annual revolution under the present management, chining, as always, for all, big and little, mean and gracious, contented and unand virtuous, intelligent and obtuse. The sus's light is for mankind and woman kind of every sort; but its genial warmth is for the good, while it pours hot discomfort on the blistering backs of the persistently wicked THE SUN of 1868 was a newspaper of a new kind. It discarded many of t e forms, and a multitude of the superfluous words and phrases of ancient journalism. It underto k way all the news of the world, omitting no event of human interest, and commenting apon affairs with the fearlessness of absolute independence. The success of this experiment was the success of the Hun. It effected a permanent change in the style of American newspapers. Every important journal established in this country in the dozen years past has been modelled after the Sun. Every important journal already existing has been modified and bettered by the force of the Sun's example.

Tun Sun of 1882 will be the same outspoken, truth-telling, and into esting newspaper. By a liberal use of the means which an it better than ever before.

We shall print all the news, putting it in readable shape, and measuring its importance, not by the traditional yardstick, but consideration with the Sun. Whenever anything happens worth reporting we get the darticulars, whether it happens in Brooklyn Or in Bokhara.

Inpulities we have decided opinions; and are accustomed to express them in language that can be understood. We say what we think about men and events. That habit is the only secre; of the Sun's political course. the best matter of the seven daily issues. An Agricultural Department of unequalied merit, full market reports, and a liberal proportion of literary, scientific, and domestic intelligence complete the Weekly Sun, and make it the best newspaper for the farmer's household that was ever printed.

The Most Beautiful Woman in the World,

I saw last evening the woman, who, in my critical opinion, is the most beautiful woman in the world. If there is a shadow of a fault in her face or form it has escaped my discovering eyes. I formed this conviction years and years sgo, when abondant prosperity affords, we shall make I first saw her as a frisky burlesquer on the stage. I held to it against all competition, when, later on, she played semi tragic roles quite badly; and now that she by its real interest to the people. Distance is doing a comedy part happily in "Dis from Printing Rouse Square is not the first vorcons," at the Park Theatre, I am fixed in it for life. She is an ideal Venusor would be, but for the restrictions of May 1st, 1882, the following described last night was as near the bounds as possible without going beyond. Her graceful arms were bare right up to the top of her shoulders. Her smoothest of necks THE WHERLY BUR gathers into eight pages | was uncovered, and a wedge-shaped strip of her skin was visible half way down to hind the glaring footlights, but Alice eight feet to Hart and Polley's other line, best poetry of the day, prose every line worth Dunning Lingard (she is the creature that thence with said other line, northwardly reading, news, humor—matter enough to I am raving about) doesn't need to be fill a good-sized book, and infinitely more swabbed all over. ## A Woman's Opinion of Mrs. Langtry.

I hear from friends in London that Mrs. Langtry will positively not visit the United States for the present, and possibly not at all, wherein she makes a great mistake. I think, however, that the American public would have been disappointed in her, so far as her beauty is concerned. It was the praise of a prince that gave her her reputation for exceeding loveliness, and not her own superabundant charms. In America where very lovely women are anything but rare, she would have attracted but little notice, bad it not been for the pother that has been raised about her. Not that she is not a bandsome woman, for that she certainly is, but decidedly she has but few claims to be ranked among the bandsomest of her sex. Her face is positively defective, the beautiful hair and large lovely eyes being counterbalanced by the broad, beavy jaw, and by to means small mouth. Her figure is fine, and her complexion is (or at least was, two years ago, when I last saw the lady) perfectly wonderful in its camelialeaf purity and smoothress, I am told that on the stage she is extremely handsome, but the best of critics aver privately that she can act no more than a broomsick. She is inordinately vain, and poses perpetually. I have seen her in the lobby of the Covent Garden Opera Hou e once while waiting for her carriage, leaning against the wall in her fa-President Lincoln is quoted by Charles | vorite attitude, posing as though sitting for Rescued from Death.
