are never emulated or counterfeited This is especiall true of a medicine, am it is posit ve proof that the remedy imi tated is of the highest value. As soon ss it had been tested and proved by the whole world that Hop Bitters was the purest, best and most valuable family medicine on earth, many imitations sprung up and began to steal the notices in which the press and people of the country had expressed the merits o H. B., and in every way trying to in duce suffering invalids to use their stuff instead, expecting to make money or the credit and good name of H. B Many others started nostrums put up in simiar style to H. B. with variously devised names in which the word "Hop" or "Hops" were used in a way to induce people to believe they were the same as Hop Bitters. All such pre tended remedies or cures. no matter what their style or name is, and espec ially those with word "Hop" or "Hops' in their name, or in any way connected with them or their name, are imitations or counterfeits. Beware of them. Touch none of them Use nothing but gennine Hop Bitters, with a bunch or cluster of green Hops on the white label. Trust nothing else. A Pointed Tale.

Jack Kringle is a man who never wastes an opportunity, or puts off for to-morrow the joke that can be done to-day. Going down the street last Wednesday he was accosted by a little nervous man who had an impediment n his speech.

Said the stranger: "Ca-can you t-tell ne where I can g-zet s s-some t-t-tin -tacks?

"With much pleasure, sir," replied lack, who realized the position at once, and having directed his interlocutor to the shop of a neighboring ironmonger, by a somewhat circuitous route nurried off to the spot by a short cut. Now, the ironmonger was having his linner in a little back parlor; but when Jack entered the premises he came forward briskly, bowing and rubbing his nands together in that peculiar servile manner that is characteristic of the British shopkeeper

"Do y-you s-sell t-tin t-tacks?" said Jack, assuming a stammer.

"Oh, yes, sir; certainly, sir." "G-g-good long ones?" "Yes, sir; all sizes, sir."

"W-with s-s-sharp points?" "Yes, sir; very sharp points." "W-well, then, s-s-sit down on 'em, and w-w-wait till I c-call again." Having "given his order," Jack hought it prudent to retire at once, as there were severa, heavy articles within asy access of the proprietor's hands. The old man hardly cooled down and returned to his meal, which had also cooled down unpleasantly, when the "real Simon pure" entered the shop, and again the iromonger came forth, washing his hands with invisible soap in imperceptible water."

"Do y-you s-sell t-t-tin t-tacks?" said the little man. Luckily the door was open, so the customer successfully avoided the seven
