Santa Claus is almost in sight now.
Good wood was selling from flats to-day at $1 per load.

Dr. W. T. Ennett, of Burgaw, was in the city yesterday.

Good blackjack wood was refelling to-day at $1 per load.

The receipts of cotton at this port to-day foot up 1,117 bales.

Green pork was retailing from market this morning at 15 cents per pound, by the pig.

Anything in the hardware line can be found at reasonable prices at JACOBS.

Poultry is still very dear, although it generally takes a tumble about this time of the year.

If all that we hear of Callendar's Minstrels is true, they should have a fine house to-night.

Mr. James J. Burnett has returned to the city, and can be found busy taking pictures in the New Market building.

The Callendar Minstrels appeared on the streets this morning and discoursed some excellent music, making a very fine parade.

There is a fine and handsomer line of neck wear at DYER'S than has ever been brought to this city and the largest assortment.

There was one case, a colored man before the Mayor this morning for disorderly conduct, but as it was a trivial affair the defendant was discharged.

A valuable goat was killed last night on Mulberry street, near Second, by miserable cur dogs who should have been killed long ago and their fat converted into chewing-gum.

Capt. Foard, brother to our clever and handsome friend, Mr. H. M. Foard, book-keeper for Messrs. Brown & Roddick, and brother-in-law to Mr. John R. Paddison, of Point Caswell, is in the city on a brief visit. Capt. Foard is now a conductor on the C., C. & A. R. R., and it is his first visit here in six years.

To Builders and others—Go to JACOBS for Sash, Blinds and Doors, Glass &c. You can get all sizes and at the lowest prices.

The Latest Party.

The "Bubble Party" is the latest thing out. It is an importation from the North, and is, we believe, the result of the busy brains of a Newport season. The modus operandi is as follows: A party of ladies and gentlemen meet together, all being supplied with long stemmed clay pipes, such as are common at the North, but which in the South are generally called "Chalk" pipes. Soapbuds are furnished and the person who can succeed in blowing the biggest bubble takes the prize. We learn that it has been introduced into this city and has caused lots of fun to the participants.

Freshwater Perch, Trout and Black fish hooks and lines. A full assortment and lowest prices at JACOBS.

On Furlough.

Mr. Albert Prempert, son of our worthy townsman, Mr. H. C. Prempert, who is on the training ship Saratoga, now at Portsmouth, Va., is here on a leave of absence. Mr. Prempert was with his ship during the recent cruise made by the Saratoga and the Portsmouth, under direction of the Secretary of War, and on her visit to Cherbourg, Brest, Lisbon, Genoa, Gibraltar, Madeira, Cowes, Villa Francha, Nice, Porto Rico, Aspinwall and Key West. It is expected that the next cruise will be in the Spring when the Indian and Chinese waters will be visited.

Useful Holiday Present.

We know of no better present to be made than a genteel suit of clothing or a fine over-coat, and, of course, to find these, you have only to step into the store of A. & I. SHIRER, No. 34 Market street.

A Plea for Art—Mrs. Parsley's Reception.

The art reception given Friday night by Mrs. Parsley's drawing class was an event of such novel interest that it seemed to deserve fuller notice than the mere mention of a "local" paragraph. It also affords an opportunity for putting in a plea for art which is irresistible.

Wilmington, busy and absorbed in her commercial pursuits, is not always ready to extend sympathy to any movement for the cultivation of the fine arts and has allowed many of her sister cities to get far ahead of her in that respect. Drawing and painting, music and her sister song, and even literary movements have always languished here, as in an uncongenial atmosphere, and but for the occasional efforts of a few enthusiastic individuals to awaken interest for some special occasion, she would know nothing of her treasures of native talent. And yet these occasions have demonstrated the fact that there are gifted souls in our midst, their talents lying idle, waiting, it may be, for the electric sparks of encouragement and opportunity to rouse to action and perhaps some day to shed the lustre of a world-wide fame upon our good old town.

But ought this state of things be allowed to continue? Should we not rather, as a community, heartily cooperate with every such effort as Mrs. Parsley is now making in behalf of her own special department of art?

Beginning with the suggestion to her pupils to arrange their work for the inspection of their parents and friends, the idea developed into a proposition to extend an invitation to other artists and students in the city to contribute from their studies and portfolios and so an exhibit on a larger scale was made. A very general assent was given and the result, under the artistic management of Mrs. Parsley, assisted by Mr. Henry Latimer, was such a display of art work in its various branches as delighted and astonished all who received cards of admission. The reception was held in the large parlor of Mrs. Parsley's residence. The walls were literally covered with drawings and paintings, sketches and studies. Decorative art was largely represented in all the varied ways to which the progress of aesthetic culture has applied it. Painted china, ornamented plaques, artistic needlework, decorated mirrors, &c., &c., covered the tables and adorned the mantels. Here were pen and ink drawings by the venerable Mrs. Kennedy—in her 83rd year—and there the "small beginnings" from the pencils of the Kindergarten. Ancient "samplers," quaint and stiff, neat and elaborate showed how the mothers of a century ago would sacrifice the play-time of their "8 years old" daughters at the altar of diligence and contrasted pleasingly with a little group of "studies from nature" done in the recreation hours of little Phila Calder. A crayon portrait, enlarged from a photograph, was contributed by Miss Bessie Willard's friends. The young lady being ambitious to excel is still pursuing her studies at the Cooper Institute, N. Y. She had also a pretty picture of a child in water colors and some beautiful specimens of china and pottery painting. The collection of china sent by Mrs. Russell was also very exquisite. An exceedingly delicate painting, "No. 1, Gem, Cumming's Battery," by Miss Rankin, was much admired, as were also a few pieces of china decorated by the same lady. A bunch of arbutus in oils on an ebony plaque was sent anonymously by one who "did not profess to be an artist." Perhaps the mystery around it enhanced its beauty for it certainly attracted much attention and was highly praised.

Mr. Poisson's works had the merit of being accomplished without the help of instruction, and were so full of good points that one could not help wishing the opportunity were afforded him of cultivating such decided talent.

The most striking objects in the room were unquestionably those contributed by Mr. Latimer, the artist, par excellence, of Wilmington. Two oil paintings, "The Castle of Chillon" from a study made on the spot, and "Wild Flowers," also from nature, were very beautiful. Mr. L. sent also a superb water color by Kiesel "At Play." The perfect finish in every detail of this admirable picture could not fail to be remarked, and the three paintings with Mr. L.'s lovely cast of the Venus de Milo made a collection of rare beauty for the eyes of the youthful student to feast upon with profit.

A group of etchings, gifts to Mrs. Parsley by her friend and teacher, Mr. Falconer, of Brooklyn, N. Y., received much admiration.

As to the work of the class it would seem invidious to discriminate or to commend the few where all have done so well. They are, for the most part, mere beginners, or school girls who have but little time as yet to devote to their beloved art. But we may be pardoned for mentioning a few of the more advanced pupils whose works are more pretentious in size and therefore more conspicuous upon the walls. Miss Katie Johnson's "Cherry Ripe" rested still on the easel where it had just been finished, and the young artist must have been gratified at the praise lavished upon it. Miss Lottie Myers had several large pieces "A Horse's Head," "Whittington," and Raphael's Holy Family, all in crayon, evinced talent which, industriously cultivated will elevate her to a high rank among amateurs. Miss Georgie Atkinson showed a collection of very spirited studies in water-color, and some fine pencil sketches. Miss Louise DeRosset's studies from nature were excellent, and her "Little Foxes" deserved praise for its careful finish.

But we must close and with a notice of little Keith Calder's group of studies; one needs not the prophetic gift to point out this talented little fellow as the probable artist of the future.

On the whole, it has rarely been our lot to spend an evening of more profitable enjoyment. The Committee of Reception, distinguished by their pretty and appropriate badges, did the honors gracefully and it was pleasant to see constant evidences of that enthusiastic love for their art which is so frequently found among the lowly followers in the footsteps of the immortal masters.

It was rumored that a "Students' Art League" would probably be the result of this "day of small things," and indeed we hope that some steps may be taken to render permanent the good movement now begun, and are sure that we express the universal sentiment when we beg Mrs. Parsley to accept our thanks for having put the ball in motion. We would also assure her of sympathy and support in all that she may undertake for the development of talent, for the cultivation of the beautiful, and for the benefit of art.

Superior Court.

This tribunal has been engaged today, the first of the second week of the term, in hearing and disposing of some minor cases. To-morrow the case of Mildred A. Oldham, Administratrix of C. W. Oldham, deceased, vs. the Wilmington & Weldon R. R., for $10,000 damages, will be called. Hon. D. K. McRae will appear for the plaintiff and Hon. Geo. Davis and Maj. Chas. M. Stedman for the defence.

Callendar's Minstrels.

A very nice entertainment is promised to our readers this evening on the occasion of the appearance here of Callendar's Colored Minstrel Troupe. They come to us from the South where they have been performing to fine audiences. We notice excellent commendations of the performance in late issues of the Charlotte papers. The troupe was recruited in Hon. Alex. H. Stephens' district in Georgia and it is said that there is more real talent in the organization than in a Canadian Congress.

River News.

Capt. W. H. James, the engineer in charge of the river works in this section, informs us that the work of removing the obstructions in Town Creek has been completed and that the dredge will be put to work there as soon as they are ready for it. The work of cutting away overhanging trees and cleaning out obstructions in the Cape Fear has progressed very favorably to within a distance 30 miles below Fayetteville, and in a few days work is to be begun on Lillington River (Long Creek), in accordance with the appropriation made therefor.

Best ever made, Emory's Little Cathartic Pills, pleasant to take, sugar coated; no gripping; only 15 cents a box of Druggists or by mail. Standard Care Co., 114 Nassau Street, New York.
