The pelican, like the plumber, is remarkable for its enormous bill:

We have seen spring bonnets with sixteen full-blown poppies on them. The young ladies' poppies have to pay dearly for them.

Indications.
For the South Atlantic States fair weather, south to west winds, stationary or higher barometer and temperature.

Imported Stock.
Capt. T. J. Southerland received this morning from New York a couple of genuine imported English Southdown rams, which will be sent for the present to his model farm near this city. The rams are said to have a pedigree as long as a seven-teen-sheet MSS., and are no doubt among the best in this country. They are very large and fine-looking, though at present they look a little the worse for wear on account of their long sea voyage.

City Court.
His Honor Mayor Smith interviewed five hucksters this morning. They were charged with non-payment of the license tax. Judgment was suspended on the promise of payment of costs.
A white woman, charged with disorderly conduct, was fined $10 and costs—or 20 days' imprisonment.

Special Term Criminal Court
A special term of the Criminal Court for this county has been ordered by his Honor Judge O. P. Meares to convene on the 30th day of May. The special term is in order to prevent a conflict with the Superior Court which convenes on the 1st Monday in June. Witnesses recognized for the appearance at the June term of the Criminal Court will have to attend the special term.

Really St. Jacobs Oil is a wonderful remedy, writes Mr. Wm. Reinhart, Elmire, Wis., for I could mention dozens of cases where it has proved its magical influence. One case in particular I will state: I know a man who suffered with Rheumatism for the last twenty-four years, and of late he could hardly move around. After using a few bottles of St. Jacobs Oil he was entirely cured.

The Doctor of Alcantara
The Doctor of Alcantara will be repeated at the Opera House to-night for the benefit of Mrs. M. P. Taylor. Judging from the diagram a good audience will greet the Doctor. In addition to the attractions presented at the last performance, Mrs. Kahnweiler will render several of her vocal selections and Professor Gaston M. Hobbs will, by request perform several difficult pieces on the violin. Professor Tony will also appear and take part in the guards. Mr. R. H. Grant will be quite an addition and his fine voice will add much to the harmony and melody of the vocal parts.

Odd Fellows' Anniversary.

Grand Representative C. M. Busbee, of Raleigh, will deliver an address before Cape Fear and Orion Lodges I O O F., of this city, to night, the occasion being the 62d anniversary of American Odd Fellowship. The public are invited to attend.

Gen. R. B. Colston is still confined to his bed at the residence of his son-in-law, Capt. A. D. Lippitt, from a severe affection of the sciatic nerve. He has been a great sufferer, having been laid up with the same trouble while in Egypt, when he was carried on a litter across the desert. He thinks his present attack is much more severe than the one he had while in the Khedive's army.

Bellevue cemetery.
At the fifth annual meeting of lot-owners and stockholders of Bellevue Cemetery Company held last night, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year:
President—E. W. Manning.
Vice President—John A. Everitt.
Secretary and Treasurer—John S. McEachern.

Directors—John D. Bellamy, Jr., W. A. Cumming, John C. Bornemann, P. H. Smith, James Alderman, S. W. Holden, S. H. Morton.

A superintendent of the cemetery will be elected at a future meeting of the Board of Directors.

A Friend in Need.
The following story, is related by the Washington correspondent of the Atlanta Constitution:

The other evening I witnessed an incident which was an eloquent answer to the slanders of the Southern people on the negro question. I was standing in the Metropolitan hotel when an aged negro went up to Gen. Ransom and Gen. Zeb Vance, who were conversing in the lobby. In a few minutes I saw them go out with the old negro between them just as if he were a United States Senator, take him to the ticket office next door, buy him a ticket to Charlotte, and put him in a hack which took him to the depot with a crisp $5 bill in his hand. He had been in Virginia for some time but longed for his home in the old North State, telling Vance that he wanted to die "on the old plantation." It was too much for the warm-hearted "tar-heel." Money and moisture came at once, and to day there is one happy negro in North Carolina.

The Death of Mr. Mahn.
Mr. W. D. Mahn after a severe illness of twenty-eight days, died at his residence in this city last evening, at 8 o'clock, of typhoid fever. The subject of this notice was born in Pender, then New Hanover county, on April 11th, 1828, and was at the time of his death 53 years and 14 days old. He removed to this city when a young man and has always made a good and law-abiding citizen. He was a consistent member of the Front Street M. E. Church and was for many years one of the Board of Stewards of that church. He was for four years one of the Board of Audit and Finance of the city. Mr. Mahn was a member of Carolina Lodge No. 434, Knights of Honor, and his remains were followed by the Lodge to their last resting place this afternoon. The beautiful ritual of the Order was read over the remains at the grave.

Death of an Octogenarian.
Mr. Jacob Taylor, of Magnolia township, Duplin county, died on Thursday, the 21st inst., at the residence of his son, J. Wells Taylor, Esq., aged about 87 years. The deceased was a pensioner of the government, having been a soldier in the last war with Great Britain. He never had a day's sickness during his entire life, and the writer has frequently heard him say that he had heard others complain of pains and aches, but personally he knew nothing about them. We saw him but a few weeks ago, when he was as active and cheerful as many who are twenty years his junior. He lived without sickness and died without disease, but merely a painless wasting away of the vital forces. He had been for half a century a consistent and conscientious member of the Baptist Church, and during his long, useful and exemplary life no word of calumny was ever breathed against him. An humble Christian, a kind-hearted friend, neighbor and father, of him it may be truly said: "A good man has departed."

War History.

The Southern Historical Papers for March which we have not been able to review before it is at hand, and contains an unusual number of interesting papers, among which we notice the gallant General James H. Lane's reply to General Harris, of Mississippi, about the occupation and defense of Battery Gregg.

General Harris, it seems, belonged to Mahone's division and apparently imbued with the same spirit of his valiant chief, he appropriates the honors that belong to others.

General Lane commences his article with a dig into Mahone's ribs, in the following style:

During the war I had no newspaper correspondent at my headquarters, nor did I write anything about my brigade for publication. Since I have "put aside the harness of war and become a quiet and plodding citizen" I have, by request, and "for the sake of truth and justice," written a few articles, in which I endeavored to give only such facts as came under my own observation. Now, unmasked, I must again obtrude myself "most reluctantly upon the public" as General Harris in the last No., 1880, of the Southern Historical Society Papers, does my old brigade and myself great injustice.

General Lane then produces the proof by irrefragable testimony that the honor and credit of the heroic defence of Battery Gregg belonged to Lane's brigade of North Carolinians. General L., after furnishing incontestable proof of the praiseworthy part borne by his brigade, says:

We deny that "the infantry garrison of Fort Gregg was composed entirely of the Mississippi brigade of Mahone's division." We deny that the honors of that defence belong exclusively to that brigade of Mahone's division. We claim that the largest part of the infantry which so heroically defended that fort was from our brigade of North Carolinians.

General Lane, although a Virginian himself, always speaks up nobly and fearlessly for North Carolina troops, and particularly for his splendid brigade of Carolinians.

The periodical which contains General Lane's communication, contains also many other valuable contributions to the truth of history concerning those turbulent times of war. The magazine is published monthly at Richmond, Va., and should be in the hands of every Southern man and woman. The subscription is only $3.00 a year. Address Rev. J. William Jones, Secretary, Richmond, Virginia.

WAR DEPARTMENT,

OFFICE CHIEF SIGNAL OFFICER, WASHINGTON, D. C., April 26th, 1881, 2:50 P. M.

The Chief Signal Officer furnishes the following special bulletin to the press:

The area of low barometer which at yesterday's readings moved eastward across the Lakes and is now central North of Kingston Ontario. Rain has fallen during the past twenty-four hours in Texas, and in all districts East of the Mississippi except New England. The winds in the Lake Region have veered to West-ly, the temperature has fallen from five to fifteen degrees in the upper Mississippi Valley and the Southern portion of the upper Lake Region. It has risen slightly in the extreme Northwest. The Missouri River is seven feet and ten inches above the danger line at Omaha, and two inches above it at Leavenworth. It is at the danger line at Memphis and Vicksburg, one inch below it at New Orleans and two inches at St. Louis. The indications are that the depression near Central Ontario will move Northeastward to the St. Lawrence Valley and that cloudy weather with rain will prevail in New England to-day followed by clearing weather. Fair weather will prevail in the Middle Atlantic States to-day and to-morrow preceded by local rains to-day. The Missouri and Mississippi will probably continue to rise and the latter to reach the danger line at St. Louis to-day.

We hear that Mr. W. D. Mahn had insurance policies amounting to $20,000 on his life.

This has been the hottest day of the season thus far. The thermometer reached 82° in this office at 3 o'clock this afternoon.

Soda fountains did a good business in dispensing the cooling liquid to day, to say nothing of the Deep Rock and Vichy that was imbibed by the thirsty wayfarer.

Mr. J. C. Lumsden has opened his Ice Cream Saloon for the season, and is in full blast now ready to serve ladies, and gentlemen, or picnics and excursion parties.

We are glad to be able to state that there is a marked change for the better in the condition of our Chief, and although still quite sick, we hope to be able to report his rapid convalescence in a few days.
