VIEWS AND REVIEWS.

Col. Thomas A. Scott, the Harrisburg Patriot says, 'is a warm friend and admirer of Gen. Hancock and will support him for the Presidency.'

The twenty-first triennial convocation of the Grand Encampment of Knights Templar of the United States, will meet in Chicago, August 12th, and will continue in session three days.

As soon as Congress meets in November, a bill will be presented removing all taxes of every kind on tobacco. The tariff and internal revenue laws will unquestionably be the great subjects of debate for the next year.

Friday, the 9th, was the 125th anniversary of Braddock's defeat. On the same day of the month, in 1850, General Zachary Taylor, who had only been President a little over four months, died, and was succeeded by Vice President Millard Fillmore.

Dr. Farrar, of Brooklyn, says that not less than half a ton of pure gold, worth half a million dollars, is annually packed into people's teeth in the United States, and that at this rate all the gold in circulation will be buried in the earth in 300 years.

The Baltimore & Ohio Railroad have ordered twenty new sleeping cars to be built at their shops and to be ready for use by October 1st. They will then take charge of the sleeping cars that run over their line, as the contract with the Pullman Company expires at that time.

Scene: White Sulphur. A gentleman to a Kentucky belle; 'Will you allow me to introduce my wealthy friend, Mr. H., from New York?' Kentucky belle; 'Thank you, no; we are in very easy circumstances at present, and if his wealth is his principal claim to distinction I do not care to meet him.'

The Starke (Fla) Telegraph says that Isaac Matthews, a colored man, residing on New river, Bradford county, has a very fine cotton crop of 25 acres, 6 acres of which he has already picked a quantity of cotton, and on Saturday offered for sale in that market the first bale of the season.

By means of the electric clock now in position along the New York Central and Hudson river railroad an operator in New York controls the hands of each clock without the intervention of men connected with the depot. For a moment before noon the hands of each clock are agitated and stop exactly at the same instant.

The National Republican calls lustily for a sweeping of the public departments, upon the theory that some of the clerks are Democrats. It speaks bitterly of Secretary Schurz, and rather despondently of the post-office department—on which it seems to think that 'erring brother' Key has left the impression of his evil associations.

It is understood in Washington that the somewhat well-known authoress of a work on life in St Petersburg, which was published a year or so ago at Brussels and suppressed by the police in Paris, has prepared for publication an account of the connection of Mr Jewell while minister in Russia with the too celebrated affairs of the Grand Duke Nicholas and the Empress's jewels, which will be read with great interest at the present time. The archives of the State Department contain some curious information on the same subject, which may see the light before the close of the Presidential campaign.

One of the survivors of the Seamanahaka disaster, Mrs. Ada Ward, by name, residing at Sea Cliff, L. I., tells a most disgraceful story of Mr. Charles A. Dana, editor of the New York Sun, in connection with that awful affair. According to this young lady, she was standing by Mr. Dana, with whom she was acquainted, when the flames had spread so far that it was no longer possible to remain on the vessel and in her extreme peril asked him if he could swim. 'Oh, yes, very well,' he replied. Then she said, 'Please, Mr. Dana, can't I go with you, when you jump over?' 'Every one for himself,' she says was his brutal answer, and immediately jumped overboard, leaving her to care entirely for herself. Mr. Dana swam for the shore, which he soon reached without difficulty, and Miss Ward was finally saved, after a very hard struggle, through the help of another woman and a boatman, who partially corroborate her statement.

THE GREENBACKERS.

General James B. Weaver, the Greenback candidate for the Presidency, is quite hopeful of success. He will open the campaign in Alabama, which State he is confident he will carry in the election. He also claims that he will carry Tennessee, Texas, Mississippi, West Virginia, Missouri, and Arkansas, besides making heavy gains in Maryland, Iowa, Michigan and Minnesota. He is sure that the influence of Dennis Kearney, which is pledged to him, will give him California without a shadow of doubt.

He indulges in a hope which will never be realized, and before two months have passed over his head he will, unless we greatly mistake, have abundant reason to exclaim:

'Oh, ever thus from childhood's hour, I've seen my fondest hopes decay!'

The Greenback craze has passed by, and General Weaver will have hard work to convince the people that there is any necessity for introducing this disturbing element into the campaign. He will carry no State—cannot by any possibility—and the only object he will be able to attain in the contest will be to divert, to a certain extent, attention from the vital, real issues which are now fairly before the people.

FORECASTING THE RESULT.

The Baltimore American, one of the ablest and most influential of the Republican newspapers, gives the following table as showing the possible result in what may be called the certain States, by which it will be seen that a majority of 16 electoral votes is conceded to the Democrats:

Table with columns for REPUBLICAN and DEMOCRATIC electoral votes across various states like Alabama, Arkansas, etc.

By the above table it will be seen that the American considers the following as figures of the American will hardly afford a large crumb of consolation to its Radical readers.

HANCOCK'S RESIGNATION.

It is now stated upon the authority of the New York Herald, which is apt to be more sensational than correct, that General Hancock, in view of his position as the Presidential candidate of the Democratic party, will resign his commission in the army. It is also urged by the Herald and other papers that he should resign, but we can see no reason why he should. There is no precedent for such a course, and we fail to see why he should be called upon to establish such a precedent. General Taylor did not resign from the army during his candidacy. General Scott did not resign when he was a candidate for the same office, but, on the other hand, continued in office for many years after his defeat. General Grant did not resign during the time he was a candidate, nor until his election was assured. And in his case we have sometimes wondered that he resigned at all, instead of giving himself a four year's furlough, and had it extended four years longer when his second election was assured. Such a course would have been in harmony with many of his other acts.

We hope Hancock will not resign. The precedent would be of no possible benefit or merit, and if it should have any effect it would be to the possible disadvantage of the party.

HANCOCK'S CRIMES.

The thing is becoming interesting, says the Philadelphia Chronicle. The enormity of Gen. HANCOCK'S crimes against his country is being discovered and unfolded at a great rate. A New York letter in the Chicago Tribune relates that Gen. HANCOCK occupies on Governor's Island sixty-four acres of land worth $15,000,000 if sold for residences; that Governor's Island has ceased (presumably since the Cincinnati nomination) to be of any value as a depot, being only used as the residence of some 'pet commanding General' (Hancock has always been a pet with the Republican party from Grant down); that a gun fired from the island at an enemy's ship would go crashing through the heart of Brooklyn; that the taxpayers of America support General HANCOCK in lazy luxury on this $15,000,000 island; that General HANCOCK is waited upon as if he were a king; that there is a steam yacht there to take him to Delmonico's to dinner, or to Coney Island for a flirtation with the ladies; that an armed sentinel is on guard there day and night, in all sorts of weather (always the same settled brutality kept at his post); and that General HANCOCK were not a Major-General he would be a country tavern-keeper. This, it must be contended, is a terrible arraignment of General HANCOCK, and shows what a botch the Cincinnati Convention made of its work.

THE FALL TRADE.

The commercial papers of the country are already predicting a large trade this Fall, based upon the general prosperity of the country and the magnificent prospects as regards this year's crops. This is true, are not yet fully assured although the promise is indeed an excellent one. With a few more weeks of such good seasons as we have had the crops of cereals will be very large and with a late fall and a freedom from worms and rust and excessive rains cotton will do unusually well. This latter crop is, however, the most uncertain of all. Sometimes, up to August, the prospects are very bright and then will come the worm and the rust and after these early frosts and the hopes of a fruition are rudely dashed. Commenting on the fall trade the New York Bulletin says:

The purchasing ability of the country at large promises to be exceptionally ample. The grain crop and the cotton crop, so far as can be judged at this stage, may be expected to prove large beyond all precedent; and the large agricultural majority of our people will have ample means for supplying their wants. They have had three successive years of unusual prosperity; during the first two of which their savings were largely devoted to paying off their debts; and it is reasonable to suppose that the profits of the third will be liberally devoted to supplying the wants of their homes. The industries are generally actively employed, and the large operative population will have more to spend than in any year since 1873. The fall in prices within the last quarter will increase the demand for goods, which in turn will give the more active employment to labor. Indeed, there is no class of the community nor any section of the country that can be pointed to as likely to be exempt from a common prosperity. Even the iron trade, which has suffered so severely from the late breakdown in prices, can hardly fail to experience an early recovery when all classes of the community are in a position to want its products.

Exhalations.

From the matter that creates malarial fevers—Yellow Fever and its kindred ailments, are not cognizable by the senses, but imperceptibly locate in the blood, poison it, and originate the diseases named. Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure, used in connection with Warner's Safe Pills, is the only blood purifier known.
