An Old Doctor's Advice.
It was this: "Trust in God and keep your bowels open." For this purpose many an old doctor has advised the habitually constipated to take Kidney-Wort—

Cold Snap.
"We're havin' some pretty wintry weather," said old Daddy Wotherpoon to Uncle Sammy Honniwell, as the two gentlemen met near the City Hall.

Daddy Wotherpoon looked at him and braced himself. "Yes, yes," said he.
"I mind it well. That's the fall the milk froze in the cows. But the cold season was in 1827. It commenced in the middle of October and ran through to April.

"Not I," said Daddy Wotherpoon, after a short pause. "That's the winter we used to give the horses melted lead to drink, and keep a hot fire under 'em so it wouldn't harden till they got it down.

"Well, I should say I did, retorted Uncle Sammy. "What! remember 1817?
That was the spell when it took a steam grindstone four days to raise the water from August, and she boomed till the 30th of June. I got through the whole spell by living in an ice-house. It was too cold to go out of doors, so I just camped in an ice-house. You remember that season of 1817. That's the winter we wore undershirts of sand-paper to keep up a friction."

"Howso?" demanded Daddy Wotherspoon, breathing hard.
"Runnin' around your ice-house to find out where you got in. It was an awful spell, though. How long did it last?
From August till the 30th of June? I guess you're right. But you mind the snap of 1813, don't you? It commenced on the 1st of July, and went around and lapped over a week. That year the smoke froze in the chimneys and we had to blast it out with dynamite. I think that was the worst we ever had. All the clocks froze up so we didn't know the time for a year, and then men used to set fire to their buildings' so's to raise the rent. Yes, indeed, I got $3,000 a month for four barnin' buildings. There was a heap of sufferin' that winter, because we lived on alcohol and phosphorus, till the alcohol froze, and then we eat the brimstone ends of matches and jumped around till they caught fire. Say, you—"

But Daddy Wotherpoon had fled.
The statistics were too much for him.—
