THE DAILY REVIEW.

VOL. VII. WILMINGTON, N. C., TUESDAY, JULY 24, 1883. NO. 175

The Daily Review has the largest bona fide circulation, of any newspaper published in the city of Wilmington.

Wages in Germany are advancing. The wages paid in thirty-nine Westphalian mining establishments has increased from $204 to $227 per head.

In consideration of the continued depression in agriculture, the Duke of Newcastle has returned to his tenants 20 per cent. of their rents for the past half year.

The trade dollar is coming into circulation again. In hundreds of places in New York signs announcing that the trade dollar will be received at par are displayed conspicuously.

The Right Honorable Lord Mayor of Dublin, Charles Dawson, M. P., is a baker by trade. His wagons go through the streets every day, and serve bread to the Mansion House regularly.

It has been said that on founding a colony the first thing a Spaniard does is to build a gallows, a Portuguese to build a church, an Englishman a drinking booth and a Frenchman a dancing floor.

Twenty-six Democratic county committees of California have passed resolutions demanding the impeachment of Railroad Commissioners Humphreys and Carpenter because of sluggish action in the direction of securing reduction of fares and freights.

The report on the working of the new postoffice savings banks in France during 1882 shows that 473,000 deposits were paid in, making a total sum of 61,634,000 francs. The withdrawals amounted to 17,811,000 francs, so that there was an overplus for the year of 46,823,000 francs left deposited. The deposits average 136 francs each, the withdrawals 312 francs.

The Brooklyn Bridge will never pay for itself. The income was $10,000 for the first week, it fell to $4,906 in the second, and so on down to $2,567 for the week ending July 12. The daily average is now $366. The opening of the railway will increase the receipts, yet it is believed that the whole income, after deducting running expenses, will not pay one-quarter of the interest on the cost of construction, to say nothing of the sinking fund to meet the principal of the bonds when they fall due. Brooklyn's share of yearly interest is $679,350, and New York's $339,675. The former must raise $150,000 annually for a bridge bond sinking fund, and the latter $75,000. The cost of maintenance is $150,000, so that the yearly burden is $1,394,025. The tax payers will be reimbursed for their outlay by the general benefits which the bridge will confer upon the two cities.

Mr. Jos. B. Worth, formerly of this city, but now of Petersburg, is here with his family, on a visit of a few days.

Twenty carloads of watermelons passed through here yesterday and last night. They were from Savannah bound for New York.

Some changes are to be made at the Postoffice. The stamp office is to be enlarged and hence those who have boxes near the window have been accommodated in other localities.

Hot as it is now there are always nice breezes in Wilmington, day and night. How we do pity our poor folks who are now sweltering at the Springs and other Summer resorts and wishing for just a capful of the delightful breeze that always circulates about their deserted homes.

Our Little Ones for August, already at hand, is as bright and charming, and as attractive as ever. It is full of matter of interest for the little folks, and the illustrations are always very appropriate. It is published by the Russell Publishing Company, 36 Bromfield street, Boston, Mass., and should be in every nursery in the land.

The steamers A. P. Hurt and Bladen, due here from Fayetteville to-day, had not arrived at 3.30 o'clock this evening, probably owing to the extreme low water.

There is but one thing that the shell road to the Sound lacks and that is good, large shade trees on each side of the way. Those that have been planted seem very slow of growth and there are some localities where there are none at all.

We had the pleasure of a friendly call from Mr. R. M. Wescott this morning. He has been a lifelong resident of Smithville, Brunswick county, but is now residing at Kelley's Cove, on the Cape Fear river in Bladen county, to which place he has recently removed for the purpose of entering more largely into agricultural pursuits.

As a final confutation of the rumor of the loss of the dredge E. J. White, on which were several young Wilmingtonians, which was contradicted by us yesterday, Mr. W. S. Hewlett, this morning received a letter from his son Robert, who is on board of her. The letter was in written Norfolk, at which place the dredge put in last Sunday.

Exports Foreign.

Schr. W. H. Jones, Capt. Falkenburg, cleared to-day for Mayaguez, Porto Rico, with 203,102 feet of lumber, valued at $2,640.33, shipped by Messrs Northrop & Cumming.

The Hottest Yet.

To-day has undoubtedly been the hottest of the season thus far at 3 o'clock, the thermometer in this office registered 95 degrees, the highest it has yet attained. In some places in the city it was as high as 97. But then, you know we have had delightful breezes all day long.

Visiting Firemen.

The Atlantic Steam Fire Engine Co., of Newbern, A. W. Wood, foreman, accompanied by the Newbern Cornet Band of 15 pieces, conducted by Prof. A. W. Cooke, arrived here a few minutes before noon to-day. They number 28 men and were met at the depot on their arrival by Chief Engineer C. D. Myers and staff, the Wilmington Steam Fire Engine Co., and the Howard Relief Steam Fire Engine Co., the former with 21 men and the latter with 24 men. From the depot they marched to the sidewalk on the South side of Red cross, between Nutt and Front streets, where they were halted and personal greetings were interchanged among those who happened to be acquainted, while the ear which contained the engine was brought down the hill so that the latter could be unloaded. This took considerable time and when finally accomplished the line of march was taken down Nutt to Mulberry, up Mulberry to Front, down Front to Chestnut, up Chestnut to Third and to the City Hall. Here the column halted and Mayor Hall, in a brief, graceful, happily-conceived and appropriate speech, gave the visiting firemen a hearty and cordial welcome to Wilmington, after which the line of march was resumed for the hall of the Howard Relief Co., where a bountiful collation was in waiting, and of which the visitors stood much in need as they have had but little opportunities for eating since leaving Newbern at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon. After satisfying the hunger of the inner man a few brief speeches were made, the band played a couple of pieces in exquisite style and the firemen were dismissed until 5.30 o'clock this evening when they will meet for a trial practice with their respective engines at the foot of Market street.

In appearance the Atlantians are an exceptionally fine looking body of men; intellectually as well as physically. There are no very young men nor any who are very old, although we noticed one or two who part their hair somewhat wider than the conventional parting of youth. They all appear to appreciate the cordiality of their reception here, and are thus far highly pleased with their visit. The intolerable heat of the day seemed to take nothing from their enjoyment. Like true philosophers they neither staid away nor came to avoid the consequences of the weather, but come to exchange friendly greetings and share the open handed hospitality of their brother firemen.

The Old Story.

It was a beautiful Summer night as Edward De Lacy and Alberta Simpson leaned upon the gate which opened to a path leading to the sylvan cottage of the fair one. These two had long been acknowledged and devoted lovers, and as they stood there breathing words of unutterable and undying devotion with the soft rays of the moon glittering through the trees as she rose rapidly from the Eastern horizon, they looked the picture of confiding love. Edward De Lacy was a young man of twenty summers, while his companion, Alberta Simpson, was some two years his junior, and as she stood there leaning her head trustfully and lovingly upon his manly shoulders, there seemed to be an especial fitness in their mutual love. He, cast in Nature's manliest mould, graceful in every movement, with a physique such as few could boast, seemed a picture of protecting care while she, slight, graceful and sylph-like, was the embodiment of womanly devotion.

Together they had stood in that sweet communion of which only lovers know, all unmindful of the flight of time, until the moon had risen far above the tops of the highest trees. The gentle Alberta had lingered with delight upon the tender syllables which had rolled a fountain of unutterable joy from the lips of her darling Edward, when, all at once, she began to manifest feelings of disquietude.

"What is the matter, my darling?" inquired her lover, as he noticed with alarm her continued uneasiness of manner.

"It is nothing of consequence, my love," she replied, but to his ever watchful eyes her actions belied her words, and he said:

"There is certainly something the matter, and I fear that I have wounded the feelings of my precious dove."

"No, no, no," she replied, while her tear-dimmed eyes looked their reproach to think he should suspect himself capable of inflicting pain upon her sensitive nature. "You are all the world to me, and the rich wealth of my heart's purest love is but a feeble expression of my sense of the debt I owe you. But, for to-night you must leave me. Do not think me cruel or fickle, my beloved Edward, but it must be so."

"I will trust you, my darling," he replied. "But why this haste? If you love me, you will trust me and tell me of your troubles that I may sympathize with you, if I may not share them. Tell me, and I will heed your wish although it breaks my heart to leave you."

"Now, you speak like my glorious Edward," said the lovely Alberta, "and I will tell you and relieve you of your suspense, although it shrouds me sadly to make the confession."

"What is it then, my love?" said Edward. "Is there a hidden grief of which I have not known gnawing at your dear heart?"

"No, Edward, it is not grief that is gnawing at my heart," she replied, as she laid her toothbrush carefully on the top rail of the fence and wiped the corners of her mouth on the sleeve of her dress, to give her beloved a sweet good night's kiss, "but there is a tick as big as your thumb nail gougin' into my back."

Greenville Sound.

On Sunday last, at Olive Branch Church, at Greenville Sound, the services were conducted by Rev. J. B. Barlow, of this city. At the conclusion of the service 4 persons were baptized and admitted to membership in the church, Rev. Mr. Barlow officiating. On Sunday next the Superintendent of the Sunday School connected with that church, will make a present to each one of the pupils.

Prize Offered.

There is a very handsome silver plated ice pitcher on exhibition in the window of Mr. Dingelhof's jewelry store, which is to be awarded to the fire company which throws a stream of water the farthest at the trial which is to take place at 6.30 o'clock this evening. The prize was donated for the purpose by the joint liberality of Howard Relief Steam Fire Engine Co. and Wilmington Steam Fire Engine Co.

The wharf property on the west side of the river, recently owned by Messrs. C. E. Smith & Co., was sold yesterday under a foreclosure of mortgage made to the First National Bank, as advertised in the REVIEW and was purchased by Messrs. J. H. Chadbourne & Co. for $4,250. The property has a 92 feet front on the river and runs back 793 feet.

Store Extension.
 Work on the extension of the store occupied by Mr. M. M. Katz, on Market street, next door to this office, as spoken of by us recently in the REVIEW, was begun this morning by Mr. Geo. M. Summerell, the contractor. The extension will be 40 feet to the rear, almost to the alley, and when completed it will make Mr. Katz's store one of the handsomest in the State. The building is owned by Mr. William Goodman.

Hot Weather Directions.
 Keep cool. Wear cabbage leaf in your hat. Carry a sun umbrella. Don't walk on the sunny side of the street. Don't drink too much ice water. Nor beer. Nor spirits. Don't overwork. Don't worry. Knock off business in the heat of the day. Take sponge baths every few minutes. Let your business slide and retire to the cool, shady groves. Don't read political editorials. Never mind about the next President. Put it on ice. Cultivate prepiration. Sleep all you can. Live in your bath room. Think of the poor. Never mind charity, but think of them in some cool place.

Baggage by Rail.
 A circular has been issued from the office of Sol Haas, Esq., Traffic Manager of the Associated Railways instructing agents, baggage agents, baggage masters and conductors that on and after August 1st., 1883, no piece of baggage weighing more than 250 pounds is to be accepted for transportation as baggage, nor transported in baggage cars, and that passengers having any piece of baggage in excess of that weight, must be informed that it cannot be transported unless brought within the specified limit. All weight in excess of 150 pounds is to be charged for at excess-baggage rates, as heretofore.

The New Letter Postage.
 Third Assistant Postmaster General Hazen has issued a circular to postmasters throughout the United States, in which he says that the reduction of postage to two cents on first-class domestic mail matter will go into effect on October 1st. He instructs postmasters to limit their requisitions of three cents stamps and stamped envelopes to the actual needs of their offices, so as not to have a stock of unsold stamps on hand. He calls attention to the fact that the head of Washington has been adopted for the new two cents stamp and the head of Jackson, similar to that in the present two cents stamp, has been adopted for the new four cents stamp. The price of both the two cents and four cents stamped envelopes will remain the same as on the existing schedule for like sizes and quantities. He directs attention to the fact that no arrangements have been made for the exchange of three cents stamps, or three cents stamped envelopes in the hands of postmasters, or private parties. The old two and three cents stamps and stamped envelopes will be valid after October 1st, and must be accepted in payment of postage. The new two cents stamps will be issued on September 15th and stamped envelopes on the 1st of September, but they are not to be sold before October 1st. There are no other changes in the rates of postage.

The Telegraphers' Brotherhood succeeded this morning in capturing the only "recruit" Manager Sterling had left, which makes four in all they have taken away from him. News from the North continues favorable to the strikers and the Brotherhood is growing in strength.
