The Daily Review has the largest bona fide circulation, of any newspaper published, in the city of Wilmington.

The Wilmington Star placed itself on record yesterday as being opposed to the education of the ignorant on the plea that, when attempting to educate a negro "vou spoil a field hand without clevating him morally." To give force to the assertion, the Star italicises the life words we have quoted. It is hard to believe that any fair minded man could have written or endorsed such trash. especially one who has had as many opportunities for intelligent observation as has the editor of the Star. To say that education does not elevate ignorant negroes is to say that education does not elevate ignorant persons of any rank or of any degree. Any man of ordinary observation will see how much education has done for the race in this city since the close of the war. Those who were residents of Wilmington in 1865 can remember very clearly and very distinctly the condition of the negroes at that time, just emancipated, . and cast almost entirely upon their own resources. Then they were ignorant and poverty-stricken, and scarce one in fifty could read the title of a newspaper. New there are hundreds of ablebodied colored men in this city, well far. clothed, well fed and well housed, with neatly-clad children hurrying off day by day to attend the schools. It may be very true, as the Star asserts that ! you "spoil a good field hand" by giving him education but any man with common sense and common eyes and common fairness can see for himself that educating the negro is "elevating him morally." In speaking for the education and moral elevation of the negro we speak in the same breath and in the same words for the prosperity and security of the white people. That education does elevate is a truism which has been proved so often and so thoroughly that the man who denies it now might as well deny that the sun shines at midday or the stars sparkle at midnight because there are a few clouds overhead between the earth and the sky. We pity the white people who might be compelled to live for many years in a city or in a country largely inhabited by field hands, recently emancipated, and with no schoolhouses at hand for the children of the blacks. No; these people are with us and of us and they will remain with and of us; it is a decree of the Almighty, which may not be resisted. But while they are with us let us smooth their path-and oursby using the advantages and influences of education, which the same Power has placed within our grasp. Education is not only the handmaid of enlightenment, but she is the handmaid of peace, and the assertion that it "spoils good field hands" was an excel-

PRESIDENT'S REPORT. GENTLEMEN:-At this our thirtieth annual meeting of the Seamans Friend Society, we have cause to feel encouraged that we have passed through the financial difficulties which have been pressing so heavily upon us since the rebuilding of our Home, and now have the fair prospects, by economy and prudence, of being able to meet promptly our current expenses, and in the near future to begin to provide a sinking fund to pay on our bonded debt. We gratefully acknowledge the donation of 400 from the parent Society in New York, enabling us to continue the serwas only a few days ago that they were vices of our Chaplain and his labors in our port. During the past year we have made a change in the management of the Home, and we think it due to Capt. The tashion, the refinement and culture of the city graced the entertainment with their presence, and every portion of the exercises received the most profound attention from the delighted listeners.

The exercises of the evening were opened by Rev. S. Mendelsohn, D. D., of this city, who, in a brief and felicitous speech, introduced Hon. Simon Wolf, of Washington, D. Hon, Mr. Wolf, who was formerly Minister to Egypt, then came forward and made an instructive and entertaining address in which he gave, in synopsis, a history of the Order from its organization until the present time. The vocal music consisted of selections given by Mrs. Kahnweiler, and Messrs. Nathan Mayer, R. H. Grant, the Arion Quartette Club, of this city, and Rev. Dr. Kaiser, of Baltimore. The latter gentleman has a well trained baritone voice and was heartily encored to wit by the delighted audience. Of the skill in execution and richness of the tones of our own citizens who participated ast night, we have spoken so often and so freely and fully that any words of praise at this time would seem like redundancy We always listen to them with profound and ever increasing delight, and their efforts last night were equal to any of their previous attempts.
