EVENING.

TUESDAY, JUNE 13, 1892.

It is reported in Chicago that General Grant is to have the management of an American branch of the Sun Insurance Company of England, to be established in New York.

The death of Garibaldi has brought trouble to the newspapers in Austria and Italy. One Trieste journal, the Independente, having put on mourning for him, has been confiscated by the Austrian authorities.

The new town of Garfield, which, though almost born yesterday, is now styled the future metropolis of the great Warren County oil field.

The great multiplication of telegraph, telephone and electric light wires has caused a large increase in the expense of insulators, and to meet this difficulty English inventors have introduced a cheap insulating material called insulite.

THE ELECTION CASES.

Capt. Ashe, of the News and Observer, has made a careful review of the trial of the Halifax election case at Raleigh and he has come to the conclusion that the verdict of the jury was warranted neither by the facts of the case nor by the charge to the jury.

On reviewing the Halifax election case, which elicited so much interest during the past week, we find several matters connected with it worthy of remark. The facts did not necessarily implicate any defendant; they were entirely consistent with an honest, conscientious performance of duty on the part of every one of the county canvassers.

But as Judge Seymour said in his charge, an honest mistake did not require their conviction; their guilt depended only on a dishonest and corrupt motive. The jury found that the majority of the board acted honestly, and that only two of them had such a corrupt motive as to justify their conviction.

On the part of every one of the county canvassers, under the charge of the court, and the correctness of that charge we do not question, it is evident that the board made a mistake in declining to count the returns from Halifax precinct. But as Judge Seymour said in his charge, an honest mistake did not require their conviction; their guilt depended only on a dishonest and corrupt motive.

The Boston Journal intimates that Minister Lowell has sent in his resignation. Cardinal McClosky is physically the thinnest and intellectually the thickest of the sixty-five cardinals. Guiteau's divorced wife does not wish to have him hung. She has escaped him, and she is now willing he shall escape the halter.

James Keene, the New York racer, has sent eight of his horses to England. Their names are Crown Point, Fotosi, Bolero, Blue Grass, and four yearlings from celebrated breeders. The New York papers have discovered that President Arthur's appointments in the Empire State number twenty-four stalwarts and one half-breed. How lonesome that half-breed must feel.

ical case? When the practice was sought to be enforced before Chief Justice Waite, in South Carolina, he positively declined to permit it. It was, he said, a novelty unheard of, and he allowed no such power to the prosecuting officer. This was the decision of the Chief Justice of the United States, sitting in the Circuit Court in South Carolina. We know of no reason why the practice of the court in election cases should be different from what it is in other criminal prosecutions on the part of the government. And as long as such a difference is made in the courts between cases, the verdicts will be viewed with suspicion.

The verdict in this particular case is not satisfactory. One cannot understand how a member of the board, who refrained from voting on a proposition, can be singled out from the others of the board who voted affirmatively, as guilty of corruptly taking action which, as a matter of fact, he did not take at all.

But the verdict was the work of the jury, after remaining out sixteen hours, chosen under a rule that has never before obtained in any court in North Carolina, under which the District Attorney had the advantage of securing just such jurors from the panel as he preferred. In an ordinary mind a connection will naturally arise between this novel practice, adopted only in cases of a political cast, and this verdict which seems so peculiar and indefensible. They are the two peculiarities of the case; they go together. Ordinary folks will see in them only causes and effect. It had been better for the moral effect of the verdict had the court adhered to the practice heretofore in vogue in like criminal cases in the Federal and the State courts in North Carolina. The law of the court has been long settled; it is the practice. Novel departures in special cases impart to the court and to the proceedings an air of having a special object in view—a purpose to convict—and an apprehension that a conviction cannot be secured under the ordinary rules of the court. It must be borne in mind that Chief Justice Waite repudiated this practice, and would not allow it in the Federal Court where he was sitting.

MOONSHINE.

Song of the cheese—"will you love me when I mold?" A stockholder in a street railway company—the driver. The secret of the Keely motor has been divulged. It is money.

There is one place where there is no cheap talk, and that is over the Atlantic cable.

"Well, I'll be bound," as the man remarked when he heard quoted the lines, "Chains of gold are fetters still."

"No," said the lady, "I'm not keeping any servants just now. I have quite enough to do to wait upon myself."

After marriage the question as to who shall be speaker of the house is speedily settled.

The "moonshiners" are about the only persons who have succeeded in keeping a secret still.

A woman's heart is a small affair, but it can upset the biggest man that ever adorned this world.

"Is your house a warm one?" asked a man in search of a tenement. "It ought to be, the painter gave it two coats recently," was the reply.

A Western paper announces that upon the occasion of a recent boiler explosion in the neighborhood "between three and four men were killed."

Debilitated persons, and sufferers from wasting diseases such as consumption, scrofula, kidney affections, will be greatly benefited by using Brown's Iron Bitters.

Later News Regarding the Destitution in Patrick and Franklin Counties.

New York, June 13—Noon.—A Danville special to the Tribune says of the relief being afforded the sufferers from famine in Patrick and Franklin counties: Large and liberal amounts of money have already been subscribed to purchase food and send it to Patrick county. People in other counties are hauling corn and wheat across the mountains and distributing it among the starving inhabitants as rapidly as it can be done. The trouble will no doubt be at an end in a few days. The prospect this year for a good corn crop in the suffering counties is very good.
