THAT SETTLES IT.

Brought into Competition with the World, the Best Carries off the Honors.

At the great Centennial Exhibition of 1876, the leading products of all the branches of the World's Industry were assembled at Philadelphia. To carry off a prize in the face of that tremendous competition was a task of no ordinary difficulty. Inventions and preparations for the alleviation of pain and the cure of disease were present in the greatest possible variety, representing the skill and the profound study of the age, and it may be of vital importance to you, personally, to know that the highest and the only medal given to rubber Porous plasters, was awarded to the manufacturers of BENSON'S CAPCINE POROUS PLASTER, by the following jury:

Dr. WM. ROTH, Surgeon-General, Prussian Army.

J. H. THOMPSON, A. M., M. D., Washington, D. C.

C. B. WHITE, M. D., New Orleans.

ERNEST FLEISCH, M. D., Austria.

The decision was afterwards confirmed by the medical jury at the last Paris Exposition. Knowing the value of such high and unbiased testimony, the medical profession, both in the United States and in Europe, quickly threw aside the old, slow-acting plasters they had been using, and adopted Benson's in their regular practice. That physicians and surgeons of the highest reputations did this, distinctly proves the intrinsic merit of the article.

It is no more than just to add that the average physician of to-day is not dominated by the prejudices which retarded the progress and modified the success of his predecessors of not more than twenty-five years ago. He accepts hints from all quarters and endorses and adopts demonstrated healing agents wherever he finds them.

The right of Benson's Capcine Porous Plaster to stand at the head of all external applications whatsoever, for the mitigation or cure of disease, is no longer questioned.

Let the purchaser, however, be on his guard against imitations. The genuine has the word CAPCINE cut in the middle.

WARNER'S SAFE KIDNEY AND LIVER CURE

Disease is an effect, not a cause. Its origin is within; its manifestations without. Hence to cure the disease the CAUSE must be removed, and in no other way can a cure be effected. WARNER'S SAFE KIDNEY AND LIVER CURE is established on just this principle. It realizes that of all diseases arise from deranged kidneys and liver and it strikes at once at the root of the difficulty. The elements of which it is composed act directly upon the great organs, both as a FOOD and RESTORER, and by placing them in a healthy condition, drive disease and pain from the system.

For the innumerable troubles caused by unhealthy Kidneys, Liver and Urinary Organs, or the distressing Disorders of Women; for Malaria and for physical derangements generally, this great remedy has no equal. Beware of imposters, imitations and concoctions said to be just as good.

For Diabetes ask for WARNER'S SAFE DIABETES CURE.

WHY.

I did not love him long ago;
Instead of "yes" I gave him "no."
I did not love him, but to-day
I read his marriage notice. Pray,
Why was I sad, when never yet
Has my heart known the least regret
Over that whispered "no?" And why
Reading the notice, did I sigh?
No analyst can guess the cause;
A woman's reason laughs at laws
Sure I am glad to know the wound
I gave has healed—that he has found
Love's blessedness and peace, and yet
A woman never can forget
The man who once has loved her, and
To-day I seem to see him stand,
With every glance a mute caress,
Still pleading for the longed-for "yes."
His early love for me is dead—
Another lives in that love's stead!
And if he loves her well, as men
Should love their chosen ones, why then,
He must be glad that, long ago,
Instead of "yes" I gave him "no."
Perhaps that is the reason why
I read the notice with a sigh.

HIS LAST COURT.

A Case of Father and Daughter Appealed from Arkansas to a Higher Tribunal.

Old Judge Grepson, a justice of the peace, was never known to smile. He came to Arkansas years ago, before the "carpet-baggers" began their reckless sway, and year after year, by the will of voters, he held his place as magistrate. The lawyers who practiced in his court never joked with him, because every one soon learned that the old man never engaged in levity. Every morning, no matter how bad the weather might be, the old man took his place behind the bar which, with his own hands, he had made, and every evening just at a certain time he closed his books and went home. No one ever engaged him in private conversation because he would talk to no one. No one ever went to his home, a little cottage among the trees in the city's outskirts, because he had never shown a disposition to make welcome the visit- of those who even lived in the immediate vicinity. His office was not given him through the influence of "electioneering," because he never asked any man for his vote. He was first elected because, having once been summoned in a case of arbitration, he exhibited the executive side of such a legal mind that the people nominated and elected him. He soon gained the name of the "hard justice," and every lawyer in Arkansas referred to his decision. His rulings were never reversed by the higher courts. He showed no sentiment in decision. He stood upon the platform of a law which he made a study, and no man disputed him.

Several days ago a woman charged with misdemeanor was arraigned before him. "The old man seems more than ever unsteady," remarked a lawyer as the magistrate took his seat. "I don't see how a man so old can stand the vexations of a court much longer."

"I am not well to-day," said the Judge, turning to the lawyers, "and any cases that you may have you will please despatch them to the best, and let me add quickest of your ability."

Every one saw that the old man was unusually feeble and no one thought of a scheme to prolong a discussion, for all the lawyers had learned to almost reverence him.

"Is this the woman?" asked the Judge. "Who is defending her?"

"I have no defense, Your Honor," the woman replied. "In fact, I do not think that I need any, for I am here to confess my guilt. No man can defend me," and she looked at the magistrate with a curious gaze. "I have been arrested on a charge of disturbing the peace, and I am willing to submit my case. I am dying of consumption Judge, and I know that any ruling made by the law can have but little effect on me;" and she coughed a hollow vacant cough, and drew around her an old black shawl that she wore. The expression on the face of the magistrate remained unchanged, but his eyes dropped and he did not raise them when the woman continued: "As I say, no man can defend me. I am so near that awful approach to pass which we know is everlasting death to soul and body. Years ago I was a child of brightest promise. I lived with my parents in Kentucky. Wayward and high-hearted, I was the admired of all the gay society in our neighborhood. A man came and professed love for me. I don't say this, Judge, to excite your sympathy. I gave it, and many a time been drawn before courts, but I never before spoke of my past life." She coughed again and caught a flow of blood on a handkerchief which she pressed to her lips. "I speak of it now because I know that this is the last court on earth before which I will be arraigned. I was fifteen years old when I fell in love with the man. My father said he was bad, but I loved him. He came again and again, and when my father said that he should come no more, I ran away and married him. My father said I should never come home again. I had always been his pride and had loved him so dearly, but he said that I must never again come to his home—my home, the home of my youth and happiness. How I longed to see him. How I yearned to put my head on his breast. My husband became addicted to drink. He abused me. I wrote to my father, asking him to let me come home, but the answer that came was 'I do not know you!' My husband died, yes, cursed God and died! He helpless and wretched, and with my little boy, I bowed down and wept over a pauper's grave. I wrote to my father again, but he answered: 'I know not those who disobey my commandments.' I turned away from that letter hardened. I embraced sin. I rushed madly into vice. I spurned my teachings. I was time and time again arrested. Now I am here."

Several lawyers rushed forward. A crimson tide flowed from her lips. They leaned her lifeless head back against the chair. The old magistrate had not raised his eyes. "Great God!" said a lawyer, "he is dead." The woman was his daughter.—Arkansas Traveller.

Mr. P. J. Alston, Jr., Newberne, N. C., says: "I have used Brown's Iron Bitters successfully for indigestion."

A Demand for Stuffed Owls.

"It is really surprising," said a New York taxidermist, "what an extraordinary demand has sprung up for owls this season. It has been good and gradually increasing for two years, but this winter it has exceeded anything I ever knew before as a rage for any particular variety of bird. Why, before the holidays, out of every ten people who entered my store, nine were after owls. When the year opened I didn't have a solitary one on hand except a few little screech owls. Even now, although the call for them has slackened off since the holidays, whoever a stranger comes in I find myself instinctively moving over toward the owls, expecting they are what is wanted. I don't know why the popular taste has rushed so in that direction any further than that it appears to be one of those inexplicable crazes that people do not try to account for further than by saying: 'It's the fashion.' But I have stocked up again with all sorts of owls, and am ready and willing for the craze to boom right along. Prices? Why, better than ever before. That great snowy owl, the largest and most beautiful of the family, is worth $25. I have snowy owls as low $15, $12 and even $10, but not such a superb specimen as that. Yet I used to be glad to get $8 or $10 for the very best of them. Those great horned owls are worth $10 each. The barred, long-eared and short-eared owls (the latter sometimes known as the swamp or meadow owl) are worth $4 each. Barred owls made into a screen are worth $6. They are not much wanted in fancy forms, however, either as screens or in flying attitudes. The owl's strongest suit is his dignity, and he shows the best in repose. The screech owls are worth $2 50 each. The Arcadian owls are the smallest found in this section of the country, not bigger than quails; and the Sawit owls, from somewhere away out West, are not more than half their size. They command pretty good prices, as they are rarer than the others, but still never anything like the big ones. All the fine large owls come from Canada, as a rule, but this season two handsome snowy owls were shot over in Jersey City. Another was shot on Rikers hospital and another up by Bellevue hospital. Owls the only birds used for screens? Oh, no; not by any means. Heron, hawks and gulls are also used, and, indeed, many others. The handsomest is the white heron, which, when spread out so as make a sort of halo of wings and tail while perched naturally on one leg, is worth $15. All the prices I have named are for owls mounted complete and life-like."

Mysteries in Georgia.

Several portions of Georgia are having sensations about things terrible or mysterious. The much-talked-about hyena of Atlanta has not been caught yet, and no one can tell where he will make his next raid. The people of Montgomery county are terrified by mysterious rappings and other strange noises which they cannot trace to any human agency. And Mr. A. B. Livingston has made solemn oath before a justice of the peace in Macon that he and another witness, designated as "T. C.," went to Rose Hill cemetery on Wednesday night of last week, and took a seat, when before them passed "a whole army of the dead" in solemn procession; that the mighty host of graveyard inhabitants passed so near them that they could feel the current of air put in motion by their grave clothes; that the leader formed them into a circle and then called the roll, and the witnesses had known in life some of them who answered and recognized their voices. The leader then delivered a solemn address and the multitude slowly passed on.—Georgia Paper.
