

THE SOLDIERS' HOME.

The President and Mrs Hayes will not leave the White House until the end of next month, and then go to the Soldiers' Home.—Exchange
Yes, of course! Mr. Hayes and his family are soldiers and are entitled to all the benefits of the Soldiers' Home! We see by the Congressional Record that a committee of investigation is to be appointed to look into the way and manner affairs are managed at that institution, and we hope that the committee, when they get fairly at work, will take pains to inquire by what authority of law, or by what regard to the decency of the thing, Mr. and Mrs. Hayes, with other members of the family, are allowed to make that institution their abiding place whenever they may see fit to do so. The Soldiers' Home is an institution designed expressly for worn out and crippled soldiers. It was intended solely for their benefit as a retreat in which to pass the remainder of their days in ease and quiet after the exposure, fatigues and wounds incident to a soldier's life had unfitted them for further service. It was intended as a grateful recognition of the valuable and arduous duties performed by our war-worn veterans, and there was no provision made for any other persons or class of persons, save the officials and assistants necessary to the good order and efficiency of the establishment.
There is a commodious and beautiful edifice on Pennsylvania Avenue, between Fifteenth and Seventeenth streets, expressly designed and set apart as a Presidential mansion. In this mansion Mr. Hayes has a right (a very dubious one, we admit) to reside free of cost during the period in which he occupies the presidential chair. He has no legal right to occupy any other residence at the expense of the government, and we see no reason in the world why he should be allowed to trespass upon the rights and privileges of our worn out soldiers by making his summer residence at the Soldiers' Home.

A GREAT MISTAKE.

Mr. Henri Waterson, of the Louisville Courier-Journal, an ardent supporter of Mr. Tilden for the Presidency, says that "the best men in the South favor Tilden". If this statement be true it is a picture of a lamentable condition of things in this section, for we feel perfectly safe in making the assertion that not one Democrat in twenty in the entire South is in favor of Mr. Tilden's nomination, and if all the best men of the South were only those who favor Mr. Tilden he would not carry a single township, South of Mason and Dixon's line. The people of the South, as a class, are so bad that they desire to have nothing to do with him, and we venture to say that, if he managed, by any sort of hocus pocus, to secure the nomination, there would be a large falling off in the popular vote from that of 1876. The people do not want him; they are disgusted with his present course and that of his friends, and they will not give him a cordial support under any circumstances.
Mr. Waterson has a right, if he chooses, to advance the nomination of Mr. Tilden for the Presidency. We do not object to that, although we most sincerely hope that, his wishes may not be gratified, inasmuch as we believe such an event would be a catastrophe to the party. But we do object to his saying that "the best men of the South favor Mr. Tilden," for such a limited following as that gentlemen has in this section makes the statement a foul slander upon a large majority of the true and tried Democracy of the South.
We do not oppose Mr. Tilden upon personal grounds, but entirely for the reason that we know that he cannot arouse the enthusiasm of any portion or the country in such a manner as to develop the largest possible vote. Especially is this true here, Mr. Waterson to the contrary notwithstanding, and we hope our delegates at the Cincinnati Convention who know, or ought to know, the real condition of public sentiment at the South, will assert their independence, and not let this incubus be attached to the necks of the party, to be dragged with inconceivable labor and probable defeat through the campaign. It is the vote of the South which is to elect a Democratic President, if we are successful, and our delegates must assert and maintain our rights in the matter. The time has passed by, we trust forever, when we are to remain merely as a portion of the Democratic party to do its voting and in sure its success. The time has come when the voice of the South should be heard, when her wishes should be heeded, and when her votes should be cast for the man of her choice. We of the South no longer desire to sit quietly by and be dictated to as to every political action; nor do we desire to be dictatorial to others, any further than to manfully express our sentiments and wishes upon all political subjects in which the success of the party is implicated. We desire no longer to be misrepresented either at home or abroad, and sentiments antagonistic to our wishes, or those not expressing the true condition of our people, will no longer be silently tolerated. Mr. Tilden is not the choice of a majority of the Southern people; the press of the South has spoken it, and should he be nominated, the margin vote in November will establish the fact when it will be too late to repair the damage. If he is the nominee, then the political history of 1876, with its terrible reverses for the Democratic party, will be repeated in 1880.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 25th, 1880.
There is no doubt about the duty of Congress to adjourn on the 31st, but there is very determined opposition to it. To remain in session during the time from June 2d to June 22d, would be like making a real estate trade in Central America during an earthquake. The laboring and producing and manufacturing people of the country will receive doubtful benefit from tariff legislation completed by angry politicians who think it their first duty to nominate or elect a President. So would those patriotic people who seek new and extra-constitutional methods of counting the Electoral vote. On this latter point Senator Morgan's joint rule adopted by the Senate yesterday seems to be all that is necessary. So in all cases, it is better for every interest to wait until the exciting Presidential campaign is over than to push measures through this Summer. By all means, early adjournment should be had.
Senator David Davis letter to Hon. O. H. Bowring, President Johnson's Secretary of the Interior, is commented on, strangely enough, as a bid for the Democratic nomination. I don't see that in the letter. The Senator wrote after Grant's nomination was assured, and when he supposed a determined opposition would be made to a Republican party, would be made to such a nomination, and when, perhaps, he thought there would be equal dissatisfaction at the Democratic nomination. It is a "third party" letter. It is a restatement of the sentiments which led to the Philadelphia convention of 1876, with additions to meet the changed conditions of the times. The venerable Senator will have no votes in the Democratic Convention, and he don't expect any. It will be safe to give slight credence to regular telegraphic reports of the preferences delegates to Cincinnati have. More contradictions are received here by private telegrams than would be thought possible. The false reports may be sent by connivance of the friends of candidates, or to influence the Radical Convention at Chicago, or for reasons unknown, but it is certain that in every Convention, from Pennsylvania, two months ago, to New Jersey, a week ago, the most absurd reports have been sent in the regular dispatches. As a matter of fact, the first vote of the Pennsylvanians will probably be for Hancock, and if he has no apparent prospect then the second vote will show a decided majority for Mr. Tilden. On a second ballot, also, no matter how the first is thrown, New Jersey will probably give a majority for Tilden. I speak of these States as they are represented to me by people who profess to know, and whom I have always found reliable. CUMMINGS.

ROGUSHINE

A lady who edits a newspaper in one of the western States says that "the popularity of her journal is due to the fact that people are always expecting she will say something she ought not to."
"I would box your ears," said a young lady recently to her stupid and tiresome admirer, "if—'if what?' he anxiously asked. 'If,' she replied, 'I could get a box large enough for the purpose.'"
"I guess you have been kissed by all the pretty girls in the country," somebody remarked recently to Commodore Nutt. "I guess I have," he replied; "but it isn't such fun as you think. It gets awfully tiresome."
"Is this my trait?" asked a traveler at the Kansas Pacific depot of a longer. "I don't know, but I guess not," was the doubtful reply. "I see it got the name of the railroad company on the side, and I expect it belongs to them. Have you lost a train anywhere?"
The champion man mtn lives at Newburyport, Mass. He lost a watch and chain, and was much exercised by his misfortune. However, an honest little boy found the property and returned it to its owner. This worthy, upon receiving it, put his hand down deep in his trousers pocket, pulled forth a handful of coins, and looking them over exclaimed, "Well, really, I haven't any change less than a five cent piece, but I'll pay you some time!"
Fuck expects, in case of a war between China and Russia, to receive dispatches something after this style:
CHINA WALKER.
Me meet a heapee Russian troops; me knock 'em all into a cloacke battle.
CHINA CHOLAR, Bosses General.
The corresponding Russian dispatch would be as follows:
CHINA WITCH WALKER.
The Celestialwith troops were lastoski nightvitch knockedimef Bigheroeki than a kitevitch.
OLYMARGARINOVITCH TRAMPOLOVITCH Major General and Second Deputy Or.

Mental Strain Relief.
