'Don't you wish you was a big man?' said one little urchin to another, 'K'rect, I do. I'm just dyin' to be big enuff to git shaved an' have one of 'em barbers powder me all over an' squirt cologne juice at me,' was the reply.

Again we would remind our readers to call on Messrs. A. & I. Shrier and examine the immense stock of Men's, Youtns and Boys' Clothing, which they are selling at extremely low prices. They have also received a handsome stock of latest styles Straw and Felt Hats.

The members of the First Baptist Church in this city are reminded, in the list of church notices, that their regular annual meeting for the election of officers and other necessary business will be held at 8 o'clock next Monday evening.

The Big Editor, as he is called in this office, i. e. the Editor-in-Chief of the REVIEW, has gone to Pittsboro for a few days to look after his Chatham county interests. We crave the indulgence of our readers until the big chief returns.

There is no excuse for those who drag their weary and disordered bodies into our company, when a few doses of AYER'S SANSAPAMILLA would cleanse their murky blood and restore their health and vigor. Ye muddy victims of bilious disease, have regard for your neighbors, if not for yourselves.

Mr. Nath'l Jacobi having been appointed agent for the Atlas Plow, parties in want of this celebrated Plow can now have their orders filled at Jacobi's Hardware Depot, No. 10 S. Front st.

Quick Work.
Remarkably quick work was performed in stowing the cargo of the Russian schooner Catherina Marie, which was cleared today by Messrs Robinson & King for Greenock, Scotland. The stevedores commenced work on Thursday morning at about 6:30 o'clock, and at the close of their labors that evening they had stowed 1,166 barrels of tar; on Friday they stowed 1,146 barrels, making in the two days 2,312 barrels stowed. The remainder of the cargo, 438 barrels, making a total of 2,750 barrels, was stowed this morning. In this connection it may be proper to state that 800 barrels is considered a good day's work. There was no steam used, the work having been all accomplished by men and horse power.

Joint Services.

Sunday after Ascension Day, May 9th, 1886.—There will be joint services for the parishes of St. James', St. John's and St. Paul's, at St. James' Church, to-morrow (Sunday) morning at 11 a. m., at which time the Bishop will administer the rite of confirmation. Seats free.

You can buy No. 1 Cooking and Heating Stoves at almost any price at JACOBI'S Hardware Depot.

A Narrow Escape.

This afternoon as the steam tug Woodbury, in the employ of the government, was in the act of leaving the wharf at the foot of Chestnut street, she ran into a small fishing boat and capsized her. Mr. Edward Hewett and his son John Hewett, who live about eleven miles from the city, just below Big Island, were in the boat at the time, and they narrowly escaped drowning. They also had a quantity of provisions on board and their fishing nets. The provisions, which were valued at about $14, were lost, but the nets were recovered. We very much regret the misfortune to these gentlemen, while at the same time we congratulate them upon their fortunate escape from a more serious calamity.

Everybody can get suited with a Pocket Knife, also Table Cutlery, at JACOBI'S Hardware Depot.

More European Visitors.

A farewell party was given on Thursday evening at the Hall of the Wilmington Hanover Turn Verein, on the corner of Tenth and Market streets, complimentary to Messrs. John D. Steljes and Wm. Dosher, who left this morning on the steamship Benefactor for New York, en route for a trip to Germany. A splendid collation was served and Mr. John W. Gertz made a speech in the German and Mr. W. H. Gerken in the English language. They were responded to by Messrs. Steljes and Dosher. The tourists expect to sail from New York on the 15th inst., in the steamship Main of the North German Lloyd Line. Mr. B. H. J. Ahrens and family will also leave on Monday for New York and the Faderland, and expect to sail on the same steamer.

Attention Dealers.

As many of our retail as well as wholesale dealers in wheat, corn, flour, lard, pork, short ribs, and so forth, are interested in the Chicago markets, we call their attention to the fact that from this day on, whenever one of our patrons gets his REVIEW in the afternoon, he can turn to the Commercial column and see the exact condition of the Chicago market during that day, with the fluctuations of the different articles at each hour of the day from the opening of the market to the close of the same, which ordinarily occurs at 3:30 P. M. except on Saturdays, when 2:30 P. M. is the closing hour. To day, however, the latest dispatch is 1:30 P. M. which is a guarantee that there was no change at 2:30, otherwise telegrams would have been sent noting the change.

To a Correspondent.

A communication from Burgaw originally sent to our neighbor of the Star, has in accordance with a request by postal from the author, been turned over to us. Had the communication been originally directed to the REVIEW we would have cheerfully given it a place in our columns, provided, we could have eliminated with the author's consent, certain objectionable expressions which it contains calculated as we think they are, to give offense to other good citizens of Burgaw. We have already published one communication in regard to this matter, and we think it best for all parties concerned to let the matter drop. What we stated was simply, as an item of news, and our information was derived from one of the most respectable and trustworthy citizens in Pender county, whom we are constrained to believe had no idea or intention of doing any one the slightest wrong or injustice in regard to the result of the recent election at Burgaw. At any rate, certain it is, that this was our position in the matter, and we therefore decline to take any part in the controversy, either directly or indirectly. Notwithstanding the annual recurrence of Lent, the fast men in this country far outnumber the fast days.

Sid Indead.

One of the saddest and most heart-rending accidents that has occurred in this section of the country for many a day, happened in Raleigh, or in the vicinity of that city, on Thursday last. A merry party of young ladies and gentlemen started out early in the morning of that day for a picnic frolic to a millpond some five miles distant from the city. All were happy and the party were in high glee, while the merry laugh of the joyous young folks resounded through the woods on the journey thither. But mark the change; in the evening they all returned as solemn as a funeral procession, for indeed it was nothing else. Two of the young men, who had left home on that bright May morning with high spirits and full of hope and promise of a long and useful life, were brought back corpses, while a third person, a young lady, for whose safety these gallant youths had periled and forfeited their lives, was brought home more dead than alive. We make the following extract from the Observer of the sad affair:

Among the party were Beauregard Crocker, a youth some twenty years of age, and John D. McMillan, a youth of about the same age. These two young men, soon after arriving at the pond, went out in one of the small boats, accompanied by Miss Annie Mitchell, a young lady some sixteen years of age, the daughter of Thomas Mitchell, of this city. The young men paddled to the head of the pond, and were returning to the dam, when the boat ran on a stump, whose top was just below the surface of the water. It stopped the boat and the two men made several efforts to push it off, using the paddles for that purpose. Suddenly the boat capsized and its three occupants were thrown into the water.

Miss Mitchell struggled to avoid sinking, and both Crocker and McMillan, who were excellent swimmers, went to her aid. Crocker first reached her, and she grasped him tightly. In a few moments McMillan reached her, and she clung to him also. The two were so intent on saving her that they thought not of themselves, and made heroic efforts to carry her towards the bank, which was about one hundred feet away. She held them so tightly and in such a way that they were unable to have the free use of their limbs, which was so necessary. The result was that after she had been brought a little nearer the land the strength of the two gave out, and both, with the young lady sank. Mr Crocker was the first to become entirely exhausted from his heroic efforts to save the lady and finally sank for the last time.

About 200 yards away from the scene of the drowning a boat was moored, in which sat Charles Jordan, Iley Rogers and a small boy, all of this city. They were alarmed by the cries of the drowning men for help, and hastily releasing the boat from its fastenings, went to the bend of the pond, whence the cries came. When they came near they saw the boat bottom upward and the head of the young lady just going beneath the water for the last time. Crocker and McMillan were both out of sight, having finally sunk several seconds before. Mr Jordan the moment the boat arrived over the exact spot, saw Miss Mitchell sinking, and dived at a blue bow in her hair, which could be seen in the water. He caught the drowning girl by her long hair and was able to return to the surface with her. Both he and Rogers then placed her in the boat with much effort and she was taken to the shore. Attempts at resuscitation proved of good effect, and she was soon brought back to consciousness.

While some of the party were rendering her this aid, others were making efforts to reach the bodies of the two noble young men who had lost their lives in the attempt to save her. Finally both were recovered by Mr S. M. Parish, and brought to land. All attempts to restore them to life, and many were made, proved unavailing, and the two faces remained placid in death's sleep.

Personal.

Rev. Dr. Bernheim, having returned from his attendance upon the Lutheran Synod, will occupy the pulpit of the St. Paul's Lutheran Church in this city to-morrow, (Sunday) preaching both morning and evening in English.

He gave us the pleasure of a brief call this morning, and while with us stated that fields of wheat on the lines of road over which he had traveled were looking excellently fine and promising. He states that the fruit crop was much injured by the late cold weather, but that there will be something of a crop notwithstanding the cold.

During the session of the Synod a colored man named James Koontz, was ordained to the ministry, which is the first man of that race ordained by the Lutherans since the war.

Perilous.

Yes, every afternoon a party of gentlemen were watching the movements of a sailor in the rigging of a schooner lying at the wharf nearly opposite the Custom House, when one of them challenged another, the latter an elderly gentleman and the head of one of our prominent business houses, to go to the cross trees of the schooner, and offered to wager that he could not. The wager was promptly accepted by our elderly friend—the stakes deposited in the hands of a bystander, and the challenged party walked deliberately over to where the schooner lay, climbed into the rigging and went to the mast head and placed his hands upon the cross-trees and then deliberately returned, laughingly remarking, as he reached terra firma, that "it was higher up than he thought for." He refused, however, to accept of the wager he had so fairly won.

It should be remembered, in passing, that when the broker who gave the challenge found that it was to be accepted in good earnest, he attempted to dissuade his friend from making the somewhat perilous effort, but he reckoned without his host, as the challenged party, who although somewhat advanced in the sixties and having no sea-faring experience, was not the man to give up without a trial. The feat is one of daily performance at sea by sailors, and with a steady nerve is not one of much peril even to a landsman, but we would not advise our venerable friend to make the attempt too often.

For the Review.

Mr. Editor:
I would like to enquire through your columns if a city ordinance created for the protection of citizens should be violated, and injury sustained by citizens for such violations where the remedy can be found? The cow ordinance is violated every day and yet the vigilance of our city officers have not prevented it; several gardens have been lately destroyed by cattle running at large. I think clearly that the city should be responsible for all damages sustained when caused by the failure to enforce the ordinance. X.
