

THE DAILY REVIEW.

VOL. VII. WILMINGTON, N. C., SATURDAY, JUNE 16, 1883. NO. 143

The Daily Review has the largest bona fide circulation of any newspaper published in the city of Wilmington.

Miss Frances Willard, the well-known temperance advocate, has gone to the Sandwich Islands.

An agent of the Haytian Government is in Philadelphia searching for a war vessel, or one that can be swiftly altered into a cruiser.

Commenting on the collapse of the Greenback party the St. Louis Globe-Democrat (Rep.) says: "There may be a new party, based upon a substantial issue, inaugurated, which will work its way to the front in consequence of both of the other parties failing to take up the vital question, but it is extremely improbable that the political element of which the Communists are the extreme type, and which arrays itself against the established rights of property, will ever give reasonable ground for anxiety in the United States."

Democracy is looming up in Iowa and has become quite an important factor in the politics of that State. It is but a few years since, that a Democrat was a living curiosity there, and the Democratic vote looked as insignificant as a huckleberry in a load of pumpkins.

The greatest total of imports for the month of May in the history of New York City was in 1862, when the amount was $44,242,270. A decline of nearly $10,000,000 in the amount for May, 1883, might be taken as an evidence of the repression of the extravagance which has characterized the people during recent years.

REUNION.

Co. K, Third N. C. Infantry, in Reunion - Fighting Their Battles Over Once More.

BANNERMAN'S BRIDGE, June 9. MR. EDITOR: Knowing the interest you have always felt in reunions of the old regiments of the Confederate war, especially one in our land, where all of our kindred, friends and neighbors were engaged, we thought you would like to hear from a reunion of one of the old companies—one of the best, too—in the old Third Regiment; one of the very best that ever shouldered a musket.

Col. DeRosset, of whom nothing can be said but in his praise; as a soldier, brave and courageous; as a man, kind but firm; as a gentleman, true and manly, was there, and was introduced by Major Ennett, who made a few remarks before introducing him. He exhibited the old flag, tattered and worn, shot to pieces by bullets, and explained all and everything connected with it.

Resolved, That the Survivor's Association of Company "K," 3rd N. C. Regt. State Troops, desire to place upon record their high appreciation of their friend and comrade as a soldier and a citizen: Always alert and ready for any call to duty he was quiet and kind as a woman in all calls of sickness or distress, and was as a model for any soldier of his country to imitate.

Resolved, 2d, That a copy of this minute be sent to the family of our deceased comrade. Resolved, 3rd, That Judge Bannerman, who was invited to deliver an address to the company on this occasion, be thanked, and he be requested to furnish a copy of his excellent address for publication.

Resolved, That the gallant heroes of Company "K" were our friends, our neighbors and our kindred, and to-day we are here to rejoice with the remnant of that little band, and to say to them, that we blush for no deed or act of theirs. True and faithful you have been in war, true and faithful in times of peace, and to you, to-day, we can proudly point as the sacred representatives of all that is noble, true, brave and patriotic.

Exports Foreign. Barque Glacier, Capt. Morse, cleared to-day for London with 342 barrels rosin, and 1,400 casks spirits turpentine, valued at $25,310, shipped by Messrs. Alex. Sprunt & Son.

Cotton. The receipts of cotton at this port for the week closing with to-day foot up 104 bales, as compared with 219 bales for the corresponding week of last year.

mighty lessons taught in the school of experience—that it would ill become me, upon this hallowed occasion, to open afresh old wounds, to attempt even a discussion of the topics and themes that caused our Sunny South, to leave the "pipin times of peace;" to abandon our homes that blossomed as a very Garden of Eden in the mighty oasis of this world; that caused her sons upon bended knee amid roaring cannon; seas of busting bayonet and sabre flashes to invoke the God of Battles to let victory perch upon their proud banners, or let them fill the soldier's grave.

Comrades and friends, go delve among the dusty tombs of the past; go to the legendary lore transmitted from sire to son, and I defy you to show me a nation whose circumstances made heroes that will not take the brave Southerner by the hand and confess him his peer. Since this country shook off the Mother Country's yoke and defied England's vast armies and navies; since America flung the gauntlet full in the face of England's proud king, upon whose domain the sun never set, the task has ever been assigned the Southern soldier to carry what seemed impregnable fortresses and redoubts in the various contests that have arisen.

But, my friends, while we recount deeds of valor; while we gaze upon the pages of history and see the transcendent and resplendent virtues of our Southern heroes emblazon its brightest pages, one cannot forget to erect a monument, more durable than brass, to our mothers and sisters. We need not go to the legends of the Amazons; we need not look to the pages that chronicle the mighty deeds of a Joan of Arc, or the self-sacrificing devotion of a Madame de Staël and hosts of others; but we can proudly say, for women, self-sacrificing and devoted to country, no nation on earth is the peer of our own Southern land, where every woman has been a heroine since 1776, whenever her country was endangered.

Resolved, That the gallant heroes of Company "K" were our friends, our neighbors and our kindred, and to-day we are here to rejoice with the remnant of that little band, and to say to them, that we blush for no deed or act of theirs. True and faithful you have been in war, true and faithful in times of peace, and to you, to-day, we can proudly point as the sacred representatives of all that is noble, true, brave and patriotic.
