OUR SENTIMENTS.

Mr. Fred, Gebbard loss fairly earned a title to being the most colossal fool of the age and chiefest among ten thon sand who infeet this country, by his persistent attentions to and love-sick wanderings after the Langtry. We are forced to admit that there are others who have worked carnestly to compete with him, but have tailed to become simpletons of such magnificent proportions as he has reached. From the day when Mrs Langtry landed in this country, be bas been persistent and unceasing in his attentions to her; equandered what would in his message. He declares intemperbe a fortune to many a worthy man in jeweiry and other presents to her; has ing evil in that State, where over 16,followed her like a shadow wherever she has travelled, and has been her companion at all times and at all places, from New York to Boston, from thence to Philadelphia; back to New York and Brooklyn, and last to Chicago, where the twain now are. He has done all this with the knowledge that she has a husband to whom he is stranger and that there are those around her especially dele gated to see that she is protected and cared for. To show how stupendous he can be as a fool and how insolent he can be as a conceited puppy he has written a letter for publication in which he finds fault with the people of this country for daring to call in question his offenses against good taste and against good morals by his attentions to Mrs. Langtry. His letter is as fol-

"Sir-Since my arrival in Chicago I have been made the subject of newspaper articles, in which my habits, appearance and intentions have been referred to at a greater or less length. I should not heed these articles if they concerned no one but myself, as I am satisfied that the portion of the community whose good opinion is worth having does not attach the slightest importance to stories containing a grain of the acquaintance of that strange girl truth to a ton of falsehood, and in some | Jon were raving over?" News. Unfortunately they reflect upon a lady whose !riendship I am proud to possess, and who is as painfully surprised as I am that in a country where cilivalry and independence are supposed to exist, every day should be marked by a new and coarse invasion into her private life. My attentions to Mrs. Langtry are such as any gentleman should, without comment, be privileged to pay any lady. her busband s sister, dwelling in a pub- gentlemen were examining them. She came here beralded in such a way as to give the assurance that she knew the proprieties of life, and from her past experience in the highest English society it was presumed she had sense and tact enough to observe them. She has, however, preferred the attentions of Gebhard to the good opinion of our people, and while she retains the former &r. The fact that Mrs. Langtry willingly permits his attentions does not make them any less reprobensible and dishonorable. They have injured bet reputation, and he knows it. The American people were willing to receive her for what morally, socially and profession. ally worth, which was all she had any right to ask. They have been painfully surprised, but not much cheated, in regard to the first two qualities, while their good nature has allowed them, if all reports of her acting are correct, to be most outrageously swindled so far as her profession is concorned. Money and Gebbard seem to be all that she cares for in this country, and she bids fair to have a plenty of both, unless, indeed, some worthy young man has hor interest enough at beart to horsewhip the male portion of her idolatry into a sense of common decency and propriety; an event which we have somewhat expected.

The annual statistics of Rhode Island savings Banks show that the working people are quite prosperous. The deposits have increased $1,548,968 in the past year, the total amount being $48,-320,671. The number of depositors has ingressed 9,481.

The immigration to the United States during 1882 from all countries, at all ports, amounted to 735,000, against 719,000 for 1881, an increase of 16,000 over the previous year. Germany contributed 232,000; England and Wales. 81,000; Ireland, 70,000; Scotland, 17-000; Sweden, 59,000; Norway, 27,000; Canada, 89,000, and all the other contributing countries 160,000. During the last three months of the past year the immigration fell short of that of the previous year and in the judgment of those who have observed the fluctuations of the tide, immigration has reached its maximum. The inflox of Germans was considerably less than that of 1981. A heavy immigration is, however, expected to set in from Russia this year, and the Russians upon arrival immediately start for the West and build new homes.
