THE FUTURE OF THE SOUTH.

Col. A. K. McClure, editor of the Philadelphia Times, and one of the most far-seeing of Northern journalists, has written a letter to his paper, from Atlanta, where he now is in attendance upon the Exposition, in which he predicts a most successful future for the South. He says: "The chief lessons of the Atlanta Exposition are eminently practical, and they are so regarded by the Southern people. They will give not only immediate, but lasting and incalculable fruits of the grandest character. The Cotton Exposition will silence the hum of many spindles in the North, and it will make the South much more the legitimate field for both invention and capital than it has ever been in the past. It will teach to the great mass of the Southern people what only the theorists have known until now—that the greatest boon to the South, after the cotton gin, is the cotton spindle; and I hazard nothing in saying that in another decade Georgia will spin all her cotton, have looms for most of it, and make the music of the cotton factory heard in every cotton centre of the South. Of all civilizations of the nineteenth century, the Old South was the only one that would have paid more than two hundred millions of dollars annually to the hated North to spin its cotton. With a thousand miles of transportation, the cost of baling, the injury to the fibre by pressing and separating it again for the spindle, and the increased cost of labor in the North, all pleading for the spindle in the South, the North gathered the chief profits of Southern products by receiving the raw material and returning it in web to be sold largely to those who should have made it. But the New South has studied simple arithmetic, and its Cotton Exposition is merely a huge blackboard on which is presented to the whole South the plain lesson that the three hundred millions' worth of cotton, produced this year, will be worth three hundred millions more when the ample and endless water powers of the South shall be employed to whirl the merry spindles at home. This is the great lesson of the Atlanta Exposition, and the preliminary progress that has made the grand Exposition possible, has developed a measure of invention and advancement in the South that is truly wonderful. No one can carefully note the cotton machinery at the Exposition without accepting the conviction that even the old cotton gin and the old spindle will soon become integral parts of the same cunning implement, and that the raw cotton from the field sack will be ginned and spun by a single process. That once attained, or even the spinning of the cotton, with its two or three hundred millions of annual compensation, assured to the South, its progress will outstrip the wildest calculation, and every channel of industry will share the impetus. It was a hard uphill struggle to lay the solid foundations for Southern progress, but it has been done, and the active men of to-day will live to rejoice in the enlightened advancement and wealth and grandeur of the New South."

Gen. Judson Kilpatrick, who was known quite prominently as the commander of the cavalry corps attached to Sherman's army, when he devastated the South in 1865, is dead. Dispatches received at the State Department, at Washington, D. C., announce that he died at Santiago, Chili, on Sunday, the 4th inst. De mortuis nil nisi bonum.

The king rode fast, the king rode far; "Now, by my crown," quoth he, "If I in all the land, shall find A maiden of contented mind— Be she of high or low degree. By pagan rites or Christian signed— My consort she shall be." But when he chanced the maid to meet, So well content was she, She would not wed—but deaf and blind. Went on her way: "Alack, I find I'm caught in my own web," quoth he: "This maiden of contented mind is too content for me."—The Century.

Why Are You Bilious? Because you have allowed your bowels to become costive, and liver torpid. Use Kidney Wort to produce a free state of the bowels, and it will stimulate the liver to proper action, cleanse the skin of its yellowness, cure bilious headache, and cause new life in the blood. Druggists have it, both dry and liquid.—Zion's Herald.

THE PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

This important document was read into Congress yesterday, the 6th inst. It is a formidable document, so far as length is concerned, and contains some wise and practical suggestions, but would, as a whole, possess but very little interest to a majority of our readers, even did our space afford room for its insertion. Our people are not inclined to care so much for what a President may say as they will for what he does, and would much rather avoid the trouble of such an amount of reading and wait to pass judgment upon his acts.

It is predicted by many that his administration will be of the stalwart order, but we will wait and see, although we confess that appearances indicate that such will be his course.

In alluding to appointments to office, he says: "In my judgment no man should be the incumbent of an office the duties of which, he is for any cause, unfit to perform—who is lacking in the ability, fidelity or integrity which the proper administration of such office demands." The want of the last two requisites were charged to him by R. B. Hayes and John Sherman, when they removed him from the New York Custom House; but as the present President was known to be as honest as Hayes, and as recent developments show that he was the equal of Sherman in those virtues, we are not surprised at the result. Fidelity and integrity, we imagine, are intended to extend no farther than party needs may require, without any regard to the old-fashioned and almost obsolete idea of common honesty.

A Syracuse maiden has promised to marry five different men. The papers refer to her as a "promising society belle."

Mr. West, the British Minister, may be popular for awhile, but who knows how soon we shall be crying, "Go, West!"—Every Evening.

Chicago boasts of a woman who is the mother of 22 children. A pair of slippers must last her a mighty short time.—Boston Post.

A Philadelphia actor lugged away a pound of butter from a boarding house, the other day, mistaking it in his haste for a wig.—Boston Post.

"Will you tell me," asked an old gentleman of a lady, "what Mrs. —'s maiden name was?" "Why, her maiden aim was to get married, of course," exclaimed the lady.

Clara Belle tells of a man who, having inadvertently sat down on the only outlet of a hornet's nest, resolutely stayed there for hours, preferring to endure the stings in a circumscribed area rather than be stung all over.

You never hear any fuss about the taste of the water in Cincinnati. No one ever drinks it, and the boys keep their mouths closed while in bathing.—Boston Star.

GEN CLINGMAN'S LETTER. Hon. T. L. Clingman has a long letter in the New York Sun, of the 5th inst., in which he speaks of the resources of North Carolina, its climate, soil, woods, minerals, growth in population and wealth, &c., which is of much interest. His remarks, if it were possible for a northern man to credit any statement coming from the South relative to, and in praise of, this section, will have weight among those seeking new homes, a more congenial climate or a place for the investment of capital where the certainty of remunerative returns are guaranteed in advance.

The Sun.

THE SUN FOR 1882 will make its fifteenth annual revolution under the present management, and as always, for all, big and little, mean and radical, contented and unhappy, Republican and Democrat, depraved and virtuous, intelligent and obtuse, the Sun's light is for rank and womanhood of every sort, but its genial warmth is for the good, while it punishes the wicked on the blustering backs of the persistently wicked. The Sun of 1868 was a newspaper of a new kind. It discarded many of the forms, and a multitude of the superfluous words and phrases of ancient journalism. It undertook to report in a fresh, succinct, unconventional way all the news of the world, omitting no event of human interest, and commencing upon its first with the fearlessness of absolute independence. The success of this experiment was the success of the Sun. It effected a permanent change in the style of American newspapers. Every important journal established in this country in the ten years past has been modelled after the Sun. The Sun's motto is: "We will say what we see, and we will say it as we see it."

CHICKERING & SONS, Female School. THE EIGHTEENTH ANNUAL Session of this School will commence on Wednesday, October 5th, 1881, and close about the third week in June, 1882. Pupils who enter after the first month will be charged only from date of entrance, but it is expected they will attend school the remainder of the session unless otherwise provided by ill health, or removal from the city. Deductions made in all cases of protracted sickness. The courses of instruction will be as heretofore, thorough and systematic, each child receiving individual attention from the Principals. The School of Music will be conducted by Mrs. M. S. Cushing. Pupils outside of the School, wishing to enter for this branch of education, can be accommodated with suitable hours for early application. A limited number of boarding scholars can be received in the family of one of the Principals. For further particulars, see Principals, or send for circular.
