Mrs. Joe Person's Statement in Regard to Cancer.
I receive numerous letters asking if my remedy will cure Cancer. I can only cite the following case, which is the only one I have ever cured, the only one upon which I have had an opportunity of testing it in its incipient stage. When we were married, in 1857, my husband had a small wartlike place on his left cheek bone, which he told me then he thought would eventually terminate in cancer. We paid no attention to it, though he could see with advancing years that it was gradually increasing in size. Then it commenced to form a scab, something similar to a piece of dry brain, which would shed every few days, another form, and so it continued until March, 1872, when it broke out into a regular running, eating sore, which continued to spread with the most alarming rapidity throughout that spring and summer. The sore had eaten in considerably, was about the size of a silver quarter, had the appearance of honey-comb, with the cells distinctly marked, and considerably had a smarting, irritating sensation as if needles were picking the surface, with occasional sharp darting pains, which extended to the eye and weakened it. Every body who saw it considered it a case of well developed cancer. The physicians advised him to have it cut out, whereas I advised treatment at a cancer infirmary.
At last one of the physicians suggested that I try my Remedy, and said he believed it would cure it. The thought of it being it had never occurred to me, as I then only knew it to be good for Scrofula. I commenced its use on the sore the 1st day of October, and discontinued it the 7th November, as it was PERFECTLY CURED. It had then been a running sore for six months. It broke out again for four consecutive years; in the spring each time more severely, and requiring much longer to cure. I broke out last in 1876, when it required four months' treatment to effect a cure, since which time it has been and is now perfectly well. I have tried it in many advanced cases—cases beyond the possibility of hope of cure, always with benefit—sometimes by delaying its progress, sometimes by giving perfect freedom from all pain. I am, very truly,

The Governor's council were to have met in Raleigh yesterday to consider the agreement made with Dr. Canedo for the sale of the State's stock in the Cape Fear & Yadkin Valley Railroad. Dr.
Canedo has signed the agreement and returned it to Gov. Jarvis. President Gray will call a meeting of the stockholders as soon as the council acts, and such meeting will probably be held at Fayetteville in ten or fifteen days.

The Abduction Case.

Some days ago, some of our exchanges mentioned the fact of the abduction of a little girl, named Mattie Carroll, daughter of Luke Carroll, from the home of her father, in Columbus county. The abductor was a young white man, aged about 20, named William Wheeler, who had been for a short time in Mr. Carroll's employ. The girl was only 10 years old, and the parents were in great distress concerning her, and sent messages in every direction in order to obtain some clue whereby she might be identified and recovered. Hearing that they had been seen at Florence, and thinking that they might go to Sumter, the father telegraphed to the Chief of police of the latter place, who immediately went to Wedgefield where he got information that they had passed there on foot. He started at once on foot to overtake them, but before he reached them a freight train came along, having Mr. Carroll on board. As the train passed the father saw his child, and pulling the bell cord, jumped off and had the girl under his protection before the train was fairly stopped. He was about to take summary vengeance upon the scoundrel who had abducted his daughter, but at the suggestion of those present concluded to let the law deal with him.

A daughter of ex Secretary Evarts made herself a favorite in Washington society, not alone by her snowy complexion, gray-blue eyes and golden hair, but as well by her cups of chocolate. The Mexican minister used to say that in his own land no beverage was so delicious.
It was made of the best already sweetened chocolate, broken and placed in a warm spot to melt. When afterward put into a farina kettle, boiling milk was poured upon it, and from the moment when the first drop of milk touched it until it was done it was stirred. It was allowed to boil for several minutes, and when it was served in delicate cups it was thick and almost jelly like, and was capped with whipped cream.
This is the way that Baker's vanilla chocolate should always be prepared. It

The Champion Compress Co's Guano Warehouse and Elevator.

This establishment, located on the West bank of the river, nearly opposite the foot of Mulberry street, has been completed and is now in successful operation. The building is 246 feet long, 45 feet wide, 16 feet deep in the clear and has a capacity of between 6,000 and 7,000 tons, to which may be added a shed attached with a capacity of about 1,000 tons. It is furnished with "Hunt's Automatic Railway and Elevator," the two working in connection with each other.

The railway is located in the roof of the building and extends its entire length and is so arranged that the momentum acquired by sending the loaded car down the slightly inclined plane of the track is utilized to unload automatically and, by means of an endless rope, send it back from whence it came, for another load. The track is 18 inches gauge, and falls about three feet to the hundred, but has a greater inclination at the end where the load is received, in order to get the car in motion quickly.

The elevator is provided with an adjustable boom which extends outward over the hold of the discharging vessel.
The boom is provided with a track and automatic apparatus by which the tub is sized as it comes up loaded, and carried to the platform where the car is waiting, and into which the contents are dumped by a man stationed there for the purpose.

The car is of iron, is roof-shaped in the inside and holds about a ton. It opens at each side when it discharges its load, which is done automatically by the force of its own momentum. Such is the efficiency of the apparatus that in 30 seconds after the car is loaded, it has travelled from 200 to 250 feet, deposited its load and is back again upon the platform ready to be reloaded. Only one man is necessary on the platform to take care of the loading and unloading all of which he can do without travelling more than five feet and without great physical exertion.

The hoisting is done by means of a 15 horse-power engine, which only requires the attention of one man, so that all the men necessary, save those who fill the tub, in the hold of the vessel, are only two.

The entire construction of the railway and elevator, which, by the way, is the only one of its kind in the South, is very ingenious, yet very simple.

The building was planned and constructed and the machinery put in position by Mr. John H. Hanby, the well known contractor and builder, of this city, to whom we are under obligations for much information regarding this new enterprise.

The machinery was put in operation yesterday, for the first time, in unloading a vessel loaded with guano, and it worked to perfection. Previous to then all cargoes had been discharged by the tedious process of mules and drays, and the saving in expense, time, labor and perplexity is almost incalculable.

One of the advantages of this method of unloading, and it is by no means the least, is that there is absolutely no waste of material in its removal from the vessel to the warehouse.

To see it in operation is well worth a visit, but as it does no work on Sundays, there is no excuse for staying away from Church services to witness its operation.

As its name would indicate, it is the property of the Champion Cotton Compress Company of which Capt. E. J.
Pennypacker is the president, and is operated in the interest of that company.

"I move," said a delegate in a Virginia convention, "that our chairman take a dose of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup, he is so hoarse that I cannot understand him." That gentleman had no doubt tried this wonderful medicine.

Bishop Keane's Lecture.

Mr. Editor:—I had the very great pleasure on Tuesday night of listening to the able and eloquent lecture of Bishop Keane, at St. Thomas' Church, of this city. The writer of this, though educated a Protestant, has none of the prejudices of sect, as he is connected with none, and thinks from that circumstance can give a fair and impartial report, as far as his ability will allow. The delivery of the reverend gentleman was admirable, clear, smooth and distinct, never faltering for the want of a wrd, plain and easily understood by all. As an argument from his standpoint, it was simply unanswerable, though I could not agree with him in some of his historical statements. His theme was mainly the Bible, tracing it back to its most remote and reliable antiquity. First, the history of the Old Testament, its various divisions and epochs. Then its translation from the Hebrew into the Greek by order or request of the Egyptian King Ptolemy Philadelphus, by the seventy-two learned men of the Hebrew race, which translation was known as the Septuagint. Then the history of the New Testament. According to the lecturer's statement, the writings of the different sacred writers were scattered about in divers places, some in Ephesus, some in Corinth, some in Rome, some in Athens, until finally by Pontifical authority, the compilation and translation was entrusted to the learned and pious Jerome, one eminently qualified for the task and possessing unusual advantages, first from the fact that both the Greek and Latin tongue was spoken and written in its greatest purity and was the universal language, second, his comparative familiarity with recent great events, and finally, by his profound learning.
After great labor, he translated and compiled all of the sacred writings in one volume, which is known as the Vulgate, or Latin Translation, which compilation was adopted by the Church and from that time to the present has been in constant use by the Church.
At this point it may not be improper for me to state that all historians do not agree with the reverend gentleman. It is said that the first translators into the Latin Church were made in Africa more than a century before Jerome wrote.
Again in the eighth century the Vulgate by Pontifical authority was revised and such revision was known as the Sixtine and Clementine Bible. The lecturer looks with but little favor on the recent revisions, Luther's, Calvin's, James' and the last revision, giving pungent reasons for so doing. He refuted the common idea among Protestants that the Catholic laity were not allowed to read the Bible.

The Bishop is not what I would call an extraordinarily eloquent man, but it was evident to all unprejudiced hearers that he was learned, earnest and honest, perfectly familiar with his subject and handled it admirably and the Church should congratulate themselves that they are being instructed by such gifted and pure men as they are gathering around them now in the South. He taught upon one subject that all can agree upon with him. That is the great debt due by our present and past generations to the Romish Church. I do not write to be understood as saying that Church is a greater civil-izer than any other, but from the circumstances and the opportunity they had in the dark ages in preserving the records of the past. It must be remembered that at the commencement of the Christian era the power and grandeur of the Roman Empire was at its acme. The conquests of Julius Caesar had laid almost the empire of the world at the foot of the Roman throne, and the reign of Augustus Caesar was the culminating point in Roman history. From that time until the fifth century its decline was steady, until finally the irresistible invasions of the Barbarian of the North completely rolled over and almost obliterated all evidence of its former greatness and grandeur. Then it was that these humble ministers of the Church, themselves lying for their lives, seized and carried with them to their cells, and in many cases to the caves in the rocks, these inestimable records of the past.
It is but fair to say that to these monks we are indebted for our knowledge of Socrates and Plato, for the Songs of Homer, the eloquence of Caesar and Demosthenes, the deeds of a Alexander, Cesar, &c., and the wonderful mechanical discoveries of Archimedes. In one word, what would we have been without the knowledge of past generations, for which we are mainly indebted to the Catholic Church?
