

The Daily Review.

JOSH. T. JAMES, Editor & Prop. WILMINGTON, N. C. WEDNESDAY, MARCH 7, 1883.

A STATESMAN'S VIEWS.

Hon. Abram S. Hewitt, of New York, was interviewed a few days since by a reporter connected with the New York Herald, in regard to the probable effect of the new tariff law upon the industries of the country and upon the condition of working men of the country.

"I was so anxious to secure reduction of taxation that I was willing to vote for any bill which would bring this about, even though I might not be able to subscribe to the principles on which the tariff question was constructed."

"The Conference Committee made no reduction in any case where reduction would decrease the price to consumers or cheapen the article. There will not be, for instance, a penny of revenue gained by reason of the reduction on steel rails, nor does that reduction cheapen the article to the consumer."

"After citing several instances in which gross blunders were made in endeavor to protect certain industries but which in consequence must needs suffer, Mr. Hewitt points out the glaring outrage of some features of the law by citing a single instance, as follows:—"

"On the other hand, the Conference Committee raised the duty in all cases where protected industries had the inside track or the ear of the committee so they could manage it. Take the first item in the bill as an example. Glue has been subject to a duty of twenty per cent ever since the war began and I think long before. It is a flourishing business here, but the importation of glue paid some revenue to the Treasury, because some kinds of glue made abroad are not made here. The duty in the new law is raised to twenty five per cent, which is an increase of taxation and of the burden laid on the consumer, and in a case where it was not required by any public interest. The increase will benefit nobody except a few manufacturers of glue."

"In summing up its effect upon the country and upon future political prospects, Mr. Hewitt says:— "This legislation will fall of its intended effect, for the reason that the industries of this country are suffering, not from foreign competition, but from the domestic competition arising out of the protection we have had for the last twenty years. The result of this long period of protection is an excess of production at home, for which no market can be found because we have no access to foreign markets as other nations have who have free raw materials."

"The result of this pernicious system is that failures in every branch of business have already begun and they will proceed with accelerated rapidity until the weaker concerns, which cannot compete with their stronger neighbors, will be driven to the wall. The only sensible and possible relief that could have been extended to the manufacturers would have been to free raw materials from destructive duties, so that goods might be produced at a lower price and thus find a wider market at home and abroad. Thus the issue is at last fairly raised between true revenue reform, which will remove impediments to the cheap production of manufactured articles, and protection for the sake of protection which first produces dear goods and finally brings ruin on their producers."

which enable favored industries to prey on the rest of the community when the demand happens to exceed domestic supply. So far as I know the revenue reformers will be very conservative, and they will take care that no existing interest that has a right to live in this country—that is to say, which can be carried on in this country with a little labor as in other countries—will be disturbed or impaired."

"In conclusion," said Mr. Hewitt, "I wish to say that so far from anything being settled by this new law, it is in my judgment, the beginning of the real and solid revenue reform demanded by the people of this country."

The Financial Chronicle estimates Southern consumption of cotton for the last six months at 200,000 bales, against 155,000 last year, and 135,000 the year previous. This makes the increased consumption at the South 45,000 bales while the estimated consumption of the mills at the North for the same six months is 1,293,201, only 80,686 more than last year, and 32,770 less than for the previous year.

A gentleman of our acquaintance tells us of the following story, which goes to show that the average Austin boy has what Mrs. Partington would call "a judicious" mind: He, the boy, wanted to go in swimming. THE SUN. NEW YORK, 1883.

More people have read THE SUN during the year just now passing than ever before. It was first printed. No other newspaper has been read in any year by so many men and women.

We are credibly informed that the people read, and like THE SUN for the following reasons, among others: Because its news columns present in advance the news of the day, and the greatest possible accuracy whatever has interest for possible events, the deeds and misdeeds of the world, the philosophy, the notable folly, the wisdom, the improving news, the news of the busiest world at present revolving in space.

Because people have learned that to know makes a practice of telling the truth to the best of his ability three times as well as after, that the whole as well as about the small fish, in the face of a plain and fearlessly as when especially of general approval. The Sun has especially the advantage of saving the information of the reader and the furtherance of the economy of the world.

Because it is everybody's newspaper. It is the only newspaper that is so independent in its welfare and its rights. No man is so rich that it can allow injustice to be done. No man, no association of men, is powerful enough to be exempt from the strict application of its principles. Because in politics it has fought, year after year, without intermission and sometimes has resulted in the reform of government. No matter what the power, the Sun stands and will continue to stand against the ambition of the people against the monopolies, and the schemes of public robbers.

Because it is what we are told almost daily by our friends, One man holds that THE SUN is the best religious newspaper ever published, because its Christianity is unflinching with candor. Another holds that it is the best Republican newspaper ever published, because it has whipped half of the rascals out of the party, and is proceeding against the other half, and is undiminished vigor. A third believes it to be the best of all literature in its lucid, lucid, because it is current in the world of thought. So every friend of THE SUN is convinced that it is a mirror of all that is particular force to his individual liking.

If you already know of THE SUN, you will observe that in 1883 it is a little better than ever before. If you do not already know THE SUN, you will find it to be a mirror of all that is particular force to his individual liking. A storehouse of the choicest products of common sense and imagination, a mainstay for the cause of honest government, a scold for the wickedness of every species of man, a common good investment for the coming year.
