Entered at the Postoffice at Wilmington, N. C. as second-class matter.

The Comte de Paris, who was on Gen. McClellan's staff during a part of the late civil war, has published in French a history of that unfortunate strife. The New York Herald reviews it, and, as the author writes from a Federal standpoint entirely, taking, it will appear, the pages of the sensational Herald as a basis of some of his statements, it is not surprising that that paper falls so much in love with it as to review it at length, accompanying the review with a map of the battlefield at Gettysburg. Some of the statements appear tolerably fair, while others approach the truth very remotely. This is plain enough to every one when he ascribes our defeat at Gettysburg to "the absence of Stuart," "Lee's faulty disposition of his other brigades of cavalry," "the excess of confidence which Lee's lieutenants showed with their chief," and "the extended and concave formation of battle, which rendered extremely slow the communications from one end of the line to the other."

The fact that Lee's army were ragged hungry and footsore, after forced marches in an enemy's country, far burg Commercial. from their base of supplies; that they with arms far inferior to those wielded by their opponents and outnumbered by them three to one, goes for nothing in summing up the causes of the disasters on that day. Yet it was not even to are effected with a similar feeling these that the repulse at Gettysburg while gazing in the window of a bank. was due. Had Gettysburg been passed -Rochester Post_Express. New York would have been occupied, "Here is a postal card to Mr. Jones mightier and a wiser Hand had keep that card till then, and I will be arranged the result. It was not the one to meet them I will take them all Federal forces which drove back the over for three dollars."-Rome Senti-Confederates from Gettysburg, but the nel. hand of God Almighty. It was His power and His might and His will that met Lee at Gettysburg.

English capitalists are growing enthusiastic over the possibilities of mon ey making by land purchases in this country. The great investments made of late in Florida have been much written about, but other Southern States are attracting interested attention in England. One tract of about a third of a million acres in Texas has to full strength." been bought by one English company, and another has lately bought over a million and a quarter acres in Miss issippi. These men are confident that Southern land, which can now be bought for a trifle, must rapidly and greatly and the encouragement of colonization, with the belief that they will be able either to exact paying rents or sell at a profit.

That the weapon should be a breechloader is in itself sufficiently astonishing, but the most extraordinary part of the affair is that the breech mechanism is almost exactly similar to that which has for so many years been fitted by Krupp, of Essen, to the artillery of the German army. For six years I have been a great sufferer from Blood Disease, Dyspepsia, and Constipation, and became so debilitated that I could not retain anything on my stomach, in fact, life had almost become a burden. Finally, when hope had almost left me, my husband seeing Brown's IRON BITTERS advertised in the paper, induced me to give it a trial.
