ADULTERATIONS.

Nearly every article of food that is sold, says the New York Bulletin, can safely be said to be more or less adulterated. Not that the pure article with the views of General Garfield on sold, says the New York Bulletin, can not be bought or, that all dealers are dishonest, but that the purchaser must know what he is about or he will in many instances be given adulterated substances. Indeed, in some cases, it may be said the customer prefers the adulterated to the pure article, so depraved has his taste become by long continued use of the former. Instances are many where people have become so accustomed to drink coffee mixed with chickory. peas and the like, that they will send back to the store as inferior in taste the very best Java. This, however, is no excuse for deceit.

art, and in those articles on which there is but a small margin of profit when sold legitimately, it is carried on with skill worthy of a better cause. For instance, will doubtless be beneficial in many a firm, whose manufactory is in South Brooklyn, is making and selling as butter a substance which has not even the merit of oleomargarine to recommend it. Oleanie (the oil of fat), lard and good butter are melted in a tank and thoroughly mixed, when it is put into new Welsh tubs and sold to shippers as butter. Such little butter as is used in this process is really of a fine grade, but it is only used to give color and flavor to the substance. Of course much money is of Cabinet officers, the friends of Senator made by this deception.

In this particular instance, of course, President Garfield will not learn anything, but it is something to have his ideas before the people and before Congress in a sort of experimental way for three months, so that, before he comes to speak in his own name he can tell better how popular they are.

Ex-Senator Sprague has been in town for a few days, and all sorts of designs, from commencing a divorce suit, to advising General Garfield as to the New England member of his Cabinet, are named as objects of his visit. Speaking Irregular Action, Throbbing, Jumping, Diseases of the throat and lungs demand active and effective treatment; and it is dangerous experimenting with unknown and cheap medicines, from the great liability that these diseases may, while so trifled with, become deeply seated or incurable. Use AVER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, and you may confidently expect the best results. It is of acknowledged curative power, and is as cheap as its careful preparation and fine ingredients will allow.
