RALEIGH, N. C., Sept. 27, 1881.
Mrs. JOE PERSON,

Franklin, N. C.
DEAR MADAM:—In reply to your letter asking what I think of your Remedy.
I would say that the thesaurus have been very fair, and so far as I can learn, the Remedy has been very satisfactory to my customers who have used it, especially so in the case of a little girl of this city, ten years of age, who was troubled for a long time with sores breaking out over the face and neck, having the appearance of Scrofula, and which had resisted the usual alternative treatment for a long time. She took four bottles of the Bitters last Spring, when the sores entirely disappeared, and up to this time she has had no return of them, her skin looking as fair and clear as anyone's.
Trusting that you may receive the success which your Remedy seems to merit.
I am, very respectfully yours,
WM. SIMPSON,
Druggist.

Cut by a Saw.

A horrible accident occurred to-day at Mr. J. A. Springer's wood yard. A young colored boy by the name of Robert, whose other name we could not ascertain, while engaged near a circular wood saw, stumbled and fell against the saw. His right hand was cut nearly through the palm, and his arm was also pretty badly cut. He was taken immediately to Dr.
Schonwald, Jr., who amputated part of the hand, and hopes to save the remainder.

Malicious Mischief.

Some malicious individual drove a wedge into the keyhole of the letter-box at the corner of Market and Seventh streets, and when it was attempted yesterday afternoon to open the box and remove the mail, it could not be accomplished, and hence the mail matter deposited there remained in the box all night.
This morning the wedge was cut out and the box was opened. If the party who is responsible for this little piece of malicious mischief was aware of the severe punalty provided for such offences, he would "never do so, no more"—hardly ever.

The "Edgewood Folks."

Sol Smith Russell, with his fine troupe, will appear here next Tuesday evening in the play he is now running, "Edgewood Folks." The advertisement appears in this issue and the sale of seats will commence at Messrs Dyer & Son's tomorrow morning. The Philadelphia Evening News says of Mr. Russell and his play:

"Edgewood Folks" is a play which has many elements of popular success, and in the hands of the present company cannot fail to draw large houses. It is full of touches of the comic side of human nature, and satirizes the gushing sentimentality of the average novel as well as much other romantic nonsense.
In Tom Dilloway, who is an eccentric individual who makes himself quite happy with everybody, singing songs and playing all kinds of pranks, Mr. Sol Smith Russell has a part admirably adapted for his special line of acting, his character delineations being almost as perfect as his rapid changes were wonderful. He is a great master of the facial expression, and his make-up for his second song celebrating the virtues of Rhine wine, was one of his most complete transformations. Hulda Jane Hardwicke—a sentimental old maid with a weakness for moonlight and "ladders" at "her chamber window" is one of the best parts in the play. The audience departed at a late hour in a state of high good humor.

The Carolina Central.

Up to 1 o'clock to-day the Carolina Central R. R. had not changed hands, but negotiations are progressing so favorably that the probabilities are it will soon be accomplished. The following information is all that has absolutely transpired which can be made public and it is published by us authoritatively.

Negotiations have taken place at various times between Capt. Murchison and Col. Robinson for the sale of a large interest in the Carolina Central. Mr.
Edward Matthews, of New York, acting as agent for his wife, Mrs. Virginia B.
Matthews, who holds a minority interest in the road, having heard of the negotiations, undertook to enjoin a sale of the securities which were under negotiation. We are informed that Mr. Matthews has for a long time endeavored to obtain control of the property in order to make a sale of it himself to Col. Robinson, with whom he had frequently conferred for that purpose. We now understand that these injunction proceedings have been dissolved, it being shown that Mrs. Matthews has no claim. We are assured, however, by Col. Robinson himself that in the event of a sale the management of the company will not be disturbed and that Capt. Murchison will continue as its President.

Reminiscences of an Old Fort Built by the British in Wilmington in 1781.

In January of the year 1781 Wilmington was occupied by British troops, and a strong garrison, under the command of Major Craig, was left in the town. The garrison was composed of infantry, artillery and a detachment of cavalry. The cavalry force established headquarters in the old Episcopal Church, which stood partly on Market street, not far from the present location of St. James' Church and which commanded the approaches from the old Newbern road as well as from Brunswick ferry.

Immediately after the occupation of the town by the British forces a fort was erected near the corner of Second and Nun streets, on the lots now occupied by Maj. Thos. H. McKoy and Mr.
R. B. Jewett. This Fort was an earth-work with its parapets strengthened by sand bags and garrisoned by an artillery and infantry force. A well was sunk in the Fort, cannon mounted and a magazine constructed, and it was considered at that time to be a formidable stronghold. The location was said to have been selected by Maj. Craig's engineer officer on account of its commanding view of the town. A flag staff was erected, from which floated the British flag, and the morning and evening guns which reached their thunder across the waters of the Cape Fear each day, reminded the inhabitants of the presence of a hostile foe.

In November, 1781, just one hundred years ago, the fort was dismantled and the garrison withdrawn, to the great relief of the inhabitants of Wilmington, who had been sorely oppressed during the rule of Major Craig.

In the year 1839, the late Daniel Fergus, then owning the greater portion of the land upon which the fort stood, cut down the hill considerably, to erect some buildings thereon.
In excavating they came upon the lower part of the flagstaff which bore evidence of having been cut off. It was a charred stick of pine, in excellent preservation, about four feet in length and about a foot in diameter. Numerous other relics of the garrison were exhumed, consisting of grape shot, cannon balls, musket balls and flints, initial buttons, &c.

A century has passed away since the last tread of the British garrison resounded in the old Fort and since that November morning sun looked down upon the glad faces of the inhabitants of Wilmington, as the last file of British soldiers disappeared in the distance.
Long since its storm beaten parapet succumbed to the hand of time and sunk back to the common level of the plain; and there is no visible vestige remaining to remind the occupants of its now peaceful domain, how formidable this spot once appeared in the eyes of the people of Wilmington.

Recently the remains of some masonry underground have been discovered on the site by Major McKoy, which it is supposed had some connection with the old fort, as no building was ever known to have stood there previous to the present one, and this discovery has revived the memories and traditions of the old fort and suggested this sketch.

The River Mail.

The people living along the line of the Cape Fear river, between this city and Fayetteville, seem to have no rights that the Postoffice Department is bound to respect. They represent an influential, an industrious and an enterprising people and are as much entitled to mail facilities as the people of any other section. At the best they have but two mails a week, and even this service is reduced to one mail per week.
The following, from the Fayetteville Examiner, is pertinent to the subject, and we endorse it:

The semi-weekly mail service on the Cape Fear river by means of the steamer Worth, has been reduced to a weekly service, and the office of mail agent has been abolished. This is a very questionable piece of economy on the part of the government. If the authorities at Washington will go to work and expend the money appropriated by Congress in making the river navigable at all seasons of the year and retain the semi-weekly mail service, it would continue to be a real public benefit. There is an immense traffic on the Cape Fear River and the business interests of a multitude of people require a prompt and frequent mail service. The recent low stage of the river instead of being made a pretext for reducing the frequency of the mail service, ought rather to have afforded an opportunity for putting the river in such a condition that there would be no interruption of the prompt and regular carriage of the mails.

Fashion Notes.

In the line of winter chapeaux there are a few pronounced changes, what might be classed as exaggerated style.
The "huge" poke will take the lead in society headgear. This style is very becoming to some faces, and particularly when the wearer tilts the bonnet over the forehead. Beaver hats are gotten up in a showy style; the brims are remarkably wide, and some of the designs have the front rolled back considerably, which style is only becoming to a youthful face. English walking hats, Derbys and feathered turbans are all fashionable. The chief feature in winter millinery is the great variety presented in the plumes used, the majority of which have double shadings.
There is an upper and under hue of opposite dyes. For example, a plume with the flukes showing a deep marine blue has the under flukes in scarlet. Velvet chapeaux are popular. They are adorned with beads and moire ribbons, and often the trimming is composed entirely of ostrich tips and plumes. Tinsel plush holds a prominent position in millinery ornamentation, and this style has combined with it rich chenille cordings, which give a gay and pleasing expression to the chapeaux designed for ceremonious occasions.

New Territory Acquired.

Our days of Rheumatism are well nigh numbered, according to an Illinois exchange. St. Jacobs Oil enters a rheuject. That's right. We believe in it.

The Landmark.

PUBLISHED AT
STATESVILLE, IREDELL CO., N. C.
Is the Leading Newspaper in Western North Carolina.

It is the only Democratic Paper published in Irredell county—one of the largest and wealthiest counties in the State—and has attained a larger local circulation than any paper ever heretofore published in the county.

Its circulation in Alexander, Wilkes, Ashe, Alleghany, Yadon, Davie and Irredell, is larger than that of any two papers in the State combined; and is rapidly acquiring a strong foothold in Forsythe, Surry, Rowan and western Mecklenburg.

It is the only paper in Western North Carolina that employs a Regular Carveing Agent and is thus kept constantly before the people. Under this system a rapidly increasing circulation is the result, making "the Landmark."
