

The Daily Review has the largest bona fide circulation, of any newspaper published, in the city of Wilmington.

The lightning-rod conference lately held in England decided that copper is the best material to use in rods.

Mrs. Davis, the ex-Senator's bride, was voted "the most popular lady in Wilmington," at a baby show in that place the other day.

On Yeang Ming has been appointed Chinese consul of New York, being the first consul of his nation appointed on the Atlantic coast.

The Marquis of Lorne thinks that the art galleries of Toronto are ahead of those of New York, Boston or any other city on the Continent.

The Free Church of Scotland is educating lady missionaries in medicine, with a view to more effective work among the women in the Zenanas of India.

Fred Douglas being at a meeting of white clergymen in Boston the other day, was called on for a speech. "No," he said, "I came here merely to give color to the occasion."

Mr. J. F. Slater, the donor of $1,000,000 for the education of the freedmen, has lately given $10,000 to the Park Congregational Church, at Norwich, Conn., where he resides.

Prof. Ryder, of the United States fish commission, is very hopeful that this season's experiments will prove the feasibility of oyster propagation and cultivation by artificial means.

The Newton Enterprise is confident that North Carolina will go Democratic next year, and gives some excellent reasons for the faith that is in it. We trust that it may prove a true prophet.

It is now known that Lord Charles Beresford had intimated to his Royal Highness, the Prince of Wales, that an English gentleman could always whip a professional fighter, and that he had expressed a determination to meet Jem Mace and the Maori giant at the first opportunity.

There is no harmony, but much bad blood, says the Augusta Chronicle, between the white and black Republicans of Georgia. Gen. Longstreet, who owes his public position and pap to an administration made possible by the negro balance of power, abuses his black coparenters. The negro editors return the abuse with unctious. The only thing that keeps both factions in line is the official pap, and they quarrel over the disposition of that.

THE DAILY REVIEW.

VOL. VII. WILMINGTON, N. C., MONDAY, JUNE 11, 1883. NO. 139

Col. James G. Burr commenced his duties as tax lister this morning.

We have been favored with "a little of all sorts" of weather during the day.

We are glad to learn that there is a very decided improvement in the condition of ex-policeman Watkins.

There is, we regret to state, no change for the better in the condition of the venerable Mr. Luke B. Huggins.

The third quarterly meeting for the present conference year will be held at the Front street Methodist church on next Sabbath, the 17th inst. The presiding Elder, Rev. Robt. O. Burton, is expected to be present.

Off for Europe.

Capt. A. D. Cazaux, of this city, will leave here to-morrow morning for New York, whence he will sail for Europe. He goes for the purpose of endeavoring to make arrangements for having steamers touch at this port for the purpose of conveying cotton to Liverpool. Capt. Cazaux thinks, with much reason, that a personal interview will do much more towards effecting so desirable a result than will all of the letter writing which can be done in a year. He will be absent seven or eight weeks, hoping to return here by the first of August. We trust he may prove successful in his mission.

Messrs. Pembroke Jones and Herbert Latimer have also made arrangements for a trip to Europe, and will probably leave here next week. They will most likely be absent all of the Summer.

Light, cloudy weather, best for light complexions. LARDNER, Yates' Gallery.

Impressive Exercises.

This day is known and observed by those of the Hebrew faith as the "Feast of Weeks," and is commemorative of the giving of the Law from Mount Sinai. On this day children of Hebrews who have arrived at the age when they can understand, and are convinced that they can live up to, the required obligations come up and make open confession of faith and are then confirmed.

In the Temple of Israel, in this city, this morning, such services were held, commencing with exercises usual to feast days, after which the ceremonies attendant upon confirmation took place, the candidates consisting of two young ladies and three young men. The Temple was tastefully and beautifully decorated for the occasion with flowers and evergreens; the music was rendered with exquisite feeling, and the address by the Rabbi, Rev. Dr. Mendelsohn, was a profound and scholarly effort. The exercises, taken altogether, were very impressive, and at times extremely affecting.

The Temple was crowded, there being quite a number of the faith from abroad, as well as a good many of our own citizens outside of the Hebrew race who were present.

Dead or Alive.

There is a colored woman in this city who was pronounced dead nearly or quite 25 years ago. The circumstances were about as follows: She was a slave, and was suddenly missing and, although thorough search was made, could not be found. A short time after, the body of a colored woman was found in the river some two or three miles above the city. The Coroner was notified, and he summoned a jury, who proceeded to the place and held an inquest in due form of law. They brought in a verdict declaring the dead body to be that of the woman who had been missing, and whose name was Statira. The correctness of the verdict was never doubted, and Statira was dead, so far as the world had any knowledge. A short time after the close of the war, one of the men that had composed the jury of inquest, and who well knew the girl, met her alive and well upon one of the streets of the city. Of course he was much astonished, and sought an explanation, telling the girl that he had helped to pronounce her dead years before. The girl in reply stated that she had run a way from her master and had succeeded in baffling all attempts at recapture or recognition, and had kept out of the way until she was declared free by the law, when she thought she would return.

This was a remarkable case of mistaken identification, and the name of the woman who was declared by the jury to be Statira has never been ascertained.

William Brown, colored, charged with disorderly conduct, was discharged by the Mayor this morning.

T. Dickson, colored, charged with a light offense, was required to pay a fine of $3.

Musical.

The June number of the Musical Herald has been received. It is one of the best music publications in the country, conducted and edited by men eminent in the profession and is always crowded with important and instructive matter to the professional as well as to the amateur. The number before us contains three fine pieces of music, two vocal and one instrumental, the latter being an "Andante from Symphony, in C," by Schubert. Published by the Musical Herald Co., Boston, Mass., at a subscription price of $1.50 per annum.

The Coming Season.

A note from Mr. Frank A. Small, who will be remembered by many in our city, writing to the editor of this paper, in speaking of the coming theatrical season, which promises to open early, says:

Shakespearean and legitimate drama will have a grand revival next season, no less than ten companies being now organized for its presentations. Of these ten the most important, to judge from the interest that is everywhere felt and exhibited in it, is the George Edgar Company. Mr. Edgar is a scholar and actor of wide popularity, and in this enterprise is backed by a syndicate of well known capitalists of New York. Maze Edwards, the Manager, has engaged a powerful company of the best known artists in America, and press and public have so taken up the grand idea of the company-"worthily drama working produced" that success is almost an assured fact and do doubt is assured because it is deserved. It is a praise worthy enterprise and we wish it all success.

Mr. Orr's negatives are well kept. Duplicate pictures finely finished at low rates. LARDNER, 119 Market. It

The Planet Jupiter.

This great planet, according to an astronomical writer, is at present a splendid phenomenon in the June sky. His rosy belts and equatorial clouds and the constantly changing aspect of his satellite system never cease to be interesting, and whoever has seen them once is sure to wish to see them again, as often as they can. One of the great charms of a telescopic view of Jupiter is the visible motion of the planet and his moons. In a single evening one can see the huge globe roll half way over on its axis, the time of a whole rotation being only ten hours, and can witness the passage of the round black shadow of one of the moons across the face of the planet, or the disappearance of an other moon as it goes behind the planet or is eclipsed in the great one of shadow which Jupiter throws far away into space behind him. It is difficult for one not accustomed to astronomical observations to comprehend the fact that those little shining globes which he sees moving so silently and smoothly in their orbits are actually worlds in size, and that they are removed hundreds of thousands of miles from the great planet around which they circle. If, as most astronomers, believe Jupiter has not yet cooled down into a habitable globe, he is, in some respects, all the more interesting to us on that account; for if he were an inhabited globe, no telescope man can make would be able to reveal his inhabitants or their works to us, and the very fact that he was in such a condition as to support inhabitants would preclude the possibility of any physical changes which could be seen at the distance of four or five hundred million miles. But, on the other hand, if, as is believed, Jupiter is yet in a very early stage of world growth, then the inhabitants of this earth can continue to watch with their telescopes, as they have been doing for the last two hundred years, the changes of appearance which he undergoes. In other words, they can behold part of the geological development of a distant world, and, if the human race could exist long enough and could hand down its records unbroken from age to age, it might at last have a complete history, based on actual observations, of the growth of Jupiter, from a globe of gaseous or fluid matter to a solid and habitable world like our own.

Excursion to Smithville.

The ladies connected with the Front Street M. E. Church will give an excursion to Smithville and the Forts next Thursday on the steamer Passport. When we have said under whose auspices it is gotten up we have said enough to warrant a good time to all who may participate.

Wilmington at Chapel Hill.

The Wilmington boys at Chapel Hill last session took a high stand in their classes. Mr. Thomas Radcliffe, who graduated this term and who was before a Bachelor of Arts, was made this year a Bachelor of Science. Mr. Jesse B. Hawes was awarded the medal for the best oration by a representative of the literary societies, while Mr. Sol C. Weill received a medal for superior scholarship in Greek. The Worth prize for scholarship in moral science and the evidences of Christianity, offered by David G. Worth, Esq., of this city, was awarded to Mr. Numa F. Heitman.

Messrs. Cronly & Morris have for sale an excellent office safe, "branded new", which can be had at a low figure.

The organ of the First Baptist Church has recently been overhauled, repaired and tuned. In fullness and richness of tone it has been considerably improved. The work was performed by Mr. Hooper, an organ builder of Boston.

Capt. F. W. Clark, General Passenger Agent of the Carolina Central, invites attention in this issue to the fact that excursion tickets to all of the Summer resorts in Western North Carolina, the "Switzerland of America," are now on sale at the office of the Company.

The postmaster general has selected metallic red as the color for the new two cent postage stamp. The vignette which will be used on the stamp is copied from the life cast used in making Houdon's statue of Washington. The two cent rates of postage will replace the present rate October 1st.
