RICHMOND, Va., January 30th, 1883. MR. N. EZEKIEL has made known to me the composition of his Hair Restorer and I have also subjected it to chemical examination. It contains no lead or silver, substances very commonly employed in making preparation for the hair, nor anything harmful, and may therefore be used without apprehension of injurious results.

WM. H. TAYLOR, M. D. State Chemist.

Whilst thanking you, Mr. Ezekiel, for the Hair Restorer you so kindly sent me, I take great pleasure in saying to you that its beneficial effects upon my hair have been so apparent as to attract the commendation of all my friends who have noticed it.

It is in my estimation a treasure, without which the toilet of none who have used it will be complete. Hoping it may realize you the pecuniary success you so richly deserve,

An Old-Fashioned Editor.

We were grieved to read the other day of the death of one of Michigan's jolliest pioneer editors-almost the last man of a band who published weeklies in the state when a coon-skin would pay for a column "ad," and three bushels of corn dumped on the office floor stood for a year's subscription. Never a publisher was more liberal with his space. It was hard work for him to charge for anything except the tax list directions, cure 10 hogs of the Cholera and put and mortgage sales. and he measured 20 hogs in a condition to fatten in one half the short even on them. ### An Anecdote of Gladstone.

Of the mady anecdotes that are current illustrating his amazing power of rising to an occasion, one may be given which has the merit of being true. On the afternoon when he was to make an important motion in the House of Commons, a friend, happening to call on him between two and three o'clock, found him just sitting down to make some notes of the coming speech. He laid aside his pen and talked for a while, then jotted down a few heads on paper, went down to the House before four o'clock, found himsel drawn into a preliminary controversy of a very trying nature, in which he had to repel so many questions and attacks that it was past six before he rose to make the great speech. . He then discovered that, as he had left his eyeglasses at home, his notes were practically useless, put them quietly back into his coat pocket, and delivered with no aid to his memory, and upon that one hour's preparation, a powerful argument interspered with passages of wonderful passion and pathos, which lasted for three hours, and will always rank amongst his fin-
