WARNER'S

KIDNEY LIVER

CURE

Disease is an effect, not a cause. Its origin is within; its manifestations without. Hence, to cure the disease the CAUSE must be removed, and in no other way can a cure be effected.
WARNER'S SAFE KIDNEY AND LIVER CURE is established on just this principle. It removes the cause.

95 Per Cent.

of all diseases arise from deranged kidneys and liver and it strikes at once at the root of the trouble. The elements of which it is composed act directly upon the great organs, both as a FOOD and RESTORER, and by placing them in a healthy condition, drive disease and pain from the system.

For the innumerable troubles caused by unhealthy kidneys, liver and urinary organs; for the distressing disorders of women; for the general debility and weakness generally, this great remedy has no equal. Beware of impostors, imitations and concoctions said to be just as good.

For Diabetics ask for WARNER'S SAFE DI-ABETES CURE.

Farmers, Take Notice.

MORRIS' HOG CHOLERA COMPOUND is just the thing to cure or prevent Hog Cholera and all diseases to which Swine are subject; it will prevent that dreadful disease known as Trichina, and will put your hogs in a healthy, thriving condition, clearing the kidneys, liver, etc., of worms and parasites.

Each package contains one and one-half pounds and will, if given strictly according to directions, cure 10 hogs of the Cholera and put 20 more in a condition to fatten in one half the usual time, thereby saving one half of the feed.
The farmers of Duplin county are giving it the praise. All farmers should buy a package.

THE FIRST EASTER.

It happen'd, on a solemn even tide, Soon after He that was our surety died, Two bosom friends, each pensively inclined.

The scene of all those sorrows left behind.
Sought their own village, busied, as they went.

In musings worthy of the great event:
They spoke of him they lov'd, of him whose life,

Though blameless, had incur'd perpetual strife.
Whose deeds had left, in spite of hostile arts,

A deep memorial graven on their hearts.
The recollection, like a vein of ore, The farther trac'd, enrich'd them still the more;

They thought of him, and they justly thought him, one

Sent to do more than he appear'd to have done;
To exalt a people and to make them high.

Above all else, and wonder'd he should die.
Ere yet they brought their journey to an end.

A stranger join'd them, courteous as a friend
And asked them, with a kind, engaging air,

What their affliction was, and begg'd a share Inform'd he gathered up the broken thread.

And, truth and wisdom gracing all he said, Explain'd, illustrated, and search'd so well,

The tender theme on which they chose to dwell, That reaching home, the night, they said, is near.

We must not now be parted, sojourn here,— The new acquaintance soon became a guest,

And made so welcome at their simple feast, He bless'd the bread, but vanish'd at the word.

And left them both exclaiming, 'Twas the Lord!
Did not our hearts feel all he deign'd to say?

Did they not burn within us by the way?
—[COWPER.]

A Fellow Feeling.

"I don't suppose you allow any one to go over the bridge yet," said a countryman, addressing one of the workmen on the East River Bridge.

"Not yet," said the workman.

"Well, I thought I'd just like ter kinder walk up ter the top of the tower an kinder look the thing over. I suppose you wouldn't mind—"

"No one is allowed on any part of the bridge," said the workman.

"I've heard told a good deal 'bout this bridge, and I thought since I was a stranger in the city—"

"We've had too many people bothering us already," said the workman, "and the boss won't allow any more inside the gates."

"Well, that's kinder tough on a man what's come nigh on to twenty-five mile to see that bridge. Now, I expect you feel mighty high when ye get up there. Must be over a hundred feet ter the top of that big tower."

"Four or five hundred," said the workman.

"Do tell," said the countryman. "Now I expect as like as not I'd get giddy if I went up there. I don't mind runnin' the risk, though."

"Can't be done," said the workman.
"Dead against orders."

"You don't happen ter be a drinkin' man, do you?" asked the countryman, winking, an poking his hand into his pocket.

"Cos if you do, I'd like to have you drink my—"

"You needn't expect to bribe us," said the workman. "We're us'd to th' sort of thing, and the best thing you can do is to dust rigat out."

"Just what?"

"Get. Move one."

"When will you be ready to receive visitors any way?" asked the countryman.

"Not in months yet."

"Now, that's too old fired bad," said the countryman. "Afore I left hum, Eliza says she, 'Zekle, if you com' hum from York without crossin' that bridge you hain't no husband of mine no more.
It's your big chance to become famous in our village,' says she, 'an' you hain't got a drop of go or snap in ye if you don't take advantage of it.' Now, stranger, be you a married man?"

"I am," said the workman.

"Then you can understand how I'm pl—"

"Go across," said the workman, stepping aside, and allowing the countryman to pass onto the bridge.—*Brooklyn

Mother Swan's Worm Syrup.

Infalible, tasteless, harmless, leather; for feverishness, restlessness, worms, constipation, etc.

Two Romans.

The son of a leading lawyer in New York, some years ago, was attracted by the innocent face and quick wit of a Welsh chambermaid in his father's house, and declared that he preferred her to all the fashionable beauties who had courted his notice.

His family protested, but to no purpose. The only concession he would make was to consent to go to Europe for three years before marrying the girl. In the meantime, having an independent fortune, the lover placed her at one of the best schools in New York.

The girl was ambitious and devoted in her affection to the man who had chosen her. He returned and found her more lovely than ever. They were married, and the lady is now one of the leaders of society in the city where they live—a noble, refined, charming woman.

An eminent jurist, well-known in Pennsylvania in the early part of this century, was "making the circuit," on horseback, and stopped for dinner at the house of a farmer. The daughter of the farmer waited on them, and the judge—who had been a cynic about women—observed the peculiar gentleness of her voice and a certain sweet candor in her face. After dinner the farmer said:

"Mary, bring the judge's horse."

Mary started to the field, which was inclosed by a barred fence. Laying her hand on the topmost rail, she vaulted lightly over.

"I saw," said the Judge afterwards, "for the first time, a woman with a mind and body I should require in my wife. I called again and again at farmer C's. At last I sent Mary to school for a couple of years, and here she is," nodding to the stately matron who presided at his table.

The sons of the Judge and his real Maude Muller all attained distinction; one, like his father, at the bar; another was an eminent divine, and the third was a Southern candidate for the Presidency. All were noted for their fiery eloquence, their high sense of honor and a certain appetite for fighting, which was well sustained by strong physical health. The Judge had not been mistaken in Mary's qualities of mind or body.—Youth's Companion.

SHIPMAN, Illinois.
Dr. R. V. PIERCE, Buffalo, N. Y.: Dear Sir—I wish to state that my daughter, aged 18, was pronounced incurable and was fast fading as the doctors thought, with consumption. I obtained a "natural" bottle of your "Golden Medical Discovery" for her and she commenced improving at once, and is now well and strong.

Very truly yours,

HIS WEDDING REPORT.

The Railroad Man as a Society Reporter.

The railroad reporter, with a map spread before him, was busily engaged building the last link of a road which was to connect the X, Y, W. and G.

O. H. roads, forming a grand trunk line between the important points of A and Z, the local tariff of which would pay operating expenses, fixed charges, five per cent. quarterly dividends, with an occasional scrip issue to holders of preferred paper. While thus engaged, the society editor turned in his chair, pulled down his corsage and said:

"Are you much of a ladies' man?"

"Me? Yes, I am always on time, although I may not look it," said the railroad reporter very calmly. "At one time I was a regular standard gauge, steel-rail, stone-ballast swell, but of late years I have unaccounted from that sort of business and have been running on a different line."

"Do you think you could relieve me to-night of a recherche affair among the creme de la creme, and do justice to the tout ensemble of a soiree?"

"I think I can, if there's time to make the transfer without missing connections."

"You'll be on time to witness the demonstration. It's the marriage of Colonel D'Oille's daughter. Pay strict attention to the bride's costume and write up a detailed description of it."

The railroad reporter took out his lens duster from the bottom of his escritoire, borrowed a chew of tobacco from the political reporter, and started for the residence of Colonel D'Oille.

Among the wedding notices the next morning was the following:

"Last night a large number of high joints, blockaded the residence of Colonel D'Oille to witness the marriage of his lovely daughter, Jeanne Baptiste to the Hon. John Quincy Jeems, Jr.
Colonel D'Oille was general manager of the entire guest system, and had his head-quarters established in the dining-room, and only left his post and the sideboard, where the gentlemen were frequently side-tracked for repairs, to go through the parlors on a trip of inspection. Mrs. Col. D'Oille acted as commissioner of the guest pool and superintendent of the dining service, and spent the most of her time fixing the divisions of the snapper courses and seeing them forwarded to destination on schedule time. It was in fact a Miller platform. Westinghouse-brake, paper-car-wheel occasion. Just before the arrival of the reverend conductor who was to pull the bell-cord for the matrimonial train Col. D'Oille left the sideboard and started up grade with a heavy load, and in consequence slipped an eccentric and came into the parlor, running on one side, but was flagged down in time to prevent his jamming his headlight through a bay window.

The colonel, in stopping to fill his tank too often, lost the right of way and did not witness the ceremony.

"The bride, a slender beauty, was dressed in a flowing robe de chambre of yellow tinted bobinet muslin a la aera, looped up at the sides with a Hungarian pompadour of blue grenadine and fichus of Queen Anne gimp.
The dress was out on an incline of forty-eight degrees across the shoulder and curved around under the left arm.
The bosom of the fair bride was surmounted with a trestle work of Louis XIV. lace, and her waist was surfaced up and filled with artificial flowers, made attractive by several narrow-gauge short lines of red trimming, which skirted around and centered at a common terminal point on the crest of her polonaise. Down the front of the robe was a midland route of antique buff serge, intersected by numerous leaders of costly fez merino."—Chicago Times.

Mr H. H. Harris, Warrenton, N.
C., says: "I used Brown's Iron Bitters with satisfactory results for weakness and loss of appetite."

The tariff commission's salary and expenses amount to $99,000, or about $50 a day to each member.

Skill in the Work Shop.

To do good work the mechanic must have good health. If long hours of confinement in close rooms have enfeebled his hand or dimmed his sight, let him at once, and before some organic trouble appears, take plenty of Hop Bitters. His system will be rejuvenated, his nerves strengthened, his sight become clear, and the whole constitution be built up to a higher working condition.
