How long—oh, how long—is this to be thus? We can write if the thunder does roar, and the lightnings do flash, but when the telephone wire just over our devoted head takes a "hand in," and goes to pop- ping, and cracking, and ringing the bell, then we begin to feel "kinder"—well	Crop Prospects. The best field of corn, taking the num- ber of acres planted into cousideration, within a radius of fifty miles, is, we are confident, upon the plantation of Dr. E. Porter, about one mile easterly from Rocky Point, in Pender county. The field contains 125 acres, about 100 of which are in corn while the remainder is in cotton and groundpeas. The corn, which is all in one body, will average nearly or quite six feet in height, and is remarkably even in its appearance and growth throughout the entire field. We passed through a large pertion of it yes- terday, the 30th ult, and, although we had been apprised of its forward condi- tion, we were astonished at such a re- markable growth for the time of year. The cotton and peas alluded to were also looking very finely, giving promise of an abundant harvest. Ma Improvement. The sharpie Roger Moore, under com- mand of Capt. James Brinkley, will be at Wrightsville on the Fourth to take passengers to and from the beach. When fully loaded she draws only eight inches of water and it is hardly possible that she will get stuck on a shoal. In addition to her light draft of water sho is said te be very fast and is perfectly tight and dry. Call at Jacons's for Garden Hoes and Rakes, Shovels, Spades, Axes, &c. There	took place during the daytime while the evening was devoted to vocal and instru- mental music, dialogues, charades and speeches, all of which were rendered in good taste and in a majority of in- stances excellently. The weather was oppressively hot and the room was crowd- ed almost to suffocation by the ladies and gentlemen of the vicinity, but the young lads and lassies composing the school, un mindful of the former and cheered by the inspiring presence of the latter, went through the several parts assigned them with promptness, ease and infinite grace. We wish that we had space to particu- iarize, but where all were deserving it becomes unnecessary. Miss Durham is a faithful and efficient teacher—easy and polished in manners—firm yet kind in discipline, with a fondness and perfec- adaptability for her profession which makes her services invaluable as a teach er. She is a thorough musician and that portion of the entertainment re flected great credit both upon teacher and pupils. We regretted exceedingly that previous arrangements preventer our remaining uv.til the entertainment closed, and when we were compelled re luctantly to decline the many invitation to remain and the hearty proffers of hos pitality from the citizens of the neighbor hood, we felt that we had been altogether too previous in our arrangements.
