VOL. VI. WILMINGTON, N. C., TUESDAY, AUGUST 29, 1882. NO. 205.

THIS PAPER published every morning, Mondays excepted by JOSH T. JAMES, EDITOR AND PROPRIETOR. SUBSCRIPTIONS POSTAGE PAID: Year $4.00, Six months, $2.00. Three months, $1.00. One month, 35 cents. The paper will be delivered by carriers free of charge, in any part of the city, at the above rates, in advance. Advertising rates low and liberal. Correspondents will report any and all fallacies in their paper regularly.

LOCAL NEWS.

THE TWO EXCURSIONS.
There was a conflict as to dates between the two excursions advertised to be given this week, both of which were named for Wednesday. It was the result entirely of an oversight which has been very amicably arranged. The excursion advertised by the members of the Second Baptist Church will surely take place to-morrow, on the Pussport, and that advertised by Messrs. Green, Taylor and Holmes will be had on Friday next, Capt. Harper having given up that day to them. We trust that both occasions may prove pleasant and successful.

Pugnacious.
Friday afternoon, two pugnacious colored boys met on the corner of Seventh and Mulberry streets, and after some quarreling, one of them kicked the other in the pit of the stomach, and as the boy fell, his assailant jumped on him, and pummeled him in the head with a large rock. We learn that the stricken boy's head was crushed in, and that he was unconscious for two days. We do not know what the attending physician thinks of the condition of his patient.

Our Health.
It is feared that the recent heavy rains in the country will be conducive of much sickness. A gentleman, who is a farmer and manufacturer near this city, comes here every night to sleep, as he thinks it is much healthier here than in the country. He is a gentleman of much intelligence and keeps well posted on statistics, etc., and declares that Wilmington is the healthiest city in the United States. Our mortality statistics will certainly bear him out in his assertion. Week before last there was not a single death recorded in the city.

Another Charge Against Him.
Juo. Howard, the man who was arrested at Magnolia, last Wednesday night, charged with the murder of Joe Daniels, a full account of which appeared in the REVIEW, robbed a gentleman just a few hours before his arrest. He had been working with Mr. Tim Mathis, a few miles from the town, and entered the house during Mr. M's absence and stole a twenty-dollar gold piece which was in his bed room. Howard was seen to change the gold piece on the evening of his arrest, and when taken into custody had $18.74 and a railroad ticket for this city. He was visited at the jail by Justice Carroll, on Friday, and was told that Mr. Mathis had come for his money. Howard ran his hand in his pocket and gave the money up.

Met His Match.
As a rule, book agents, machine agents and traveling drummers are noted for their extreme tenacity and impressive arguments when endeavoring to convince a customer that he or she is desperately in need of the article that they desire to sell, and so self-titled that they feel that they meet their match that we are constrained to let our readers know that one of them has been placed hors du combat, and was compelled to retreat in disorder and leave the field to a feminine competitor. Our friend in this instance "stood fire" long enough to sell a machine, but when the first installment was due and he called to collect it, the fair purchaser opened her vocabulary battery upon him and talked him clear out of breath. She commenced upon him on entering and gave it to him so vigorously that he soon, hat in hand, made his way out to the front steps, where he was followed. He then retreated to the front gate, still under a shower of words, and at last he ventured to get up in his wagon and took up the reins, but his persecutor placed her foot on the step of the wagon, and for a few minutes literally "skinned" him from head to foot. When the agent could stand it no longer, he struck the horse a sharp blow and dashed ahead leaving the "talker" standing in the street waving her hand at him as far as he could see.

Body Recovered.
The body of Ben. Murray, the unfortunate colored man who was drowned at Smithville, last Wednesday, was recovered on Saturday. The body had been carried out to sea and drifted up on the beach, near the Life Saving Station, at the mouth of the river. The remains were buried on the beach by those who recovered them.

Democratic Mass-Meeting.
We are authorized by the chairman of the Democratic Executive Committee of Pender county, to announce that the Democrats of that county will hold a mass-meeting at Long Creek on Saturday next, the 22nd day of September.—Our candidate for Congress, Col. Wharton J. Green, and Col. B. R. Moore, of this city, have accepted invitations to address the people on that occasion.—Other distinguished speakers are also invited. Speaking will commence at 11 o'clock, a. m. A large crowd is expected.

Col. Green's Appointments.
Col. Wharton J. Green, our candidate for Congress in this district, will address his fellow-citizens at the following times and places:

The Heroes of Caintock.
A couple of young gentlemen employed at Caintock, on the floating saw-mill, left the mill Saturday evening to come to the city, and visit their dulcineas. They walked to the Carolina Central Railroad to take the train, but arrived at the station just in time to see the end of the train disappearing around a curve. They then started across the country to the W. C. & A. R. R., and saw the train dash thundering by. Not to be outdone, they took down the railroad track, and walked into the city, a distance of thirty-five miles. They were determined not to let Strauss, or even a Hill, stand in their way of getting here in time for church services on Sunday morning.

The Sharpless Reunion.
The reunion of the descendants of John Sharpless was attended by over 2,500 persons. Those present were descendants from Florida, Kansas, Missouri, North Carolina, South Carolina, New Jersey, Mississippi, Pennsylvania, New York and Ohio. Miss Sallie Swann, of this city, and her brother, Mr. Sam'l Swann, of Florida; and Bishop Green, of Mississippi, were the only names which we recognized on the register of the descendants. The reunion took place on the banks of Ridley Creek, in Waterville, Delaware county, Pennsylvania. Many relics of the family were on exhibition and much valuable data as to the family was gathered by those who have the keeping of the genealogical tree in charge. The deed from William Penn to John Sharpless, for the old homestead, as well as the Sharpless coat of arms, was on exhibition. The old house in which the progenitor lived was opened to the inspection of his descendants. The day was spent pleasantly, and many new ties of friendship were formed, which we trust will be cemented with closer intimacy and kindred feeling, as time moves on. There are about two hundred and fifty descendants of John Sharpless in this city. It is only of late years that any of the descendants have become public men. They have usually been occupied as farmers, manufacturers, and merchants, but now the family includes clergymen, governors, generals, judges, lawyers and civil engineers, and it is a curious illustration of the workings of time that Bishop Green, of the Episcopal church, should prove to be a direct descendant of John Sharpless, the Quaker, who left England that he might enjoy, unchallenged, his own religious opinions.

Charlotte Journal: John Carpenter, colored, a ten year old son of Mark Carpenter of Biddletown, was drowned while bathing in Stewart's pond yesterday morning.—One hundred box cars and one hundred gondolas, or coal cars, are being now delivered to the Western North Carolina Railroad. Thirty of the gondolas were built in Salisbury and the remainder at the Richmond and Danville shops at Manchester, Va.

Rice Culture.
(CONCLUDED).
For the benefit of those who have not read the several articles on this industry that have appeared in the REVIEW, since the 13th inst., I submit the following synopsis of the facts that have been submitted:
First, The history of this culture shows that from 1730 to 1739 the average annual export of rice was 10,000,000 pounds; the aggregate product we have not been able to ascertain.
Second, From 1791 to 1830 the average annual export was about 65,000,000 pounds; the amount of production unknown.
Third, From 1840 to 1860 there was produced or grown in the United States about an average of 161,107,184 pounds annually; that is, in 1840, 80,841,422 pounds; in 1850, 215,313,097, and in 1860, 187,167,032 pounds.
There was exported during the same period an annual average of 68,123,000 lbs. and the home consumption was 126,317,517 lbs. annual average. But to show the increase of home consumption in 1840 it was only 19,845,422 lbs.; in 1850 it was 147,313,097 lbs.; in 1860 111,794,032 lbs.
The above shows the progress made during the first period of the rice culture to 1860.
Fourth, From 1861 to 1886 the average annual importation of rice into the U. S. was 59,000,000 lbs., which seems to have been the beginning of the importation of rice. The production of domestic rice was, for 1865 and 1866, (the only years we have any account of) about 12,000,000 lbs. This closes the second period.
In 1864, when the supply was entirely of imported rice, the prices rose to $12 and $17 per 100 lbs.; showing the effect of destroying the home production, and allowing foreign rice to monopolize the American markets.
Fifth, During the third period of the rice industry, from 1866 to 1881. The annual domestic production grew up from 11,500,000 pounds in 1866 to 117,766,000 in 1881, and the consumption from 63,300,000 pounds in 1866 to 175,500,000 pounds in 1881, while the amount of imported rice has remained about the same, in each year of the sixteen covered by this statement. In sixteen years the increased consumption reached the extraordinary quantity of 112,000,000 pounds!
Here is food for reflection, for the "Commission" as for Congress. Refuse to encourage domestic production and the prices will rise to the extent of the ability of the consumer to purchase. The benefit to accrue to the foreign producer.
Help the American producer by the small import duty as it now exists and he will be able to reclaim his swamp lands and thus increase the productive area of the country, and the increase in production will keep pace with the increase in consumption; prices will be remunerative and reasonable, but will never reach the exorbitant figures of 1864—$17 per 100 lbs.—when the supply was entirely at the control of the foreign producer. PLANTER. August 25th, 1882.
