No Mayor's Court and no Magistrate's Court to-day.

Full moon this morning at 44 minutes past 12 o'clock.

The receipts of cotton at this port to-day foot up 605 bales.

Myrtle Grove oysters—very fine but very salt—sold for 75 cents per bushel in the market this morning.

A young lady who is thoroughly competent to teach the English branches desires a situation as teacher or companion. See advertisement.

The News and Observer gives publication to a rumor prevalent there that Judge Russell has withdrawn from the contest for Judge of the District Court, in favor of Judge Seymour.

Mr. John H. Pugh, a gentleman of well known excellent business habits and qualifications, advertises in this issue of the REVIEW for a situation, which we trust that he may speedily obtain.

Beautiful your names by using the N. Y. Enamel Paint, ready mixed and warranted. Sold only at JACOBI'S.

There was a light frost this morning and yesterday morning there was a very heavy one, the tops of the houses looking in the early light as though there had been a snow.

Indications.
For the South Atlantic States, fair weather, northerly, veering to easterly winds, lower pressure.

Rev. Dr. Mayo will meet the teachers of New Hanover county, in Tileston Upper Room, on Saturday next at 2 o'clock P. M. All of the teachers in the county are invited.

The February number of the Children's Museum is at hand. It is a handsome issue, beautifully illustrated, and replete with excellent matter, in the way of instruction as well as of entertainment for the youthful mind.—Published by F. B. Goddard & Co., 6 Bond st., New York, at $1 a year.

The Superintendent of the Reading, Pa. Passenger Railway Co., Mr. John A. Riggs, narrates the following experience: One of our horses was sprained in such a manner as to be useless. We had tried different preparations without any result. The use of St. Jacobs Oil effected a complete cure, and I can recommend it as a truly wonderful compound.

Our thanks are due to Miss E. Karrer for a copy of the Album of Fashion published by the "Universal Fashion Co.," of Paris, London and New York, whose universal patterns for ladies' wear she has the agency for in this city. It is a very handsome publication and is profusely illustrated with the different styles of ladies' dresses.

Unavailable
Unavailable matter, addressed as follows, remains in the Postoffice in this city:

Ester Elerson, Courian, N. C.; Sarah Brown, Lafayette, 479 ave.; Joel Lilly, Hazlehurst, Miss.; Miss Maggie McIver, Sandford, N. C.; John Hale, Rocky Point, N. C.; Mr. H. Lewis, Concepcion P. O., Duval Co., Tex.

Canned Here.
Capt. F. M. Wooten put up last year a number of canned tomatoes at his farm near the city and placed them upon the market. They were received with much favor by consumers—so much, in fact, that Capt. Wooten proposes to enlarge his operations this year and in the course of time hopes to embark extensively in the business, in which we wish him much success.

Ordination.
Bishop Lyman is expected to arrive in this city to-morrow night and will be the guest of Col. John Wilder Atkinson. He will preach at St. James' on Sunday morning, at the usual hour for services, and will at that time ordain Mr. Armand DeRosset Meares, of this city, as a Deacon in the Protestant Episcopal Church. The candidate for orders will be presented by Rev. Dr. Watson.

Disgraceful.

There are again serious complaints in regard to the conduct of some of those present in the Opera House last evening. Cat calls, stamping and even shouting were practised without any let or hindrance, so far as we could see, to the great annoyance and discomfort of the audience, and at times even drowning the voices of the actors on the stage. There must be a remedy somewhere for such a state of affairs and it should be applied at once.

Now they speak of Crude Petroleum as a remedy for Consumption; better not try it, but take Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup, the standard Cough Remedy of the age. It is agreeable to the taste, never fails to cure, and costs only 25 cents a bottle.

The North Carolina Medical Journal.

We have received the January number of this excellent periodical, and a review of its contents shows that its able editor has commenced the new year in earnest. The subjects treated, to our unprofessional mind, seem to be such as must deeply interest the profession and be of benefit to the general public. North Carolina has just reason to be proud of the position which the Medical Journal holds among the publications of the State, and Dr. Wood, the publisher, is deserving of the highest praise for his unceasing and unflinching efforts to place it in the very front rank of medical literature.

Across the Continent.

The fame which had preceded Mr. Oliver Doud Byron and his Company in the above named play, drew a large audience to the Opera House last night to witness its rendition. The play was one of the blood and thunder, knife and revolver, sensational sort, interspersed with ludicrous situations and dialogues sufficient to keep the audience in a broad grin and to afford universal delight to the "gallery gods," who were present in force. The acting was generally good, although we doubt the propriety or good taste of trying to raise a laugh by "gags," which are made personal and local, as was repeatedly done last night. Mr. Byron, who played the leading part, is a very good actor—considerably above the average—while Miss Kate Byron, who played the parts of "Agnes Constance," a broken-hearted wife, and "Louisa Goodwin," the merchant's adopted daughter, acted both difficult parts to perfection. The other actors were a fair average of those who visit this city.

A Raving Maniac.

The well-known colored man, James Anderson, who was adjudged insane a short time since, and was sent to the County Poor House, has become a raving maniac. For three days past he has refused to eat or to drink, and is so violent that it is necessary to keep him confined in a straight-jacket. This morning he sent word to Mr. Savage, the Superintendent, that he would like a little toddy, whereupon a tumbler was mixed and taken to him by Mr. Savage. He then refused to take it, but after swallowing about a spoonful, he took the rest into his mouth and spat it out. On last Sunday, seeming somewhat more rational, he was allowed a little liberty, of which he took advantage to escape by forcing off some of the boards of the enclosure with a piece of scantling. He was followed and recaptured, and brought back and placed in the straight-jacket. A few days since, his arms being at liberty at the time, he made a fierce onslaught on one of the Superintendent's assistants and choked him severely. Mr. Savage rushed to the rescue and finally succeeded in throwing him on his bed and securing him there, but not before nearly all of the clothes had been torn from Mr. Savage's person. An effort was made a few days since to secure Anderson's admission to the Insane Asylum but it did not succeed as there is no room there now. We suggest that the effort should be repeated and that, failing again, some special means for his security be taken at once. There is no doubt but that he is a raving maniac and in all probability an incurable case and that he is very dangerous to others as well as to himself.

There has not been a female prisoner in the guard house in nearly two months. They generally go in, almost of their own accord, during the holidays but this season they fought shy of it, for the first time, actually, in five years.

A Dozen Household Hints.

In icing cake, dip the knife frequently in water.

A little ginger put into sausage meat improves the flavor.

Every closet and room in a house should be thoroughly inspected once a week.

In roasting meats do not salt before putting into the oven, as salt extracts the juice.

If your coal fire is low, throw on a teaspoonful of salt, and it will help it very much.

In warm weather put your eggs in cold water some time before you are ready to use them.

Lemons may be kept fresh a long time in a jar of water, changing the water very morning.

A true test for eggs is to drop them in water, and if the large end comes up they are not fresh.

Hams wrapped in thick paper and packed in a barrel of wood ashes in the cellar, will keep all summer.

To test nutmegs, prick them with a pin, and if they are good the oil will instantly spread around the puncture.

Bar soap, when first bought, should be cut in square pieces and put in a dry place. It lasts better after shrinking.

All fish skin should be washed, dried thoroughly, cut in small bits, and put in a box or paper bag to use in settling coffee.

An Exciting Runaway.

This afternoon Mr. C. O. Ketchum, who resides on Wrightsville Sound, stopped his team, a horse attached to a common country cart, in front of Messrs. Hall & Pearsall's on South Water street, and after getting out he hoisted an umbrella to put over a sheepskin, upon which he had been seated, to keep it from getting wet. This frightened the horse and he started upon a full run and turned down Dock street, where the cart came in contact with a dray which was standing in front of Mr. W. P. Oldham's grain and meal store, from which it broke one of the tail pieces. He continued his way up Dock to Front street, where the horse became disengaged from the cart, and was finally caught in front of Mr. J. C. Stevenson's, near the corner of Market and Second streets. Fortunately no one was hurt and no great damage was done, but pedestrians had to be lively to get out of the way in season.

Mayo To-Night.

None should forget that to-night is promised one of the greatest Shakespearean treats ever offered to our citizens—"Hamlet" artistically presented. Every character is in the hands of an artist. Of Mr. Mayo the press are lavish in their praise. Read what some of them say:

Mr. Mayo is evidently a keen and untiring Shakespearean student, bringing to his work an analytical mind of extraordinary strength, and a quick appreciation of the meaning and beauty of the lines written by the great master. Their true significance rarely escapes him, and his intelligent reading has in itself a charm entirely dependent on his dramatic action.—Cit City Derrick, Oct., 1881.

Mayo's portraiture of the melancholy Dane was a most careful and studied performance. Mr. Mayo gives evidence of careful, almost religious study of the play. He steps aside from the conventional way of speaking certain speeches and acting certain scenes. The ideas were conveyed so clearly that even the gallery gods could understand the metaphysical arguments. In the scenes which called for grand and impassioned acting and tremendous power, he was great even to the verge of sublimity. The play scene was elegantly done. The effect upon the audience was electrical. This was the climax of Mr. Mayo's acting, although the duel and death scene was well brought out.—Providence Press, Sept., 1881.

Frank Mayo made new friends last night. His best character of the week was that of last evening—"Hamlet." In this proverbially difficult character Mayo made a hit, and truly rose to a dramatic height he had not before approached during the week. His interpretation of the character is novel, more robust than any other "Hamlet" we have ever seen, but the part did not suffer by this innovation. Mayo was on his mettle, and he determined to show to a somewhat critical public that there is still in him equal to Shakespearean parts, and he did it. He displayed true dramatic power of the highest order, and in the subtlest parts the cunning "Hamlet" seemed to live upon the stage.—St. Paul Journal.
