New Yorkers sometimes find themselves at a loss as to what they shall do with their superfluous change. Two of them now have up a bet of $5,-000 as to the crowing qualities of their respective roosters. They have now gone into the fowl business and have extensive heneries where they are raising cocks of all known breeds. One now has 500 already on hand and the other has 1,000. The date of the contest has not yet been fixed upon.

World says:

The hero and heroine of the report are both more than usually interesting people. Mrs. Leslie has long been coneidered one of the prettiest women in New York. Although close upon forty years of age she does not look to be a beautiful golden hue, her complexion The rise of the tide is 4½ feet. fresh and changeable and her eyes of the purest blue. She has a most delicately charming expression and her figure is almost faultless. Moreover she possesses an unusually active and accomplished mind. She writes very good verse, has perpetrated a book of ducted by her. She is omnipotent as well in the literary department as in the counting-room, When at home in New York, her little dinners are enjoyed every week by some of the brightest

Just before sailing for Europe, Mrs. Leslie was awarded by the courts the entire and absolute control of her late husband's estate, which, it is estimated, rope by Lady Duffis Hardy and her daughter, Miss Iza Hardy. The soi disant Marquis de Leuville tore last. He was not recognized at all by the real society of New York, but made quite an impression on the upper strata of Bohemia by his appearance and his professed ability to do everything under the sun, from fighting a duel to trapping a lobster. He got into Mrs. Leslie's dinner-set, but nobody ever dreamed of coupling his name with that of his fair hostess. His rather sudden departure for cused him of not being either a Marquis or a De Leuville, but instead a son-in-law of Madame Tussaud, of wax-works'

Last Night's Festival.

We learn that the Festival given at the City Hall last night, by the ladies of the Front Street Curch, was an entire success in all its features, and that quite a handsome sum was realized from the sale of ice cream, strawberries and other luxuries. The weather was May 31st and June 1st, 1862, just 21 somewhat threatening during the early years ago, the terrible battle of Seven part of the evening, which undoubtedly kept some from attending, but there was a first rate attendance and plenty of enjoyment.

He is perfectly conscious, but is averse to conversation on account of his extreme pain. We hope that his affliction will be but temporary, and that his complete recovery will be speedy and sure.

For the Children.

We hear it rumored, over our grape vine telegraph line, that a number of gentlemen of this city, having the interest and health of our citizens, and especially our children, at heart, are about to form a "Park Association," the purpose of which will be to secure some healthy and convenient spot of ground within the city limits for a park where people can walk or rest after the toils of the day, and where the juven iles may romp and play without danger from carriages or other teams. Our information in the matter thus far is very meagre, but we think the plan outlined above is nearly what is contemplated, and we are confident that it will receive the hearty approval and The ball at Sea Side Park Hotel last support of every good man and woman night was well attended, although there in the city, and that the little ones was a scarcity of ladies to make the whom God has placed under our care dancing as interesting as their presence will laugh and shout their heartiest
