Two Bales.

Messrs Newbury & Chasten are determined not to be behind. They received advices torday of the shipment of two bales of new cotton from Mount Olive, in Wayne county, which was expected here to day. This is the first new cotton hear I from North of Wilmington.

To Fill Up-After to day the month of August, 1880, leaves her teens and enters the twenties; pretty soon summer will be gone, and then we will have the fall and autump, our harvest season in this section. May we all be enabled to reap a good harvest of votes this year, too, for honest constitutional government. The only way to do this, however is for every man to do his duty between now and sundown on the 21 day of November. You must tak to your indifferent neighbor and get him interested; give him good political documents to read, and if he can't read them, read to him Haucock's reply to Governor Pease, of Texas, and his letter to General Sherman in 1876, and we will guarantee if he is Southern born and not a political office seeker, he will be a Hancock man before you get half way torough the last named document. Work! work!! work!!! must be our motto from now until the polls close,

For September opens with a well-illustrated paper on the lake region of Florida, -'Ekoniah Scrub,'-which,' lying out of the line of ordinary travel, is but little known, though its natural features and scattered settlements are curious and interesting. The concluding paper of A, H. Siegfried's 'Canoeing on the High Mississippi' describes the return voyage. 'A Villeggiatura in Asisi ' by the author of Signor Monaldini's Niece, is a charmingly written account of a summer passed in a quaint Italian town, the resort of pilgrims from every quarter, and the scene of some of the most striking commovies and celigious practices which have desceneed from mediæval times 'Newport a Hundrid Years Ago,' by Frances Pierrepont North, is an article which calls up vividly the period when this chief among Ameri can watering places was occ. pied by a French army and fl et sent to aid the cause of American independence, and was even more gay and bridlart than it is at the present day, 'Horse-Racing in France,' the first two papers by L. Lejeune, is full of details that show a famil. burity with the subject in all its relations The fifth chapter of 'Studies in the Slum . by Helen Campbell, treats of 'Diet and its Doing.' 'Short Studies in the Picturesque, by William Sloane Kennedy, exhibits a close observation of the choice but characteristic features of American scenery. #### Disastrous Fire at Long Creek.

We regret very much to learn of a disastroug fire which occurred this morning at Long Creek, in Pender county. About 2 o'clock the alarm was given when it was discovered that the largest and bandsomest residence in the town was on fire. It was known as the Satchwell house and was owned by Messrs. Bell & Bro., who occupied one portion and Mr. W. T. Newen the other. The citizens turned out promptly but the fire had obtained such he dway when the alarm was sounded that it was found to be impossible to save the burning building. Through the forts of the citizens Mesers. Bell & Bro saved all of their furniture but Mr. New. ell lost everything, his wife and family barely escaping in their night clothes without having had time to save even an outside garment. Indeed, Mrs. Newell and her little granddaughter made a very narrow escape from a fiery death. The fire is supposed to have been accidental, and to have originated in the dining room, around the stove. There was no insurance on anything.

A Good Joke on Somebody. Because a man's hair is tinged with gray or contains a silver lock here and there, there is no reason that he should always appear as sober as a Judge about to pass the death sentence upon a prisonspinion of some of our grave and reverend one, a younger member of the Produce Exchange, offered twenty-five cents to another to black his shoes. The offer was immediately accepted by a third party, who sion houses on the wharf, which counts its commission account away up among the thousands. Entering into the spirit of the joke another member of the Exchange stepped out and soon brought and brush. All that was needed now to perform the job was a little nerve and resolution on the part of the party who accepted the offer, and this was not lack. ing, for taking a seat directly in front of his patron he commenced the job while shoe blacker-our grave and reverend Seigneur, must pardon us for the time being in designating him thus-performed his contract Worthily, gave a good shine and got his quarter amidst vociferous applause and laughter by all present. The money, however, went to the genuine boot black finally, who thought it a cap ital joke and an easy paying job for him, Moral.-Never be too proud, young reader, to earn an honest quarter of a dollar by a little labor or hard work.
