Somebody, who seems equal to any kind of an emergency, has suggested the name of Thos. S. Ashe for the Senate. This is the fifth. It is now in order for some of Judge Bennett's friends to nominate.

The Memphis Avalanche says that the first syllable of the next President's name is Sam Randall. This may possibly prove true of the nominee of the Democratic party but the next President of the United States will not be named Randall.

Gen. Newton M. Curtis has paid the fine imposed upon him by the courts for violating the civil service regulations in the matter of political assessments. The New York Republican State Executive Committee furnished him with the money.

Hon. Geo. Howard, of Tarboro, a gentleman for whom we have always entertained a very great respect, and whose name has been mentioned in connection with the Senatorial succession, appears in a card in the Tarboro Southerner in a bitter attack on Senator Ransom. This attack is so extravagant and so ill-advised that Judge Howard will be sure to regret its publication before many moons have waxed and waned. It is undemocratic, too, in that Judge Howard seems to set up his opinion above that of the Democratic masses in the State who have already most emphatically approved, at the ballot-box, Gen. Ransom's course in the Senate. Judge Howard should remember another fact, also, and that is that while during the recent campaign nobody heard of Mr. Dorch or Judge Howard, at all events outside of their own immediate bailiwicks, Senator Ransom canvassed the State from the seacoast to the mountains, and it is the opinion of many discerning people in the West and in the East alike, that his individual efforts alone contributed in a very great degree to the success of the Democratic party. The Lenoir Topic boldly asserts this as true of its district and we know that his efforts in the Cape Fear section were productive of much good.

We do not understand why Judge Howard, who was at one time, we think, one of Gen. Ransom's warmest supporters, should thus have attacked him, but we regret exceedingly that it should be so. Two such magnificent men as Matt W. Ransom and George Howard should be sincere friends and faithful allies in the alignment of the party. But, notwithstanding all of the opposition developed against him, Senator Ransom will be triumphantly returned to the Senate.

We learn that our young friends at Wallace (Duplin Roads) and vicinity, in Duplin county, have made arrangements to wind up the festivities of the holidays by a grand ball to be given on the night of Friday, the 29th inst. The affair will come off in Clements' Hall, at Duplin Roads, and we feel assured that those who have the matter in charge will spare no efforts to make it a grand success.

Esmeralda.

The Madison Square Theatre Company of New York arrived from Savannah last night and will produce "Esmeralda" to-night. This is the same company which played here early this season and gave such general satisfaction and the citizens of Wilmington are pleased to welcome them back again. Mr. Jas. H. Hart, the Manager, informs us that the company have made a general tour of the South and have done an immense business, giving full satisfaction to all fortunate enough to witness their performances. They leave here to-morrow morning for New York and will open Christmas afternoon in Newark, N. J., presenting "Hazel Kirke," and have been selected to play the latest great New York success "Young Mrs. Winthrop" through the Eastern cities. We would be glad to welcome them back here in the Spring in their new play.

Death of Dr. Walker.

It is with great regret that we announce to-day the death of Dr. Joshua C. Walker, who departed this life in this city at 2 o'clock this morning. His death had been expected for some time. He had been sick with the disease known as "fatty degeneration of the heart" for the past four months and of late it has been known that he could not survive. The entire medical fraternity in the city united their efforts in his behalf but they could only prolong his life, they could not save it.

Dr. Walker was born in Wilmington April 6th, 1833, and was consequently nearly 50 years of age at the time of his death. He graduated at Chapel Hill in the class of 1854 and graduated in medicine in the University of New York in 1857. Shortly afterwards he married Miss Eliza, second daughter of Richard Bradley, Esq., whom he survived, and removed to Fernandina, Fla., where he engaged in the practice of his profession. At the outbreak of the Civil War he returned to Wilmington and in 1863 was Assistant Surgeon of the gallant Third North Carolina Infantry. He was afterwards appointed Assistant Surgeon in Charge of the Marine Hospital here, a position in which he was found at the close of the war. At his decease Dr. Walker was Superintendent of Health for the city of Wilmington and a member, conjointly with Drs. Wood and Curtis, of the Quarantine Board. He was also, a short time since, appointed by Gov. Jarvis as a Director of the Insane Asylum at Morganton. The New Hanover County Medical Society will meet this evening to adopt resolutions of regret and sympathy on the occasion of his death and also to make suitable arrangements for attending the funeral.

Useful Holiday Present.

We know of no better present to be made than a genteel suit of clothing or a fine over-coat, and, of course, to find these, you have only to step into the store of A. & I. SHERRER, No. 34 Market street.

THE CITY THIRTY YEARS AGO AND NOW.

Its Prosperity—Its Railroads—Plenty of Shipping, But the American Flag Invisible—Spicy Chat From the Banks of Cape Fear River—The Newspapers of the City.

A special correspondent of the Norfolk Virginian, who has been in Wilmington for a short time, sends to that paper an interesting account of his visit here after an absence of thirty years. The article is entirely too long for our columns, but we give its most salient points:

WILMINGTON, N. C., December 15. Thirty years ago I paid my last visit to this city, and the change in its appearance has been so great for the better, that I am compelled to note it as a single proof of the continued prosperity of the South.

Years ago, when the Southern bound traveller reached this point he was transferred to a ferryboat, which crossed the river, and connected with the Wilmington & Manchester Railroad. But all this lives only in the memory of the past.

Two of the three railroads that enter Wilmington are under one management. The Wilmington, Columbia & Augusta and the Wilmington & Weldon Roads, are supervised by President Bridges and Superintendent John F. Divine, the latter a practical, go-ahead business man, always on the alert, with eyes open looking for advantages that will benefit the company whom he labors for. The Carolina Central, with its freights of ore, grain and cotton from Western North Carolina, connects its rails with the roads above mentioned, and all three will in the near future be covered by a grand union depot.

To digress a little, it may here be stated that a reduction works is in full operation, crushing the rocks that contain the precious minerals, and all of which is brought from that part of Carolina already famous for its mineral wealth.

Around the depots, or depot as it should be more properly called, the tracks are so numerous as to resemble a gridiron of gigantic size, and the busy whistles of the yard engines are constantly heard as they travel to and fro in transferring loaded cars, or making up trains, the great majority of which, going North, end their journey at Portsmouth.

To show the amount of business done and the prospect for future prosperity, it can be said that the W. & W. road is building an immense machine shop at a cost of $500,000. They have also erected a roundhouse, and a warehouse, the latter running down to the water's edge, and being over 400 feet in length. Another warehouse of the same dimensions is in course of active contemplation, and as the tracks run between and on each side of the houses, at least four trains can be loaded at one time, thus proving the old adage that "time is money." The buildings in course of erection are under the personal supervision of Capt. John F. Divine, and the reason that I have dwelled so long on this rather new system of railroad management is, that whatever benefits Wilmington is sure to benefit Norfolk.

When I was a schoolboy, one of the questions in geography was, "What are the products of North Carolina?" and the answer quickly came, "Tar, pitch and turpentine." But that answer will not answer now; for grain, minerals and cotton have given the Old North State a boom she did not have thirty years ago. There are twenty-two sailing vessels of large tonnage in this harbor at present loading for foreign markets with the produce of this State, and I am sorry and ashamed to say that out of that number there is not a single American bottom. The flags of all other nations sport from the mizen peak in the sun, but the American flag is nowhere to be seen, except on a few coasters—the New York line of steamers included.

The city of Wilmington must be a pleasant place to reside during the Winter, Spring and Autumn. Her streets are wide and lined with magnificent shade trees. The private residences and grounds attached are exceedingly handsome, and flowers bloomed in the open air until the cold snap of a week ago. The citizens generally are blessed with having clean streets, and all on account of the industrious scavengers in their midst. Goats and geese are allowed to run at large, and as both are numerous there is very little filth—not even a scrap of paper left on the highways by dusk; but for fear that the appetites of the goats for paper, and the geese for other provender, are not as good as they should be, the authorities imitate in a measure the tactics of the people of Constantinople. In the latter city the dogs are loosed at night and make clean work of the offal before day-break; and here the law permits the hogs to promenade and take possession of the city after nightfall. In either case the result is the same—fastidious gutters, and parlor carriage ways.

If Christians are to be counted by the number of churches in a city, the citizens of Wilmington must be truly good, for no matter in which direction one may stray sacred edifices confront him. The majority of the houses of worship are interesting looking structures and the Baptist and Presbyterian Churches would be an ornament to any city.

The theatre is in the rear of and attached to the City Hall building, where the city fathers can run out from their arduous duties once in a while and look at the Humpty Dumpty or some other intelligent treat; and as police headquarters are immediately under the hall, there is no danger but what the performance will be orderly, because Captain Brock is always on hand to magnetize offenders.

There are eight newspapers published in Wilmington, two of which are dailies, and take it all in all the city of Wilmington has made a grand march in the line of improvement, and no more resembles the Wilmington of thirty years ago, than youth resembles age.

Josh Billings says: "Next to a clear conscience for solid comfort comes an old shu." He probably never suffered with a cough or cold, otherwise he would have referred to Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup as being also a good thing to secure relief and comfort.

A Bereavement.

This afternoon a colored man was passing along Water street with his Christmas in a jug when another colored man accidentally struck the vessel with an axe-handle and broke it. A third colored man, who happened to be near, jumped and held his hat under the broken jug to catch what he could of the Christmas, but, sad to relate, his hat had a hole in it, and colored man number four held his hat underneath the other and caught all that had not already escaped. His hat was a tight one, and it will be hardly wonderful if the owner is a "tight" one before morning.

Exports Foreign.

The Nor. barque Saga, Capt. Bie, cleared to-day for Liverpool with 2,183 bales of cotton, valued at $103,607, shipped by Messrs. D. R. Murchison & Co.

Judge McRae arrived in town this morning, and left this afternoon on a steamer for Fayetteville. He has been in attendance during the week upon Pender Superior Court, which adjourned last night.

The celebrated "Fish Brand" Gills Twine is sold only at JACOBSON'S Hardware Depot.

DIED.
