The Perjury Case

The case of perjury against the Rev. A. M. Conway, of the First Baptist Church (colored), which has claimed the attention of 'Squire McQuigg's court for the past two days, was brought to a close yesterday alternoon. Mr. John L. Holmes appeared for the prosecution, and Mr. M. Bellamy, for the defense. There were ten witnesses for the defense and five for the prosecution. Justice McQuigg gave notice yesterday afternoon that he would withhold his decision until Monday at 10 o'clock.

A Glorious Result.

Where in the world is that big Republican majority in this district to come from? The Colored Cotton Broker.

The case against J. W. Wilbur, the colored cotton broker of Liverpool, was heard before Justice Gardner yesterday. Burrell Amey, the prosecutor, could not make out a case of false pretense against the accused, and the case was dismissed. Wilber claims to have negotiable paper, which he will send North, as he can realize more on it there than here. He says he is of the firm of Wilber Bros., in Liverpool, and that his father was for a number of years a cotton merchant in that city.-He, in conversation with us yesterday, stated that he had convertible scrip in his posession which he tried to dispose of here, but found he could not do so without a loss to himself. He referred us to Fish & Hatch, bankers in New York, who he says knows who he is, and what his financial rating is. He stated further that he came here for the purpose of establishing a branch of his Liverpool house and to purchase a rice

It is thought the fire was caused from a defective flue. At the time of the fire the store of Mr. J. B. Moore was broken open and robbed. The thieves carried off a watch and thirty-five cents which was in the till. They tried to break open a large iron safe and doubtless would have succeeded had they not been frightened off by some one passing. They effected an entrance in the store by foreing open the back door. They were seen in the store by a lady who was on her piazza watching the fire. The thieves did not belong about Burgaw and no doubt fired the kitchen with a view of distracting the attention of persons from them and hoping that the noise incident to a fire would drown the

The Dance at Pine Grove.

The dance at Pine Grove, on Wednesday night, was one of the pleasantest of the season. The threatening weather deterred many from attending, but nevertheless there was a nice assemblage and the evening was spent in pleasures which will long be remembered and referred to. Capt. Manning, who always does things up in the most approved style, was never happier in his efforts than he was on this occasion. The crew of the Frolic partock of his hospitality by invitation and were handsomely regaled with sound delicacies. Pigfish and other salt water dishes were served in abundance to those who were in attendance. The We don't know whether or not the dancing was kept up to a late hour and

We spoke briefly yesterday of Senareaders to see what a tribute the noble old twinkle still lingers in his eyes and his jest comes as freely as ever. As a old Roman has extracted even from his country friend exclaimed when he spied political enemies. Col. Johnston spoke the Governor in the Central: "Well, first and then Gen. Ransom was sand- thar's the same old Zeb-if it ain't, wiched in between Col. Johnston and Dr. Norment. . speech, Col. H. C. Jones introduced Senator M. W. Ransom. The Senator ascended the forum but he was not yet to speak. From outside the building, way out in the street, voices were heard wailing in despair for admittance and pleading for the speaker to come outside where all could take it in. This set in front of the court house and Sen-ator Ransom mounted this. It was one Executive Committee may make for course had to be pursued. A table was o'clock when he commenced, and there, in the open air, with a drizzling mist continually falling upon his silvered head he spoke until half-past 4. The crowd stood around on tireless legs throughout the entire delivery of the with him at Marion to-day, at Asheville speech. Senator Ransom opened out with a glowing tribute to the independence and freedom of Mecklenburg's sons, and gave the old Declaration a good send off to start with and get the patriotism of the crowd worked up. He passed Col. Johnston by rather He passed Col. Johnston by rather more lightly than was to have been expected, and dismissed the prohibition issue with hardly a reference, only stating that it was dead, killed by 147,-000 majority, and if that was not enough to kill it, what was? For an hour or more Senator Ransom spoke chiefly of the work of the Democratic party in Congress, explaining the various appropriations and pensions with perfect satisfaction from a Democratic standpoint. He himself voted to retire Grant, but he did so in the interests of peace, as a peace offering between the two sections. He complained bitterly because the Southern people were not allowed to share the benefits of the govallowed to share the benefits of the government land, nor Southern soldiers permitted to hold office in the army and navy of the United States, and said the Republican party is to blame for it. He gave the Liberals and Republicans particular attention, claiming that both were one and the same party, He made comparisons of expenses between Republican and Democratic rule, told what the Democracy had done for the negroes of Nerth Carolina, built them asylums, normal schools, etc.; spoke of what had government expenses two-thirds, and brought peace, law, honor and happiness to this whole State. Coming down to State politics, he put it this way:-There are 140,000 white Democrats in the State; the Republican party is composed of 105,000 colored men and 20,000 white men. If the Republican ticket is elected the State is under negro rule. While he demanded the Democratic party to be just to the colored man, he went on to tell them in substance that this is a white man's government and that white men shall and must rule it. To the struggles and victories of the Southern people since the war, he paid a most touching, eloquent and magnificent tribute.
