THE DAILY REVIEW.

VOL. VII. WILMINGTON, N. C. THURSDAY, MARCH 22, 1883. NO. 71

The Daily Review has the largest bona fide circulation of any newspaper published in the city of Wilmington.

To Builders and others—Go to JACOBI'S for Sash, Blinds and Doors, Glass &c. You can get all sizes and at the lowest prices.

There are 102 cities and incorporated towns in Arkansas.

It is said that there is but one licensed saloon in Jessamine county, Ky.

Newberry, S. C., is to have a cotton mill and has subscribed $68,000 already.

A Kentucky hunter affirms that he has killed 9160 rabbits this winter, and it was a bad winter for rabbits.

In a county in Nevada is a hill of moving sand four miles long, a mile wide and from 100 to 400 feet high. Within a few years the hill has traveled a mile.

Prof. See of the Hotel Dieu says that the new extract of lily of the valley is one of the most important remedies in heart disease known. It is a powerful poison.

New York city has 486 miles of water pipe, 391 miles of sewers, 824 miles of gas pipes, fourteen and a half miles of steam pipes, and fifteen miles of underground electric wires.

A paragraph is going the rounds to the effect that a Mrs. Ella K. Trader, who spent $100,000 of her own money in aiding wounded soldiers during the war, now lives in poverty at Asheville, N. C.

Professor Langley, the astronomer, says that at a height of three miles above the surface of the earth the sun's rays are of a bluish color. The sun, he thinks, is a blue star.

There is a movement on foot to expel the assassin Dukes from the Pennsylvania House of Representatives, of which he is a member. Dukes was elected by a Democratic constituency and a Democrat has very properly moved from his expulsiun. He will be kicked out.

Sullivan, the champion of the prize ring, had a tremendous benefit at a sparring exhibition given by him last Monday night in Boston—culchawed Boston. There were 18,000 persons present and several thousand others were turned away from the doors, unable to gain admittance.

The greatest social event of the age is the fancy dress ball to be given by Mrs. W. H. Vanderbilt in New York on Easter Monday night. Announced fully six weeks ago, it has been ever since the uppermost social topic, and now that the eventful night draws near fashionable excitement has reached a pitch of interest and curiosity hitherto unknown. As may readily be imagined, preparations for the ball are on an unprecedented scale of elegance and magnificence. The Mail and Express, excellent authority on the subject, tells us that:

The leading modistes, tailors and costumers of this and neighboring cities are overwhelmed with orders of the kind not limited by expense, and the Cunard steamer Catalonia, which arrived on Wednesday last, brought some gorgeous historical costumes ordered by cable, and made from models in the British Museum and in Hampton Court Palace. The entire Vanderbilt mansion will be thrown open from top to bottom, and a temporary pavilion erected in the rear to afford increased or additional accommodation for the guests. The floral display will be the most profuse and the most magnificent ever seen in New York, and florists have drawn upon Boston, Philadelphia and other cities for supplies. The entire rose and violet products of nurseries on Long Island and in New Jersey have been bought, and there is already a corner in smilax and tropical plants. Calculating gossips have estimated the cost of the floral decorations or display at $5,000, and the estimate is by no means extravagant. The orchestra, of five and twenty musicians, will play from behind a screen or curtain of smilax and under a canopy of roses, and throughout the house will be huge pyramids of roses, tropical trees, plants, vines and hanging baskets. There will be what is known as a continuous supper served, and it will be one to rouse the highest gastronomic enthusiasm among epicures and the disciples of Samuel Ward. All the rarities and delicacies that money can buy or that social influence can secure will be served, and noted chefs and confectioners have for several days been engaged upon the ornamental pieces.

The number of invitations issued is in excess of one thousand, and as an evidence that many are disappointed, it is to be stated that Mrs. Vanderbilt has received many written applications for invitations from people whom she does not know, and whom she cannot with propriety gratify. These people who have humiliated and compromised themselves have allowed their ambition, perhaps curiosity, to get the better of their good judgment and common sense. It is told of one lady residing in the reputed conservative city of Boston, that she offered Mrs. Vanderbilt a picture by one of the "old masters" in exchange for a card of invitation, and of another whose wealth is in excess of her pedigree, that she gave as a reason why she should be invited that she had known the deceased Commodore Vanderbilt for many years, and her father had had business relations with him.

Features of the ball will be an opera bouffe quadrille danced by four sets representing characters in opera bouffe with which the generality of theatre-goers are tolerably familiar. The costumes, have been made under the supervision of the Grand and Mapleson costumers, and will include the Grand Duchess, Rose Michon, La Belle Helene and Giraffe. There will also be a Mother Goose quadrille in which all the ever familiar nursery pictures will be shown, a Dresden china lancers, and a minuet danced by modern imitations of lords and ladies of the time of the naughty Georges. The music for these dances will be appropriate, of course, and consequently harmonious.

Among the characters will be one of Queen Elizabeth, the costume having been made by Moskovich at a cost of $1,200. It is modeled from a picture in the gallery of Mr. Belmont, and is described as a "poem in satin brocade and lace."

There is a mystery about the reported assault on Lady Florence Dixie that it is difficult to understand. There are many who either doubt or disbelieve outright. An investigation is now in progress.

The hold which Queen Victoria has upon the affections of her people is well illustrated this time. She is suffering now from a slight fall on the steps at Windsor Castle by which some injuries to her knee, more serious than was at first apprehended, were sustained. Immediately upon its being known that she was injured, a panic of fear overspread the entire country and in London business was almost entirely suspended, so deep was the anxiety on her account. The announcement yesterday afternoon that she was in no immediate danger served to allay, in a great degree, the fears of the people.

The receipts of cotton at this port to-day foot up 473 bales.

The flurry of snow this morning will tend to benefit advancing vegetation, rather than do it injury.

There was a feeble attempt at snow-balling sport this morning, but it was short in duration and not very satisfactory.

The DAILY REVIEW will not be published to-morrow, in accordance with our usual custom. But look for us again on Saturday.

Said the Governor of North Carolina. To the Governor of South Carolina. For all pains we endure, St. Jacobs Oil is the cure.

We heard a thirsty young man from the country declare, this morning, that he would never come to Wilmington again on an election day.

The Banks and the Custom House and the Postoffice and the city offices and the county offices will all close to-morrow and some stores will do likewise.

Capt. R. M. McIntire leaves to-night for New York, where he will remain a week or ten days for the purpose of purchasing new goods. He will talk to the readers of the REVIEW on his return.

The total eclipse of the sun on May 6th next will last six minutes, and no longer one will probably occur within the next hundred years. It will be partially visible in many places, but few will see it in its entirety, as its path lies almost entirely through the ocean.

If any one should ask you who wrote the lines commencing with, "Oh! the snow, the beautiful snow," you may tell them it was the late Edwin M. Stanton, Secretary of War under Lincoln's administration, and you will be apt to be correct.

Easter and Its Origin.

The last week of the Lenten season is rapidly passing away, and on Sunday the glad some Eastertide will come again. Fasting will cease and the constant attitude of devotion be abandoned when the Festival of the Resurrection has passed by. Society will again don her garb of merriment and balls, routs and other jollifications succeed each other in rapid succession after the forty day's cessation in the indulgence of the fashionable world. Easter being a season of general rejoicing, brings happiness to many hearts and minds which are strangers to religion, besides being a season of holy joy in Christian households. There is, probably, a small per centage of the whole English-speaking people acquainted with the origin of the word Easter. It has come down to us through all the various changes of time from the old Saxon word ostre or osten, meaning rising. The German word osten is most like that of the ancient tongue. It has, however, been thought that the English word was taken from the name of the Teuton's goddess of Spring, Ostera or Eostre, in whose honor a festival was held annually in the springtime. East-er was, in the early centuries of the Christian faith, celebrated on the Sunday following the fourteenth day of the moon in March, although some people observed the festival on the fourteenth day of that moon. Much trouble arose from these different opinions in regard to the day to be observed in memory of Christ's resurrection, and in the year 825, at the council of Nice, under Constantine, the rule was adopted making Easter day always the first Sunday after the full moon happening upon or next after March 21. If the moon falls on Sunday, Easter day is the following Sabbath. All over the world divers sports and ceremonies have characterized the Queen of Festivals, as Easter is often called, for centuries. One of the oldest, and doubtless the best known, feature of the season is the custom of dyeing eggs for children to use either as ornaments or in the popular juvenile sport known as "picking." In the time of Edward I., of England, eggs were beautifully ornamented and given by friends to each other. Of late years the demand arose for some other sort of symbol to be used during Easter week, and the Easter cards were introduced. They are an outgrowth of the Christmas and New Year cards, which were first introduced about five years ago from England, where they had long been used. Now many of the finest designs are made in America. In general appearance Easter cards much resemble those used on the anniversary of the Saviour's birth, but they are of course differently ornamented. Owing to the increasing demand for the beautiful emblems, manufacturers have been engaged during the winter in designing and preparing a number of new styles for the season soon to be at hand.

Very Quiet.
Voting at the several precincts, during the early part of the day, was rather slow. Everything was moving along quietly, and at the Second Ward polling place in the city Hall, there was no stir to indicate that any thing unusual was taking place. We heard one gentleman remark that there was not stir enough to indicate to a man, not well acquainted, where the voting place was.

Spring Poetry.
As Spring poetry is now in order, we give a stanza from an old hymn, which becomes remarkably appropriate to the condition of the weather this morning:

"The hoary frost, the fleecy snow,
Descends and clothes the ground;
The liquid steams forbear to flow,
In icy fetters bound."

Our supply of Spring poetry is unusually large and varied in its style and character, but we have been constrained, very reluctantly, to discard the entire lot and offer the foregoing as a substitute on account of its greater fitness for the occasion.

Fire in the Country.
We learn that a fire, originating in the woods, on Tuesday last, swept across the plantation of Mr. Stephen Graham, near Kenansville, entirely destroying his fences and out-houses. For a short time his dwelling house was in imminent danger but through the efforts of the citizens it was saved. We have not been able to learn further particulars nor the amount of the damage to Mr. Graham's property, although it must have been considerable, and an especial misfortune at this season of the year.

The Elections.
The elections to-day, at all of the polling places, have been very quiet. As we close before the polls do we cannot of course, give figures, but it is safe to say that the entire Democratic ticket has been elected in the Second, Third and Fourth Wards. In the Second there was no opposition, and hence it was a walk-over for the Democrats. In the Third Messrs. Hancock and Foster were run but not with but little appreciation, as many colored men voted the Democratic ticket, and in the Fourth Ward Mr. George Chadborn received a large vote, but not enough to elect him. The Republicans, of course, carry the First and Fifth Wards, electing their regular tickets.
