He Found the Hide and Horns

Mr. Wm. Cromwell, living in Cape Fear township, about seven miles from this city, lost a bull about ten days ago Inquiry and investigation showed that the animal had been butchered in the woods near Castle Hayne by Jeff Bordeaux, alias Jeff Sharpless, Abram Sharpless, his son, Geo. Williams and Isaac Scarbore. A search warrant was issued and the hide and horns' of the bull were found in Bordeaux', alias Sharpless', house. He claimed that he thought that the animal was his and had it butchered. Mr. Cromwell identified the hide by the ear-marks. Bordeaux, alias Sharspless' ox was not marked and Mr. Cromwell cannot well understand how the mistake could have been made. The men, who are now under bond will have a prelimary investigation before Justice W.O. Johnson, in Cε pe Fear township to-day.

Rice Culture. (Continued from issue of 24th.)

No. 10. It seems then evident that the average profits on American rice are at present dependent on the maintenance of the import duty, and that if the latter is removed or materially reduced, the culivation of the former must be abandoned as a staple product and the lands returned to nature. There are now cultivated in rice more than 155,000 acres, affording a livelihood, to more than of the Carolinas and Georgia and wherever else, indeed, in this peculiar husbandry a high condition of drainage and irrigtion is observed, are probably as perfectly prepared for cultivation as any lands in the world, strictly agricultural. Rescued from marshes and swamps, often almost impenetrable, they have been thoroughly embanked and drained until in general they readily take the weight of the horse and the heaviest agricultural machinery. It is safe to state, as an illustration of these facts, that a rice plantation of 500 acres would require more than 60 miles of ditching and exterior banking, without taking into account the main canals and other contingents, but extensive excavation and embankment, essential to a successful system of drainage and irrigation. It would be supposed, however, that lands thus prepared, evidently at great cost, could be readily divertly at great cost, and the missing trunk.
