Raleigh had a disastrous fire on Saturday morning. The planing mills of Ellington & Royster, in the Northwestern part of the city, were destroyed, together with five other buildings. The total loss is $18,000. Ellington & Royster had but $3,000 insurance. They will rebuild at once.

The Newbernian endorses the action of Gov. Jarvis in refusing to fulfill the pledge he made to allow the private stockholders to control the lease of the Atlantic & North Carolina R. R. It says:

We heartily endorse the action of the Governor, and believe that a very large majority of the people of Craven county, probably three-fourths, will concur. In fact the number in the county who favor the lease is made up of a certain class of soreheads who would not be averse to giving the Road away in order to put the present efficient administration on the same footing with themselves &c. among the "outs."

After the stockholders' adjourned meeting, the stockholders who favored the lease, and who in part composed the class above alluded to, assembled in a sort of mass meeting, to give vent to their wrath and fiery indignation, at this meeting.

It seems to us that our friend of the Newbernian has rather given himself away on this. According to the report of the meeting, as published in his own columns, in the regular meeting there were represented 12,666 shares belonging to the State and 4,071 shares held by corporations and individuals. In the private meeting of stockholders (vide Newbernian) held afterwards, there were 4,129 shares of stock represented, or just 53 shares more of private stock than was represented in the regular meeting. Will the Newbernian rise to explain what has become of the private stockholders represented in the first meeting who opposed the lease, if the second meeting was made up of those "who in part composed the class alluded to" whom the Newbernian classes elsewhere as "sore-heads," with 58 shares more than had been previously represented? Sifted, the matter stands thus: There were 4,071 private shares at the first meeting and 4,129 at the second. In this latter the proposition to lease to the Wilmington & Weldon R. R. got 3,340 shares in the affirmative and 789 shares in the negative.
Of these 789, 350 shares were held by Col Morehead, who explained his vote by saying that while opposed to the Best proposition he was yet not willing to accept that of Col. Bridgers and Capt. Divine, as he wished to hold back for better terms. Now, who and where are the real "sore-heads?" of Messrs. Hart, Bailey & Co.'s iron works.

Now, if some of the boys want a little

December's Weather.

Venor makes his weather predictions for December as follows: "December will, in all probability, open with little snow, but the weather will be cloudy, threatening snow falls. There will probably be some snow from about the 4th of the month. With the second quarter of the month colder weather will probably set in, with falls of snow. There will be a spell of mild weather about the 12th and 14th. After a brief interval of mild weather, during which more snow will fall, the third quarter of the month will probably see blistering and cold weather.
The last quarter of the month will bring milder weather, but will terminate probably with heavy snow falls and stormy weather; in fact, the heaviest snow falls will be toward the end of the month, and snow blockades may be looked for. The snow falls extending far to the southward, possibly as far as Washington, with very stormy weather around New York and Boston.

Criminal Court.

The special term of this Court, ordered by Judge Meares to anticipate the regular December term, at which time the regular term of the Superior Court would also have convened in this county, convened at 10 o'clock this morning, with His Honor Judge Meares on the bench.

The following named persons were drawn as Grand Jurors: John Maunder, foreman; James Kendrick, J. M. Bremer, C. D. Morrill, Samuel Reed, Henry Reider, Thomas Reed, Nathan Reeves, Robert Sweat, Stephen Scedden, W. K.
Bell, Benj. Farrow, Jr., A. G. McGirt, Balaam W. Wade, Romulus Waddell, J. T. Foreman, A. B. George, Isaac D.
Reynolds.

After the jury had been duly sworn and assigned to the jury box, His Honor delivered his charge, which, according to our judgment, was the most clear, comprehensive and exhaustive of the many able charges which His Honor has delivered since the inauguration of the Criminal Court in this county. If crime does not cease in this community, or goes unpunished after its commission, the fault is clearly not with the presiding Judge.

The following cases have been disposed of up to our close:

State vs. B. F. Turlington, A. and B Judgment suspended upon payment of cost.

State vs. Stephen Moore, Emanuel Allen and James Bagley, injuring stock-Defendant submits. Fine $26 and cost.

State vs. W. H. Moore, unlawful fence. Now on trial.

We advise all in need of Household Har-ware to first go to JACOBI'S. There you get the lowest prices.

Catch the Black Varmint!

On Friday morning last several chickens were found dead and with their throats cut, in a private lot near Market and Third streets, which the night previous were well and apparently healthy. A cat was also found on the premises at the same time dead with its throat cut. The night following this occurrence, or rather the day after, several chickens and a cat were found dead with their throats cut on a private lot on Second, between Dock and Orange streets. These two incidents led to the belief that it could be no human agency which thus wantonly destroyed these things' lives, and that consequently, as a mink, is an animal which never devours the flesh, but only sucks the blood of its victim, it is supposed that one of these amphibious animals must be on a short visit to the city to enjoy his Thanksgiving and Christmas dinners at the expense of our citizens and their poultry. What seems conclusive evidence as to the nature of the author of these foul deeds is the fact that the first named locality is near the run which flows from the lot by the jail yard and the second named place is not very far removed from the same run where it passes through the premises of Messrs. Hart, Bailey & Co.'s iron works.
Now, if some of the boys want a little sport let them get their dogs and torches and go mink hunting to-night. Remember, too, you can sell his skin for about sixty-five cents or a dollar.

Seeing is believing—without doubt you can buy Cooking and Heating Stoves at almost any price at JACOBI'S.

"Drink" To-Night.

There is no doubt as to the merits of the performance to be given at the Opera House this evening. This seems to be the general sentiment as well, as there is now every prospect of a good house this evening. The Atlanta (Ga.) Constitution of last Tuesday, commenting on the performance of "Drink," in that city, says:

The opening scenes, introducing the apartment of Lantier—the delivery of the key, the interior of the public wash-house, and the battle with the water-buckets between Gervaise and Virginie, were so natural in the mounting and appointments and so life-like in the acting that the minds of the audience were thoroughly enlisted, and their sympathies gently put upon the alert. So natural was the easy and gradual development of the plot that the effect upon the audience was almost the same as would have been produced upon a crowd looking upon the actual occurrence of every-day life. The second act brought out a delicious bit of acting between Gervaise, Rose Eytinge, and Coupeau, Cyril Searle in the courtship scene before the Salon; L'Assommoir, but it was not until the third act that the audience, whose gentler emotions had been thus far kept in a constant flutter between smiles and tears—was deeply soured. Just here Lantier, the deserting husband, suddenly darted in upon the wedding party of Gervaise and Cou-peau, throwing the guests into an ecstasy of astonishment, and giving Rose Eytinge an opportunity to paint painful amazement so naturally that the curtain went down amid the impassioned applause of the whole house. The fourth act—completing the building—beginning with the happy home scene and ending with the fall of Coupeau from the scaffolding, afforded a dramatic contrast so startling in its realism that it almost threw the ladies of the audience into slight hysterics and made the men momentarily shiver with fright. In this act little Ollie, as Nana, the very small child of Cou-peau and Gervaise, showed herself a prodigy. The farewell at Father Col-ombe's place, where Coupeau yields to the devilish ridicule of his heartless and bestial tempters and takes the fatal cup, was played with a quiet but powerful naturalness which held the breathless attention of the audience, and the scene which ensued when his heart-broken wife enters and finds her drunken husband was given with most distressing effect. The sixth act, disclosing the wonderful delirium tremens scene was a dramatic revelation. It was a great piece of acting—heart-rending in its realism—terrible in its intensity of passion—barrowing in its naturalness it wrought the audience to the highest pitch of horror—melted it to overwhelming pity—harrowing up the souls of all!
And yet the scene was managed with such artistic tact that there was nothing in it to disgust. Mr. Searle was called twice with marked enthusiasm. The last scene, representing Gervaise reduced to beggary and dying in the streets of Paris in the snow, was played by Rose Eytinge with marvellous effect. We have never seen a more affecting scene on any stage.

Tomorrow evening Miss Eytinge appears in her famous character "Armande Chandoc," in the superb society play, "Led Astray." The costumes worn by her in this piece were made by Worth of Paris and are said to be the handsomest ever brought South by any actress.

Rat and Mouse traps. Caught nearly forty one night. These traps are sold at Jaco-
