket reaching to the floor. Long glass tubes from the college laboratory were pushed under the b'anket into the spittoon and blowing through these cau ed a thick column of black and vile smoke to ascend directly in the Freshman's face To the surprise of his tormertors, even this device failed to effect its object, and when the blanket was finally removed the Freshman was found insensible. Alarm tock the place of 'innocent pleasure' in the minds of the upper classmen, and they worked as hard to restore their victim to consciousness as they had before to make him insensible. It was a long time before the Freshman recovered, and he felt the effects of his brutal treatment for months,-Pittsburg Telegraph.

Burdette on Commercial Travelers. What would I do without the 'boys?' How often they have been my friends. I go to a new town. I don't know where to go. The man with the samples gets off at the same station. I follow him without a word or a tremor. He calls to the 'bus driver by name and orders him to 'get out of this now.' as soon as we are seated. And when I follow him I am inevitably certain to go to the best house there is in the place. He shouts at the landlord as we go in. He looks over my shoulder as I register after him. and hands me his card with a shout of recognition. He peeps at the register again, and watches the clerk as ign me to 98. 'Ninety nothing,' he shouts, 'who's in 15?' The clerk says he is saving 15 for Judge Dryasdust. 'Well, tleman in 15.' And if the clerk hesitates he seizes the pen and gives me ter, orders him to carry up my bag- George-I know hops are good," gage and put a fire in 15, and ther, in the same breath, adds: 'What time will you be down to supper, Mr Burdette?' and he waits for me, and seeing that I'm a stranger in the town he sees that I am cared for, and the waiters do not neglect me. He tells me about the town, the people and the business; he is breezy, cheery, sociable, full of new stories, always good natured; he frieks with cigars, and over-flows with 'thousand-mile tickets;' he knows all the best rooms in all the hoteis; he always has a key for the car seats, and turns a seat for himself and his friends without troubling the brakemau, but he will ride on the wood box or stand outside to accommodate a lady, or he will give his seat to an old man. I know him pretty well. For three years I have been trave ing with him, from Colorado to Maine, and I have seen the worst and the best of him, and I know the best far outweighs the worst. I could not get along without him, and I am glad he is numerous.
