To-day is the twenty-seventh anniver-celebrated the day by a ride to the Sound practice. They went in full dress accompanied by the Veteran Corps and we have no doubt they will have a good time.

 At least we hope so.

No Race Before the Fourth.

We learn from Commodore Wiggins that there will not be a race of the yachts of the Carolina Yacht Club this season before the big race of the 4th of July. We regret to learn that the yachting spirit and interest is on the wane, but in a few days a meeting of the Club will be held with a view of reviving the interest and to shake off the lethargy which seems to have taken hold of the members.

Death of a Fine Animal.

One of the valuable horses owned by the city and used for hauling the steamer Little Giant to a fire on the occasion of an alarm, was killed this forenoon. It seems that the team of horses (known respectively as 'Roger Moore' and 'Harry Brock') were engaged in hauling sawdust somewhere on Front street.
 About noon the driver, a young white man, left them standing in the street for a moment, near the corner of Fourth and Campbell, while he entered Mr.
 Smith's store, in the neighborhood, for the purpose of purchasing a piece of meat.
 He had been absent but a moment when something started the team and off they started. The wagon was empty at the time. As the horses started the driver ran from the store and would most likely have succeeded in checking them but for the everlasting small boy who was, of course, in the neighborhood and whose cries alarmed the animals still further. They dashed down Fourth street and brought up against a telegraph pole at the corner of Princess and Fourth, against which Harry Brock ran full tilt and very properly broke his neck. As one of the horses fell dead the wagon turned over on the other which succeeded, after a moment or two, in freeing himself from the harness and wagon and then trotted off quietly to his stable. Roger Moore escaped unharmed and is as sound and strong as ever, but Harry Brock is valuable now chiefly for what he has been and for his hide. The team cost $250 a few weeks ago.

Spoken.

Dr. Jacques Susie, Capt. Small, from Barbados, is in below. She reports having spoken at sea on 14th inst. in lat.
 29° 30', long. 65° 30', American schooner Mary Baker, from Willward Islands, bound for New York. All well.

Rain Needed.

The weather is exceedingly dry and dusty hereabouts and a good rain at this time would be a blessing. The accounts from the interior are to the effect that the young crops are now absolutely suffering for the want of water. We have not had a copious rain here in a week and the earth is dreadfully parched while the air is filled with clouds of dust.

Probably a Lunatic.

Peter Silverthorn, the obstreperous individual who was taken up on the streets a few days ago, very disorderly and apparently drunk, is thought to be insane.
 He was confined in a cell at the guard house and from thence has issued the most discordant noises. He has but one arm, but yet he succeeded in wrenching an iron bar from the interior of his cell and to-day had nearly succeeded in breaking open the door which leads into the corridor. He was nearly out when the fact was disclosed. He was examined to day by Drs. Walker and Potter and has been sent to jail for safe keeping.

A Break at Hamlet.

There is one disagreeable feature in regard to the recent change of schedule on the C. C. R. W. and that lies in the fact that the train coming East passes Hamlet before the train from Raleigh reaches that point, thus delaying the mails at Hamlet. A close connection there has proven of much convenience to citizens of both Raleigh and Wilmington, inasmuch as letters written late in the afternoon at either point were received at their destination early the following morning. As it is now, letters from Wilmington to Raleigh go through in one night but those from Raleigh to Wilmington are delayed at Hamlet, if sent over this route. The difference between the two trains is only 48 minutes and we have good hopes that this difference will be reconciled and the usual mail connections made at Hamlet in a few days.

Good Words for Us.

The people of Wilmington have a friend or two still at the State Capital. Read the following from the pen of Maj.
 Hearne, of the Post, and say if it isn't so: 'The Wilmington people have heard with no little dissatisfaction that Mr.
 Best, of the Western North Carolina Railroad, has made arrangements with the Piedmont Air Line for a terminus at West Point, on York River.

This is no doubt true, and is what was to have been expected from the sale of the road. The demonstration made by Mr.
 Best on Beaufort, the pretended effort to lease the Atlantic road, and all his talk to the Wilmington people about the Carolina Central, and with the Salisbury folks about the Wadesboro connection, were simply leints to cover his real designs.

Railroad men of insight and conception saw from the first that Mr. Best was working with the Richmond and Danville people, and so proclaimed, and that if there ever existed a hope of building up the ports of our own State, that hope was dissipated by the sale of the Western Road to Mr. Best. Yet it was favored by a Governor and State administration professing great attachment to their native land, and the strongest agencies put to work to accomplish the desired end were in and of the city of Wilmington. A town or Board of Trade meeting was called therein, and a delegation sent up to urge the sale of the road to Mr. Best.

Never having had any confidence, whatever, in the affair, we shall not expect anything good from it, and shall be surprised at nothing it may develop. We are quite sure that Governor Jarvis and his set have sold out the State, a fact that, sooner or later, must be made patent to all, and when the day of full development shall come, all hands concerned in the sale will be cursed and damned into infamy.

We are sorry for Wilmington as much as the State, for she is as a jewel set in a crown, a fair city, of fine commercial capacities, a possible commercial metropolis to a great State. But she is apparently doomed to further delay and disappointment. Since the days of Dudley there appears to have been no one in the executive office possessed of the capacity to appreciate her, and this neglected, slighted, legislated and combined against, she would have languished for the pluck and perseverance of her citizens.
 Let them, however, press on. Buy the Carolina Central road and complete it to Asheville. Mr. Best will be unheard of by that time, and the Cincinnati connection is still a possibility of the future. Select men for State offices of capacity and State pride, and all may yet be well.
 There will always be one friend of Wilmington here and the advocate of a State Policy.

A Card.

AS THERE HAVE BEEN VARIOUS statements of the proceedings of the Brunswick county Convention, the undersigned, who was sent and witnessed the occurrences of that day, deem it their duty to give a truthful account of the affair.

When the Convention met Samuel R. Chinnis, Esq., was nominated for Chairman against W. G. Curtis. Mr. Chinis was elected Chairman by a fair majority, which was effected by a good number of the McKoy men who voted for him on the presumption that the Delegates were to be afterwards selected by the Convention, and these very men who voted for him afterwards withdrew when Mr. George H. Bellamy moved that the choice of the Convention as between Maj.
 Stedman and McKoy should be accepted, and a great deal of noise and confusion ensued, four men talking at the same time, and in the midst of this Babel the motion that the Chairman Delegates was put and the negative vote was not even taken.

In this way a snap judgment was taken very much to the disgust of those desiring fair play.

Dr. Curtis was then called on to calm the excitement, which was intense and disgraceful. He (Dr. C.) moved that the Convention adjourn to meet at a future time and place (for reasons already given in the published accounts). Dr. Curtis' motion was put in a garbled manner, and the McKoy men despairing of fair play withdrew.

Immediately on the withdrawal the undersigned were requested to make the count of both sides and counted fifty-seven in the McKoy party, all citizens of Brunswick county, and sixty-three in the Stedman party, amongst whom were Messrs. Stedman, Darby, Griffith, Gore and others, not voters.
 We believe that previous to Major Stedman's arrival on the ground we had a large majority, and that even his presence did not much affect the status of the McKoy side, and for an endorsement of this paper we refer to any fair minded, unprejudiced man on the ground at the time.

JOHN D. BELLAMY, Jr.,
 W. B. MCKOY,
 E. H. KING.
