OVER THE WAY.

No fresh young beauty, laughing eyed, Who reckons lovers by the score. But just a sweet old maid who died While I was yet in pinafore.

She lived upon the shady side. Of that old-fashioned country street, A spreading chestnut greenly tried for screen the door of her retreat.

A tiny garden, trim and square. A snowy flight of steps above, And sweet suggestions in the ear Of all the flowers the poets love.

> Within the trellished porch there hung A parrot in a burnished cage-A foolish bird, whose mocking tongue Burlesqued the piping tones of age.

A branching apple tree o'erspread A rickhty old garden seat; No apples sure were e'er so red! Or since have tasted half so sweet!

a memory's enchanted land. I see the gentle spinster yet, With watering-pot in mittened hand, Gaze proudly at her mignonette.

And when the spring had grown to June, She'd sit ben ath the apple tree, And dream away the afternoon, With some qualit volume on her knee-

A gray robed vision of repose. A pleasant thought in Quaker guise; For truly she was one of those Whocarry Heaven in their eyes.

A very indignant man marched up to a neighbor's house and exclaimed: 180 "Here, Tom, you rascal, here's your dog; I'll trouble you to give me back the five shillings I gave you for it." "What's the matter, with the dog?" said Tom; calm and apruffied. "You warranted him to hunt rabbits, didn't you?"

"And he don'1?"

"No; he isa't worth anything at it, replied the visitor.

"Have you tried the dog?" "Certainly I have, and it's a downright windle." "How were the rabbits cooked?"

"Cooked?"

"Yes. Were they boiled?" "Of course net."

"Did you roast them?"

"Why you old idiot, they were alive wild rabbits."

"That explains it," said 'Tom. "I thought there was something wrong. You cook the rabbits and give the dog half'a chance, and then you'll see how he'll hant for them.'

The victim threw the dog into a corner and rashed away.

That Bewitching Widow's Bye.

A New York correspondent says The prettiest widow in all this great metropolis is a lemon and-hily blonde, ranging only from five to eight inches For further information, write clearly, in thickness, and proportionately small giving full address. Send orders by express in width, with no more than eighteen years to her age, and enough of a fortune to allow of doing just as she pleases about marrying again. I was in her party at the Madison Square theatre the other night, and we were weeping more or less over the sorrows of 'Esmerelda." Allowing for the hearty dinner which I knew the widow had eaten, there couldn't have been room in her thin figure for a great amount of emotion; and when I saw that tears were welling up in one of her eyes and not in the other, I surmised that the dinner had got entirely on one side of her midriff and the sympathy all on t'other. But I was wrong; and this is how I found out. The widow's escort was a sappy young fellow, whose love was as profound as his shallowness permitted. After THE poor as well as the rich, the old as puzzling himself a while over the dryness of one of her eyes while its mate was brimming, he asked her for an explana tion of the phenomenou.

"And which eye do you admire most?" she said.

"H h-h-hard to tell," he stammered. "The one w-w-with the tears sort of Words ! Hear what they say : own reighborhood, among your friends and "The one w-w-with the tears sort of Words! "I heard,", says Labouchere in his paper the London Truth, of a ball the other day in average middle-class 'secieety,' at which less than 200 people were present, and the liquor consumed be tween 9 P. M. and 6 A. M. amounted to seventeen dozen of champagne, two dozen of slierry, twenty bottles of brandy, besides several dozen of claret. The scene at the finale was almost precisely similar to that described at the commencement of the first chapter of Harry Lorrequer."
