A locomotive is being built for the Erie Railway in which Mr. Mallett's device for consuming smoke is to be tested. In order to give the invention a thorough trial a trip across the Continent will be made. There is to be no smokestack on this locomotive, and in its place is to be a manhole merely. The air used to condense the steam is employed for heating and ventilating cars, being delivered through a conduit which, with coupling ends, passes along beneath the cars. This system does away with coal stoves or heaters, and supplies the cars with fresh air and warm air without danger of fire in case of assmash-up.
