A Washington City special says that a number of Republicans who despair of success under the present leaders have booked Justice Miller, of the U. S. Supreme Court, as their candidate for President in 1884.

George Scheller, the lessee of the bar-room in the Newhall House, at Milwaukee, is in jail on the charge of having set fire to the hotel. The case looks black against him and there were talks of calling on Judge Lynch.

The Marquis of Lorne drank a julep in Richmond out of the same tumbler which was filled with the beverage for the Prince of Wales in 1860. There are five or six well-organized lobbies in Washington City who will work desperately as long as there is a glimmer of success before them. They will have to work hard as a number of eminent statesmen on whom they rely to forward their raids on the public purse will retire to private life on the fourth of March.

There was at least one item of interest in connection with the visit of the Princess Louise to Richmond. The morning after she arrived she wanted to take a bath but declined to use the tub in her suite of rooms because it was not new. Thereupon a plumber was sent for and a new tub was made at once for her royal highness.

Next year is the centenary of organio American Methodism, and it is proposed that all the Methodist sects shall unite in a celebration. It is probable that all will join in this demonstration except the Methodist Protestants, who constitute a body that seceded in 1830 on the question of episcopacy.

Some of us have heretofore been unsophisticated enough to believe that "Cousin Sally Dillard" was the production of a gifted North Carolinian (Col. Ham Jones, we believe) but now we are told that its author was a Virginian! Just as though nothing good whatever could come out of the North Carolina Nazareth.

The Princess Louise passed through here this morning, accompanied by the Marquis of Lorne and suite. There were not many persons at the depot and no one was gratified by a sight of the royal lady. In response to a card sent in by a gentleman who felt it his duty to be there, the response was made that they were not traveling officially, and could not, therefore, be seen. The Princess and suite occupied palace cars of the Atlantic Coast Line, their own having been left in Richmond for some necessary repairs, and they were not compelled, therefore, to change cars at this point.

A Nice Time.

DEAR REVIEW:—This beautiful little village, around which cling so many pleasant reminiscences of by-gone days, and whose history is filled with the most brilliant scenes of gaiety and good times, has lost none of the hilarity and merriment of the happy past. Old time, original enjoyment is yet a part of the nature of the people of this historic little place, and you may rely upon it for at the entertainment given here last evening, a more enjoyable time cannot be imagined. Beautiful ladies and gallant, manly gentlemen, and splendor in everything and enjoyment, original, pure and genuine, were among the pleasing characteristics of the occasion. Many were the representatives from Pender that formed the bevy of the young and gay, and New Hanover added three handsome flowers to the already beautiful bouquet, and who graced the occasion and whose genial presence produced this most agreeable past-time.

And just here let me say, that ere another holiday season rolls around, and ere long before even the festivities of the Fourth of July reaches us, a certain rule of a certain Court, for a long time defied and long disregarded, will be complied with, and "don't you forget it." Thus it will be seen that the law has failed in. However this may be though, certain it is, that the occasion was one that will long be remembered for the enjoyment it afforded and its many pleasing incidents throughout.

Last Night's Entertainment.

There was quite a good audience at the Opera House last night to witness the farce of "Around the World," by the Comedian John Thompson and his troupe. He had promised the visitors lots of fun and he kept his promise by keeping his audience in a roar of laughter, nearly all the time. He is an accomplished musician and played finely upon several instruments. His impersonations of various characters and nationalities were perfect. The only merit of the performance was in his power to make people laugh and in that it was a success. There were but three persons composing the troupe, and these were himself, his wife and daughter.
