Ladies' Memorial Association.

At the annual meeting of the Ladies' Memorial Association, held recently at the School House in the rear of St. James' Church, the following officers and managers were elected for the ensuing year: Miss Hettie James having successfully filled the office of President for two consecutive terms, handed in her resignation and declined a re-election, but was finally overruled by the voice of the members, and consented to accept the position for another term:

 Treasurer—Mrs Dr. Anderson.
 Secretary—Miss Kate Burr.

Managers—Mrs Roger Moore, Mrs John Cantwell, Mrs John Poisson, Mrs W. Geo. Thomas, Miss Bettie Price, Miss Julia James, Mrs John Rankin, Mrs Daggett Mrs James Hill, Mrs T. H. McKoy, Mrs Norman McEae, Mrs Eugene Wiggins, Mrs Murchison, Mrs Dr. Everett.

THE PRESIDENT'S REPORT.

Officers and Ladies of the Oakdale Memorial Association:—

Another year, with its passing events has rolled around, and according to the usual custom of our body, we meet once more, as sisters having and loving a common work, to confer upon the events of the past year, now folding its wings forever from our sight, and to elect our officers for the continuance of our sacred work. A few days after our last annual celebration was collected through the efforts of our Marshals and presented to me, to meet a necessity for which the Association felt inadequate, that of putting in order some neglected Confederate graves in Oakdale Cemetery, the sum of thirty-seven dollars and twenty cents, ($37.20). The work is now in progress, and when completed, may leave a balance, which will be handed to the Treasurer.

Several soldiers of our Confederate army have died since our last meeting and their graves, like others before them, will be marked by our plain white memorial stone. How touching this simple token of respect and what volumes does it not tell! In the years to come, when we shall have passed away from human ken; when perhaps not one is left to tell the sad story of our hopes and fears, our courage, and finally, our despair—these simple tablets, containing "only a name," will open the realms of thought and carry the imaginative mind back through the vista of years to a time known only through tradition or uncertain history, when a band of brave souls fought for the right, as they firmly believed, against terrible odds; sometimes without shelter, and often cold and hungry, forlorn and sick—fought as men do, who battle for home and fireside—fought as did Leonidas at the fatal pass of Thermopylae, and died as did that glorious little band of three hundred, with their faces to the front.

Ladies! let us never retract our decision that the grave of every soldier who bore arms in that fatal cause shall be marked by this simple, but touching memento of a faithful discharge of duty.

Our Association, though decreased in numbers, with its increase of years, has, I trust, in the little band left, lost none of its strength of purpose, and are determined in spite of discouragement in the lack of interest evinced by many, to continue, almost the only part of its work now left—the annual commemorative services, kept up by the faithful few who have striven to perpetuate the Association, and the memory of the gallant dead, who either sleep under the soil at Oakdale, or in the stranger's grave beneath other soils. For more than a decade, have these annual memorial services been observed, not, I hope, with any desire for ostentations in the parade, which has been deemed objectionable by some, but simply to preserve the interest which is so likely to diminish when there is no reminder—no bugle to sound the tocsin of duty, not that those hearts who have been true to the "Lost Cause" can ever forget the gallant deeds of her noble army of martyrs, but the number of those who are rapidly decreasing, for already on our Roster stands enrolled 41 of the patriots who survived the noble struggle. We must strive then to impress these events on the minds of the succeeding generations, or all will pass into the valley of oblivion or dim remembrance of something that was once considered almost holy. In what better way can this be done than by taking them to the sacred spot, and under the shadows of that weather-beaten sentinel on duty, have one of its faithful survivors tell those whose lot was not cast with them, of the many brave deeds of that fearful struggle? At our last annual meeting it was moved and seconded that the Secretary be instructed to correspond with the Associations of this State as well as those of principal cities of our sister Southern States, for the purpose of asking their cooperation in fixing upon a national day for our celebration. As we have found by sad experience the 10th of May too late, in our warm climate, for our procession we proposed changing to April 26th, the day of Johnston's surrender, which is being already kept by Georgia, Alabama and Mississippi. Meeting with no favorable response, as dear to our hearts as is the 10th of May, with its sacred associations, we felt it our duty to the living to make the proposed change; and at a meeting of the managers, decided upon a day, which seems meet for such a commemoration, as it was the final end of the heroic struggle of four years. As every North Carolinian has felt a pride in having the first declaration of independence of a foreign power, made by this State, they should take equal pride in the knowledge that the Old North State was the last to yield the effort for freedom from even a more galling yoke. Therefore, as reluctant as we are to part with the day on which we lost one of the holiest and noblest spirits of the war, we trust that this, which is really a North Carolina day, will soon be honored as our Memorial Day.

Ladies, since our last meeting, the angel of Death has, for the second time, entered our midst, and borne away one of our managers, leaving a vacant seat, which has for many years been so pleasantly filled by Mrs. Harriett Northrop. She left us for Paradise, while winter's breath rested upon the earth. Ever ready and willing to do her part in the work so dear to her heart, the Association has, in her death, lost a faithful member, and the void, few can readily fill—while in the hearts of our devoted little band, she will long be mourned and remembered with veneration and love.

And now, ladies, in conclusion, allow me to thank you all for your kind consideration of, and ready help to me during the two years of my Presidential office. Believe me, I appreciate highly the honor conferred upon me in choosing me for that high position but above all I do I hold dear to my heart your pleasant words and kindly smiles; the ready sympathy with which my proposals were ever met and acted upon. In resigning my position, I feel no hesitation in saying to my successor, whoever she may be, "Fortune favors you! With such laborers in the field, your work is light indeed."

Swore Out.

Henry Locklear, a half-breed from Robeson county, who was sentenced to imprisonment for non payment of costs in a case before the U. S. District Court at its last term for a violation of the revenue laws, to-day swore out before U. S. Commissioner McQuigg, after serving a term of thirty days in prison, under the insolvent debtor's act.

THE CENSUS.

It is said, with how much correctness we do not know, that up to last Monday night there had been 20,500 names reported by the census enumerators at work in this city. The enumerators, it will be understood, are required to make daily reports. If this assertion is correct then there are strong probabilities that the population of Wilmington will approximate 25,000. The enumerators will not finish their labors before next Wednesday night and they will probably have to work very hard in the interim to get through by that time.

Young men should hesitate before entering the arena of politics. A man can become a politician when he is fit for nothing else, and then he will not have so much at stake to risk.

An old angler says a fish does not suffer much pain from being hooked. Of course not. It's the thought of how his weight will be lied about that causes him anguish.

It is said that women live on love. Small-salaried young men will be interested to learn that the love referred to is for baked beans, beef soup, onions and new spring hats.

PLEASE NOTICE.

We will be glad to receive communications from our friends on any and all subjects of general interest but:
