

FOR PRESIDENT:

W. S. HANCOCK, OF PENNSYLVANIA.

FOR VICE PRESIDENT:

W. H. ENGLISH, OF INDIANA.

FOR GOVERNOR:

THOMAS J. JARVIS, OF PITTSBURGH.

FOR LIEUT. GOVERNOR:

JAMES L. ROBINSON, OF MACON.

FOR SECRETARY OF STATE:

WILLIAM L. SAUNDERS, OF WAKE.

FOR STATE TREASURER:

JOHN M. WORTH, OF RANDOLPH.

FOR ATTORNEY-GENERAL:

THOMAS S. HENAN, OF WILSON.

FOR AUDITOR:

WILLIAM P. ROBERTS, OF GATES.

For Superintendent Public Instruction:

JOHN C. SCARBOROUGH, OF JOHNSTON.

FOR CONGRESS:

(Third District.)

JOHN W. SHACKELFORD, OF ONSLOW.

For Presidential Elector, Third District.

D. H. McLEAN, Of Harnett.

The Indiana Democrats carried things with a boom on last Saturday night, holding meetings all over the State, and arousing the enthusiasm of the party at all points. The campaign in that State is now under full headway.

Senator Thurman is in New York. Interviewed by an Express reporter, he says he believes Ohio will be a Democratic State this fall, that there is no doubt about Indiana, and that Hancock will be elected beyond a doubt.

Last year, in Great Britain, 160 passengers were killed on railways and 1,807 wounded. Of the killed 73 perished by the Tay disaster. There were, at the same period 452 employes of the roads killed and 1,951 injured. Of these, it is stated that 420 killed and 255 injured were trespassing on the roads or committed suicide or were run over at grade crossings.

General Judson Kilpatrick, the man who raided through the South during the war and foisted a woman of ill fame, his paramour, upon respectable families wherever he chose to establish his headquarters, and who afterwards was accompanied by the same sort of character when he was sent by a Republican administration as Minister from the United States to Peru, has just been defeated in the State Republican Convention as the Radical candidate for Governor of New Jersey. The Radicals are now trying to save him over by promising a nomination for Congress.

PISTOLS AND COFFEE

Col. Wm. Lamb, well known to our citizens as one of the gallant defenders of Fort Fisher, and Mr. James Barron Hope, editor of the Norfolk Landmark, are reported to have left Norfolk to have a hostile meeting, or in other words to engage in a duel. It is presumed that Mr. Hope went the challenge on account of the publication of a card by Col. Lamb last Saturday, characterizing a published letter of the editor of the Landmark as a 'deliberate falsification for partisan purposes.' Mr. Hope is a Funder and Col. Lamb has been elected mayor of Norfolk, a position once filled by his father, upon the Rea-juster's ticket. James Barron Hope, once fought a duel with Captain Pembroke Jones, at one time a resident of this city, but now a citizen of Virginia, in which the latter was slightly wounded. The pistols used on this occasion were the same Commodore Barron and Commodore Stephen Decatur used in the duel in which the gallant Decatur was killed.

THE COMING BUSINESS SEASON.

Under the above caption the New York World refers to the approaching Fall trade and says: At this season of the year, when men of business are preparing to pass from the relaxation of summer to the activity of autumn, the conditions of the various markets are examined with fresh interest for the efficient reason that the business year really begins with the harvesting of the crops, and not with New Year's Day. The present season has been one in which almost all reports were 'better than before, and the general feeling is to the prospect of business appears to be correspondingly hopeful. The feeling is a reasonable one, but should be reasonably entertained, and one cause for caution in estimating the coming season's business can be found in the well known fact that the speculations of the past two months have left in every market an appreciable remainder which could not yet be sold without loss. Upon the surface it might seem that the beginning of gold imports from Europe even earlier than last year promises a repetition of last year's excited advance in the various markets. But there is too much property carried forward from last year awaiting favorable opportunities of sale to permit a wild advance in prices such as that which marked last year's speculation, and those upon whom the duty falls of furnishing the money for current business transactions are well aware of this, and they are, therefore, in a position to enforce their own views of what is prudent. It is not necessary, however, that business should advance in two consecutive years in the vehement and impulsive manner which seems unavoidable when it revives after a long prostration, and it is now so long since the revival was universally recognized that a more steady-going progress will be generally accepted as sufficient for the times.

It is the judgment of the experts in each branch of trade that our large surplus of grain and cotton can be marketed in Europe at paying prices; we do not say at prices which will reward speculators, but at prices which will encourage the producer to deal liberally with his land next year. The calculation rests upon the necessities of Europe, and therefore includes the replenishing of European storehouses as well as the filling of European immediate and daily wants. That this is the opinion there as well as here is shown by the readiness with which arrangements have been made in Europe to ship gold to New York; the outflow of gold does not frighten France or England when articles of first necessity are in question. It is, of course, natural that the banks of France and England should advance their rates of discount if the outflow of gold threatens to interfere with their working reserve, especially as their experience of financial freedom shows that this is the way to attract fresh resources; while it needs no experience to show that an advance in the rate of money will decrease the demand for it which is merely speculative. We are already in receipt of over two millions gold from Europe, with some eight millions on the way, and exchange at the point where a minute question of expense determines further shipments of gold; our customary exports will therefore bring in more gold, unless the return movement of American securities becomes so large as to make it unnecessary, which seems unlikely.

From Forney's Progress.

It is as true now as it has been in all past times, that one of the most vital principles of government is the art of being honest, and the man who cannot thoroughly stand this test deserves to be buried with indignant scorn into obscurity when he mounts such a pinnacle as the presidential candidate of one of the leading parties of the country necessarily occupies.

From the Albany Argus.

Ex Congressman H. A. Reeves, of Suffolk, an experienced cheerer and a staunch Democrat, well says: 'One of the features of the present campaign is the prevailing disposition among the young voters, who have come upon the stage of political action since 1876, to cast their initial presidential vote for General Hancock. The issues embodied in his candidacy have something attractive and welcome to this class of voters, while the old sectional issues under which the Republicans seek to rally their forces are repellant and unwise. It is said there are over 1,000,000 of these young voters; and, whatever the number be, all the signs show that a large majority of them will be among the supporters of the gallant soldier-statesman.

(From the New York World, Aug. 19, 1880.)

The nomination of Mr. James E. English and a strong State ticket makes Connecticut safe for the Democrats this Fall so far as the presidential electors and the State administration are concerned, and make the work of securing the United States Senatorship comparatively easy. Mr. English is a most successful and public spirited business man, liberal, popular and staunchly Democratic and his name is a tower of strength in Connecticut. It was under his leadership that Republican power, omnipotent since 1854, was broken in the campaigns of 1866 and 1867, and it is proper that now, when the nominee of the national ticket is the author of Order No. 40, the Democratic candidate in the State should be the governor who declared in his first annual message against Federal usurpations in time of peace and bayonet rule at the South and rightly characterized martial law as 'the creature of necessity existing only where no municipal law is in force, or where the success of military operations renders it for the time being necessary.'

MOONSHINE

A mosquito always settles before he presents his bill. A man cushions his seat in church with pew reed motuvs. The last census shows that Rhode Island is entitled to another aid-man in both wards. Beecher says he honors the man who slops over. Some people are awfully self satisfied. And still another youth is here, With frenzy in his eye. Behold his yellow seated pant! Behold that custard pie! The Detroit Free Press man is writing a series of articles entitled 'Early Days in Michigan State Prison.' Very few people are so frank about their early experiences - Peck's Snob. An exchange says 'Sara Bernhardt's style of dressing is her own. In classic plays where a Roman dress is required, her dress is a very broad strip of cloth. We hardly know how to understand this statement.

BICYCLING

Gentle, On my wheel, 'Tis sit, The vulgar mob may flit Below; They go Unheeded by, And, as the fly, I, Mounted high, Sit, Turning with toe or heel My wheel. Oh! finer far Than fame or riches are The caracolings of this airy car! Why Should I Weep wail or sigh? What if age has dimmed my eye? What if I'm truly said Not to be worth a red? Stunt! I've enough! My steel of steel - My wheel. Go, whining youth, Pursue it! Travel by rail; Fish or shoot quail; Weave melancholy rhymes On the old times, Whose sports to memory now appear; But leave to me my wheel. Wealth melts like snow; Love leads to woe; So, If I tread my troubles down, Without a frown, In speeding on from town to town, Then do I wear the crown With wheel or wheel!

OUR PLATFORM.

The following is the Platform of the Democratic party adopted at the National Convention held recently at Cincinnati: 1st. We pledge ourselves anew to the constitutional doctrines and traditions of the Democratic party, as illustrated by the teaching and example of the long line of Democratic statesmen and patriots, and embodied in the platform of the last National Convention of the party. 2d. Opposition to centralization and to that dangerous spirit of encroachment which tends to the consolidated powers of all the departments in one, and thus to create, whatever be the form of government, a real despotism; no summary laws; separation of church and State for the good of each; common schools fostered and protected. 3d. Home rule, honest money, a strict maintenance of public faith; a currency consisting of gold and silver, and paper convertible into coin on demand; strict maintenance of public faith, State and National, and a tariff for revenue only. 4th. The subordination of the military to the civil powers, and a general and thorough reform of the civil service. 5th. The right to a free ballot is a right preservative of all rights, and must and shall be maintained in every part of the United States. 6th. The existing administration is the representative of conspiracy only, and its claim of right to surround the ballot boxes with troops and deputy marshals, to intimidate and obstruct electors, and the unprecedented use of the veto to maintain its corrupt and despotic power, insults the people and imperils their institutions. 7th. The great fraud of 1876-77, by which, upon a false count of the electoral vote of two States, the candidate defeated at the polls was declared to be the President, and for the first time in American history the will of the people was set aside, under a threat of military violence, struck a deadly blow at our system of representative government. The Democratic party, to preserve the country from civil war, submitted for the time, in the firm and patriotic faith that the people would punish this crime in 1880. This issue precedes and dwarfs every other. It imposes a more sacred duty upon the people of the Union than was ever addressed to the conscience of a nation of freemen.

8th. We exhort the course of this administration in making places in the civil service a reward for political crime, and demand a reform by a statute which shall make it forever impossible for a defeated candidate to bribe his way to the seat of the usurper, by billeting villains upon the people.

9th. The resolution of Samuel J. Tilden not again to be a candidate for the exalted place to which he was elected by a majority of his countrymen, and from which he was excluded by the leaders of the Republican party, is received by the Democrats of the United States with sensibility, and they declare their confidence in his wisdom, patriotism and integrity, unshaken by the assaults of a common enemy, and they further assure him that he is followed in the retirement he has chosen for himself by the sympathy and respect of his fellow citizens, who regard him as one who by the elevating standard of public morality and adorning and purifying public service, merits the lasting gratitude of his country and his party.

10th. Free ships and a living chance for American commerce on the seas and on the land. No discrimination in favor of transportation laws, corporations or monopolies.

11th. An amendment of the Burlingame treaty. No more Chinese immigration except for travel, education and foreign commerce, and therein carefully guarded.

12th. Public money and public credit for public purposes solely, and the public land for actual settlers.

13th. The Democratic party is the friend of labor and the laboring man, and pledges itself to protect him alike against corporators and the commune.

14th. We congratulate the country upon the honesty and thrift of the Democratic Congress, which has reduced the public expenditure forty millions a year; upon the continuation of prosperity at home, and the national honor abroad, and above all, upon the promise of such a change in the administration of the government as shall insure us a genuine and lasting reform in every department of the public service.
