For the Review.

Boston, May 22, 1882-We are now having pleasant weather, and as we could not leave to-day, I took the opportunity to see some of the "sights, first visiting the famed Faneuil Hall, which was built in 1740 and presented to the town of Boston as a Market and Town House, by Peter Fanenil. The original building was burned in 1761, rebuilt in 1762 and much enlarged in As it is now, every man is a law unto 1805-'6. It was 174 feet 3 inches long by 75 feet 3 inches in width. The hall is decorated with fine paintings and stat-uary, prominent among which is the painting by Healy of Webster while replying to Hayne, in the U.S. Senate. The picture is 30x16 and is suspended immediately over the rostrum. There are busts of Samuel and John Adams, tables, especially those of revolutionary

We were shown over the hall by Mr. who lost a leg in the late war. When he found out that I was a Confederate I registered my name at the hotel he insisted that I should inscribe the rank which I held in the C. S. A. He said both armies could get together, there would soon be a perfect understanding, as it was only those who fought on
