THE DAILY REVIEW.

VOL. VII.

WILMINGTON, N. C., TUESDAY, JULY 31, 1883.

NO. 181

The Daily Review has the largest bona fide circulation of any newspaper published in the city of Wilmington.

Yesterday's New York papers are full of reports of the suicide of the Spanish Minister, Don Francisco Barca, who shot himself at the Albermarle Hotel early on Sunday morning. There are many theories advanced as to the cause which led to the rash act but there seems to be no actual clue to guide them.

There is not one member of the Cabinet left in Washington city and the departments are now all run by subordinates. It is certainly a delightful condition of affairs for the tax payers to contemplate. It is purely a Republican innovation, this absolute desertion of duty, but this is probably the last summer but one that the fashion will run.

James Cary, the informer, has gone to his account. He was shot dead while landing at Port Elizabeth, Cape Colony, by a fellow passenger named O'Donnell. For him it was a case of "transatlantic transit." It was also currently reported that Cary had landed in Quebec and had gone on to Montreal on Sunday where he was under the protection of two English detectives.

The operator at Culpepper, Va., who struck, received an offer from the manager of the Washington, D. C., office to report there for work at $90 a month. His answer was a dispatch which read: "Judas Iscariot has been dead 1,800 years." Unfortunately, the Culpepper man is wrong, although the fact does not destroy the pith of his remark as applied to himself. Judas Iscariot is numerously alive and he has a long lease from the devil.

At the recent meeting of the National Cotton Exchange Convention the committee on the sanding of cotton reported that, after an exhaustive investigation, they found that the evil rarely resulted from fraudulent intention on the part of the planters, but they recommend each Exchange to appoint a committee to urge upon the planters in their tributary districts the advantages of greater care in keeping dirty or sandy or clean pickings separate.

One of the Chicago papers publishes a list of the stockholders in the National banks of that city, with the amount of their holdings. The record would surprise people who are accustomed to think that only the very wealthy have any interest in banks. There are big holders of stock in the Chicago banks, of course, but the great majority of the holders of stock have from five to fifty shares, valued at from $500 to $5,000. The number of small holders is very large, but the amount of their stock is, in the aggregate, less than that of the few big stockholders.

The late Gen. Ord was a grandson of George IV. and Mrs. Fitzherbert. His father, James Ord, son of that morganatic marriage, was raised in the faith of his mother, and was like his son, a Roman Catholic. James Ord, when a boy, was sent to France to be educated, and was afterward brought by his tutor to Georgetown College, where he became a professor. He took part in the war of 1812, serving as a captain. He was long a clerk at Washington, and died in 1872 or 1873. At Omaha he assumed the name of Ord, which was that of his tutor, from a desire to avoid unpleasant notoriety.

It is stated on what may or may not be good authority, that the syndicate which is behind the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia R. R., has purchased a controlling interest in the Richmond & Danville system. If true (and we have our doubts) this will probably affect the Associated Railway system, but in how remains to be seen. The following, which is dated from Saratoga, N. Y., July 27th, will tell all that is known about the matter now:

The most important railroad transaction that has ever taken place in the South is reported to have been consummated to-day. It is the purchase of the Richmond & Danville system, or rather a controlling interest in the same, from Gen. T. M. Logan and his associates, by whom it has heretofore been held. The purchasing syndicate consists of George I. Seney, George F. Baker, E. D. Fannestock, Calvin S. Brice, William P. Clyde and Gen. E. T. Thomas.

This is the same syndicate that is behind the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia Railroad, and is the most powerful organization that has ever yet taken hold of Southern roads. Seney, Brice and Thomas represent the old Seney Combination and the Metropolitan National Bank. Scott is of the firm of George S. Scott & Co. Baker and Fannestock represent the First National Bank of New York, while Clyde is of the great shipping house of Wm. P. Clyde & Co.

This party will control about 2,500 miles of the Richmond and Danville and 1,500 miles of the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia, making in all about 4,000 miles of road, whose gross earnings are from ten to twelve million dollars per annum.

The property acquired perfects a system that gives direct outlet for all Mississippi River and Southwestern points to the Atlantic seaboard at Washington, Baltimore and other points. It extends from Washington, via the Virginia Midland, to Danville, Va., and from West Point, on the Chesapeake, to Richmond. It then continues via the Piedmont Road North, Carolina and Charlotte, Columbia and Augusta to Atlanta, Ga., and also via the Western and North Carolina Road through the most picturesque country in the South. The connections at the various Southern cities are represented to all to be of the most advantageous character.

Besides its railroad connections, steamship connections of a very satisfactory character are to be made, and the new organization will embrace a large steamship line. The property is reported to be in exceptionally good condition for business and the new owners, who have recently made careful trips over the system, report that they propose putting the whole four thousand miles under one head and have it kept up in the very best shape. It is also stated that the purchase has been made for the purpose of making stock-jobbing scheme is to be entered into. The assignment of the stock has been made in such a manner as to assure its remaining in the hands of the syndicate for some time to come. The road is to operate Pullman cars of the finest pattern on all divisions, and through cars will be run from Mississippi River points to Washington, Baltimore, Philadelphia and other Eastern cities.

EXCURSION—Ladies Front St. M. E. Church

It rained heavily on the Sounds yesterday.

But one bale of cotton received at this port to-day.

To-day is the anniversary of the death of ex-President Johnson, in 1875.

Capt. V. V. Richardson, of Columbus county, was in the city to-day.

When a man sits down on a pin would you say he refused to pin his faith to that chair?

Even when trade is rather dull in other lines, there is generally a bustle in dry goods stores.

We sometimes meet an original gentleman, who, if manners had not existed would have invented them.

With the wind from the North, and a cloudy sky, the thermometer registered but 83 degrees at 10 o'clock this forenoon.

There will be an open air concert in front of the National Bank building to-night, given by a colored amateur organization of this city.

Among ladies just now the favorite musical instrument is the violin. Their woman's nature prompts them to enjoy so many strings to one's bow.

August will be upon us to-morrow, and the health officers should be more alert than ever. There are some places in the city that especially need attention.

When a man reaches the top of a stairway and attempts to take one step higher, the sensation is as perplexing as if he had attempted to kick a dog that wasn't there.

The marketmen complain that it is simply impossible to get any really good beef, and the display this morning showed that they do not find fault without reason.

A female correspondent complains that her husband eats onions and snores. Now a man who would snore with an onion-flavored breath should go somewhere and start a desert.

There are still left thousands of sensible people who are enjoying the watermelon and canteloupe season and the pleasant weather at home in Wilmington and its environments.

Mr. L. Vollers, of Point Caswell, Pender county, arrived in the city last evening on the steamer John Dawson.

Mr. T. A. Darby, of Cedar Keys, Fla., is in the city on a short visit to relatives and friends. He leaves to-night on his return.

Taking account of stock preparatory to the purchase of new Fall and Winter goods is the next thing in order now with our merchants.

"Fortune knocks at every man's door once in a life," but in a good many cases the man is in a neighboring saloon and does not hear him.

Love for the sea is felt when one leans over the rail of a ship, looking out over the deep blue ocean, feeling ready to give up everything for it.

An excursion party came in on the Wilmington and Weldon railroad this morning, consisting of about 150 persons. We should judge that one-third of the party were whites and the remainder were colored.

City Court.

The following cases were disposed of by the Mayor this morning:

Mary J. Jordan, colored, disorderly conduct, 30 days in the city prison.

John Williams, the colored minstrel who imitates the calliope on our streets, was charged with cursing and acting disorderly in the public streets, for which he was sent blow for 30 days, with the privilege of being released at any time providing he would leave the city.

Sudden Death.

Mr. John Hogan, who for the last 15 years has been in the employ of the W. & W. R. R. Co., died at about 4 o'clock this morning at his residence on the corner of Red Cross and Eighth streets. He was in his usual health yesterday and returned from work and ate his supper, soon after which he was taken seriously sick and carried to his bed. Physicians were immediately summoned who did all that medical science and skill could suggest, but without avail. Mr. Hogan was about 40 years of age and leaves a wife and one child. His disease was apoplexy.

The Turpentine Market.

Subscribers to the DAILY REVIEW, residing outside of the city, occasionally complain to us of the quotations in the reports of the turpentine market and one of them, at Whiteville, says that he canvassed the city last week and could not get $2.40 for his turpentine, although it was quoted at these figures in Tuesday's REVIEW. All of this subscriber's complaints are correct, except as to the inference that the reports in the REVIEW were incorrect, and we are really glad of the opportunity of making a little talk about this matter for the benefit of all. In the first place, we pay to the Produce Exchange full membership dues for the privilege of the blackboards at the Exchange,—and we have no other privileges,—yet the Exchange does not quote crude turpentine now, forcing us to rely upon outside parties for quotations as to this article. To the inspectors and dealers, therefore, we apply and it is on information received from them that we rely, and this information, be it understood, is not official. It is correct, of course, as far as the market goes, but therein lies the rub, for it is a melancholy fact that there is no market in Wilmington for crude turpentine. That is to say, the market, as a market, is not really at all times quotable, and the actual market for turpentine to be manufactured in Wilmington is not in Wilmington, but in the country, and hence it is, we presume, that the Produce Exchange has ceased to quote it. It is not an unusual thing for turpentine to sell for more money in the country than it will bring in the city, for the reason that much of the crude material is bought up in the country by the agents of the city distillers. The demands of shippers, too, will sometimes affect the price of the article here.

As to the complaint, in especial, of our subscriber at Whiteville, that he could not sell here last Wednesday for $2.40, it is easy enough to demonstrate that our quotations on the afternoon of the previous day, Tuesday, were thoroughly correct, so far as there were any reliable quotations at all. It was reported by the inspectors on Tuesday at $2.40, and in both of the daily papers published here, the Star as well as the REVIEW, it was reported at $2.40 for that day.

To Builders and others—Go to JACOBI'S for Sash, Blinds and Doors, Glass &c. You can get all sizes and at the lowest prices.

Railroad Meeting.

A meeting of the Directors of the Clinton and Pt. Caswell railroad is to be held at Clinton, Sampson county, tomorrow. Col. F. W. Kerchner, president of the company, Mr. A. Adrian, one of the Directors, and Mayor Hall will be in attendance from this city.

Another.

Another of those delightful excursions given by the ladies of Front Street M. E. Church is advertised to take place on Thursday, on the Passport to Smithville and the Forts, and we are sure that with a fair day, this one will, in point of enjoyment be in no ways inferior to any of its predecessors.

For Pocket Knives or Table Cutlery, go to JACOBI'S Hardware Depot.

We have received the catalogue of the Bingham School for the year ending last December 31st, that year covering the 176th and 177th sessions of this venerable institution of learning, which was established in 1793. The list shows a total of 258 students in that year, four of whom, Masters DuBrutz Cutlar, Jr., Aaron Gregnewald, Marcus W. Jacobi and George L. Morton, are from this city.

A Termagant.

At Justice Hill's emporium of justice to-day there was a scene not announced in the bills. One Margaret Claridy, colored, was brought up on a peace warrant, and while the testimony was being given she became angrily excited and denounced the witness as a liar besides calling her many other hard and obnoxious names, in such a loud voice that it was heard nearly a block. She even wanted to fight, and would have pitched in lively had she not been prevented by the officers of the court and some of the bystanders. She was finally taken in hand and locked up for her contemptuous conduct.

Silver Plated Spoons and Forks, low prices, at JACOBI'S.

The Carolina Central.

We find a floating paragraph, dated from Raleigh, which in speaking of the opinions of Judges Bond and Seymour, filed last week in Raleigh, in reference to the Carolina Central R. R. suits, says:

The case will now be carried to the United States Supreme Court by the plaintiff. This decision will probably put an end to any proceedings by the attorney-general of the State, under the resolution of the Legislature instructing him to bring quo warranto against the Seaboard Company to have the stock held by that company forfeited to the State. The attorney general has taken no action, and has been awaiting this decision for his guidance. If this decision finally concluded the litigation the Carolina Central Road would at once be extended thirty miles from Shelby, N. C., to Spartanburg, S. C. The road from Augusta to Greenwood and thence on to Spartanburg, S. C., is nearly completed, and the filling in of the gap between Shelby and Spartanburg would make another through line to the South over the seaboard system of railways. Notwithstanding the case may not be decided in the Supreme Court for five years it is probable that this thirty miles will be built and the new line opened within the next eighteen months.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

A LIBERAL REWARD WILL BE PAID for the capture of THAD MOORE, who escaped from the New Hanover County House of Correction, on Sunday afternoon, July 29, 1883. Said Moore is black, set, about 5 feet 2 inches high, color commonly called "ginger cake," and supposed to be about 35 years old. Is thought to be making his way to his home, near Point Caswell, Pender county. JOHN H. SAVAGE, Sept. 7th 83.
